G.O.P. DEMANDS GEN. MARSHALL'S MILITARY VIEWS

Want Statement From Prospective Secretary Of Foreign Policy

CONFIRMATION EXPECTED TO COME IN NEXT WEEK

Washington, Sept. 16. —(AP)— Republicans demanded today that General George C. Marshall outline to lawmakers his overall view of the military situation as a preliminary to his expected confirmation next week as secretary of defense.

Senator Knowland (R-alif.) told a reporter he will ask the senate armed services committee to call Marshall in a closed session next week for a statement of policies he will follow as the successor to Louis A. Johnson.

Similarly, Senator Hickenlooper (R.-Iowa) said he believed the senate foreign relations committee ought to have the advantage of Marshall's views on how the world military situation affects the nation's international policies.

Both Knowland and Hickenlooper voted against the bill passed by congress yesterday to let Marshall, a five star general, take the post congress had said should never be filled by any but a civilian. They said, however, there

REV. PEARCE TO RE-ASSIGNMENT

Well Known Pastor To Fill New Vacancy At De-Ridder Church

Rev. George Pearce Jr., pastor for the past tthree years of Memorial Methodist church, is being transferred by Rev. W. H. Giles, district superintendent, to the pastorate of the First Methodist church in De Ridder. Rev. Ralph Cain, assistant pastor of the First Methodist church in Alexandria, is being assigned to the pastorate of the Memorial church here.

Reverend Giles explains that the present pastor in De Ridder, Rev. W. J. Reed, an army chaplain, has been re-assigned for war duty as chaplain, thus leaving the vacancy in his church.

The removal of Reverend Pearce from Monroe will be greeted with deepest regret by his congregation for he has proved unusually successful and the church, a new and promising one, has grown substantially during the pastorate. In the short time Reverend Pearce has been in Monroe, he has made an unusually large number of friends both in the church and outside where he demonstrated his real worth by unselfish efforts to promote every worthwhile civic movement. He has been considered outstanding as example of a brilliant and deeply consecrated young minister.

"George Pearce is a real human pastor. He rubs shoulders with everybody he thinks he can aid in any way. If all pastors were so understanding, so unselfish and so devoted to the church and all that it concerns, it would work a revolution in the world." stated an admirer of Reverend Pearce Saturday.

Incidentally when he was a pastor in Shreveport, about four years ago, he was voted by the Jaycees, the outstanding man of the community, regarded as one of the very highest marks of esteem that a community can accord.

N.O. Police Arrest 13 Hotrod Drivers

New Orleans, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Police arrested 13 hotrod drivers today as they were preparing to race their souped-up automobiles on Gentilly highway.

Motorcycle police roared down on the gathering and then herded the drivers, ranging in age from 18 to 30, and their stripped-down vehicles to the eighth precinct station.

Maj. Joseph Depaoli, head of the police traffic division, said the area, scene of hotrod races, has been under surveillance for some time.

Yak Fighters Attack U. N. Invasion Ships

Three Casualties Reported On British Cruiser In Strafing From Russian-Made Plane. Craft Is Shot Down

Aboard U. S. Warship off Inchon, Sunday, Sept. 17—(AP)—Two Yak fighters bombed and strafed U. S. and British warships off Inchon today.

One of the planes, made in Russia and of a type used by the North Koreans, dropped a stick of four bombs which fell astern of an American cruiser.

The second, coming in from another direction, scored a near miss. Its bombs threw water over the decks but caused neither damage nor casualties.

The second Yak then strafed a British cruiser, which shot it down.

The British ship reported she had three casualties aboard, one of which was serious.

This was the first enemy air activity over the invasion fleet.

PERMANENT U.N. FORCE IS URGED

35,000-Group In U.S. Wants American Armed Force To Stand Ready

Lake Success, Sept. 16. —(AP)— The 35,000 - member American association for the United Nations called tonight for the United States to keep part of its armed forces always ready to act as a U. N. police force.

It urged other members to do the same until the U. N. has its own military force. It said the U. S. should set an example and be ready to act on recommendations of the general assembly or the security council. It added that the United States should challenge other U. N. members to make a similar declaration.

Canada and the Philippines already have announced they favor such a plan.

The association is an organization of citizens and civic organizations dedicated to U. N. charter principles. Its 46-member board of directors draws up a program of recommendations in advance of every general assembly, directed chiefly to the U. S. delegation.

The current recommendations were signed by Dr. William Emerson, president, retired dean of architecture at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Clark Eichelberger, national director.

The association declares that "all efforts to resist aggression must be taken within the framework of the U. N. no matter how great the test may be—even to military operations on a greater scale than are now being used in Korea—resistance to aggression must not be an isolated act of war and self-defense. It must be police action in behalf of the law of the charter."

The association also said that the U. S. delegation should keep on urging other nations to send ground troop reinforcements to Korea.

It called for a United States policy declaration on calling an emergency session of the assembly if the veto ever paralyzes the security council.

Although reiterating its belief in a principle that every nation ought to be a member of the U. N., the association said that the question of Red China's membership "must be met on its merits. It must not be linked with extraneous consideration, nor be permitted to delay matters which must claim prior consideration at the assembly."

The world federation of United Nations associations, of which the American association is a member, recently declared at Geneva in favor of seating Red China if it fulfills charter qualifications. The American delegate there abstained on the vote.

The world federation has consultative status with the U. N.

In line with its collective security policy, the association said the U. N. should have commissions ready at every expected trouble spot. It said that one of the great advantages in the Korea situation was that a U. N. commission was there to certify to the facts of aggression.

TWO CONTROLS TO BE INVOKED

Easy Payment Buying, Hoarding Will Go Under Curb Tomorrow

Washington, Sept. 16. —(AP)— The government made ready today for Monday's opening assault on inflation—twin controls applied to easy payment buying by consumers and to speculative hoarding by industry.

Starting Monday, the federal reserve board's new "regulation W" will curb runaway consumer credit. Bigger down payments and shorter time limits for payment will affect autos and major household appliances.

At the same time, the week-old National Production Authority (N. P. A.) will invoke its first order designed to outlaw excessive buying of materials which are in short supply.

This N. P. A. action will not affect consumers, who President Truman says are now generally buying with good sense and restraint.

It will, however, forbid factories and dealers to purchase more than normal stocks of scarcity items like steel, copper, rubber and lumber in anticipation of higher prices or dwindling supplies.

Such "inventory hoarding" bids prices up needlessly, government officials say. Also, some of the hoarded items might leak into "gray markets."

The inventory order has not yet been issued. Its terms will be announced tomorrow night. They are enforceable, under the defense production act of 1950, by $10,000 fine or one year's imprisonment, or both.

Mr. Truman's chief weapon put to use against soaring prices, however, will be the consumer credit regulation. Its limitations which can be tightened up if installment credit keeps soaring to new records monthly, were announced Sept. 8.

LA.-MISS. PLAN ATOMIC DEFENSE ON BROAD SCALE

Hufft Reports 'Every Town In The State' Is Now Being Prepared

LOUISIANA IS SOUTH'S BEST ORGANIZED STATE

By Harry Cook

New Orleans, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Plans in Louisiana and Mississippi for defense against atomic warfare run from the smallest towns to the largest cities, a survey showed tonight.

But preparations have not passed the organization stage.

Brig. Gen. Raymond Hufft, Louisiana adjutant general and state director of civilian defense, says "every town in the state" is being organized.

"Louisiana is better organized than any other state in the south," Hufft said. "Lake Charles is perhaps the most prepared in the state."

In Mississippi, Gov. Fielding Wright has set up a civilian defense council providing for the creation of defense councils in all 82 counties and each city having 10,000 or more persons.

Hufft said his office has as-

CONFEREES AGREE ON DEFENSE BILL

However, Decide To Let House Decide Separately On Senate Provision

Washington, Sept. 16. —(AP)— Senate-house conferees agreed today on an emergency defense bill carrying an estimated $17,000,000,000 to build up America's military machine and help arm her allies.

The conferees, however, left it up to the house to decide separately on a senate provision which would shut off U. S. economic aid to any nation that sells arms or militarily useful goods to Russia or her satellites.

The house members of the conference committee insisted on taking that feature of the senate bill back to the house for a direct vote, probably next Wednesday.

The conferees ironed out differences between a $17.192,000,000 senate bill and a $16,771,000,000 house measure.

The committee agreed to cut the senate total by about $120,000,000 but none of the reductions touched the strictly defense features of the legislation.

Thus the compromise measure still carries $11,736,000,000 to expand this country's military program and $4,000,000,000 to help arm friendly nations against Communist aggression.

The bill in final form includes $3,166,403,000 for the army as compared with $3,148,499,000 in the house measure; $3,734,291,000 for the navy as compared with $3,684,007,000; and $4,560,400,000 for the air force as compared with $4,535,400,000.

Both measures provide for 5,333 new war planes.

The biggest single reduction the conferees made in the measure was a 50 percent slash in a $60,000,000 senate provision for administering the new economic controls law.

Acheson's Defense Plan Gains Favor

Despite French Protests, Atlantic Council Pushes Proposal To Re-Arm Germans Nearer Approval; Schuman Leary Of Rearmament

New York, Sept. 16—(AP)—The North Atlantic Council appeared today to be advancing toward approval of Secretary Of State Acheson's plan for rearming Germans now—despite French protests.

The creation of German military units up to division strenth for use in a defense force is a keystone section of the Acheson plan. The French, however, are said to believe that the Germans can contribute towards European defense without being re-armed and that in any case it is premature to include German military units at this time.

The 12-nation council met for two hours this morning in the second day of its scheduled two-day meeting. It hopes to complete its work tonight, but there is so much business before the council it may go over until Monday.

French Foreign Minister Schuman took up most of the morning explaining France's fears and reservations on the re-armament of Germans, informed sources said.

Schuman was said to have told the council that the time has not yet come to include German units. He said there are other ways the Germans could be used at present, according to thse sources.

These sources added that Schuman pointed out the Germans could be used as internal security police to combat sabotage or as workers in construction of fortifications, some of which already have been built in Germany.

DENHAM FIRED BY PRESIDENT

Feud Between N.L.R.B. General Counsel Is Abruptly Ended

Washington, Sept. 16.—(AP)—President Truman fired Robert N. Denham today as general counsel of board, abruptly ending a long harsh feud between Denham and the five board members.

Mr. Truman asked for Denham's resignation and accepted it on the ground that the differences were so "deep - seated" that Denham and the board were unlikely to restore harmonious relations in their administration of the Taft-Hartley act.

Denham, an aggressive, 64-year-old St. Louis born Republican with an unusual career as lawyer, banker, machinist, cowhand, and army officer, has been under fire from union leaders ever since he was appointed by Mr. Truman three years ago.

Mr. Truman in his letter to Denham said the situation between Denham and the board "is largely due to the fact that the Taft-Hartley act itself creates an administratively unworkable arrangement, which invites confusion and conflict. . ."

"Nevertheless," he said, "It is my duty, so long as this two-headed arrangement remains in the law, to try to make it work."

The president accepted the resignations of the close of business next Monday, and this fact seemed to show that he will name a successor almost at once. The man he names must be approved by the senate.

Red Report 'Too Absurd For Comment'

Berlin, Sept. 16.—(AP)—American authorities here today branded as "too absurd for comment" a Communist report that the U. S. army was sending to Berlin a "special commando force of eight thousand men with the assignment of preparing for the destruction of West Berlin in case of war."

This report was distributed by the Soviet-controlled German news agency adn. It was similar to previous Communist stories about alleged allied plans to blow up the Lorelei rock on the Rhine river and flood vast sections of West Germany in case of war.

'Lights On' After Nine Tonight

Fire sirens, factory whistles and church bells in the Twin Cities will be sounded tonight at 9 to signal the opening of the first "Lights On" drive ever to be conducted in this area.

Sponsored by the Ouachita parish unit of the American Cancer Society, the neighborhood campaign will close the week-long drive to fill the A. C. S. parish quota of $6886 and conclude the official activities of "Cancer Memorial Sunday."

When the drive begins, residents are asked to turn on porch and outside lights on their homes to signal the neighborhood collector that they are ready to contribute to the cancer drive. They will be called on by the local canvasser before 10 p.m.

Grace Church of Monroe has announced that it will broadast hymns and sacred music during the hour over its public address system.

In commenting on the success of the drive to date, Miss Nona "Dutch" Martin, parish chairman, said "Our drive is in its last hours. So far, we haven't reached the goal. If we are to go over the top in this campaign, we must get contributions from every single Twin Cities resident who hasn't contributed yet and who wishes to help in the drive."

Mrs. C. K. Crandall, chairman of the "Lights On" committee, announced Saturday evening that she had completed arrangements for neighborhood canvassers to cover every part of the Twin Cities. 'We're trying to include everyone in our coverage," she said. "Now we hope that every citizen will remember our motto and make their porch lights beacons of hope for victims of cancer."

EXPAND INVASION

U.N. FORCES GAINING IN TOUGH BATTLE IN SOUTH

Tokyo, Sunday, Sept. 17—(AP)—Tank-led United Nations troops overran Seoul's outer defenses Saturday, seized its big Kimpo Air Base, and were reported by South Korea's radio to be fighting inside Seoul itself.

United Nations forces 165 miles to the southeast gouged out gains up to five miles in their new offensive against 140,000 Reds rimming the old beachhead.

As reinforcements and material poured ashore at Inchon, the first air attack was made today against the supporting U. S. and British fleet off that west coast port.

U. S. and South Korean marine colums struck northwest and southwest of Seoul, supported by 45-ton Pershing tanks.

The South Korean republic's radio at Pusan, quoting the South Korean high command, said one marine force captured the suburban industrial ward of Yongdungpo at 5 p.m. Saturday (3 a.m. EST) in street fighting led by tanks.

It said other United Nations units hurdled the broad Han river into Seoul proper and were advancing towards the heart of the city of more than 1,000,000 population.

Another tank-speared U. S. Marine force came pounding down the east band of the Han river across from Kimpo airfield and entered Neungg Kok, northwestern Seoul suburb, the Republican announcement said.

The marines already had captured Kimpo, 15 miles northwest of Seoul, against light North Korean resistance. It is the best air base

LOCAL COLLEGE ADDS SIXTH DAY

Registration Up Over Last Year, Enrollments Accepted This Week

Northeast Louisiana State College took on an energetic look Saturday morning when students met regular classes on the sixth day of the week. This was a new experience for many of them. Changing from the five-day program that had been followed when the institution was a junior college was one proof that the school had grown up since last spring.

It was not only the increased Saturday activity that was different since the expansion of the college to a senior basis through state legislation. The enrollment already showed a decided climb from last year's fail figures and enlargement of course offerings included junior year classes.

Registration totaled about 500 at Saturday noon, according to B. S. Hamner, registrar. Complete data will not be available until the later part of next week. Students still have a few days in which to enter Northeastern for full credit in fall semester courses.

A special service which is proving practical for many teachers is the provision of late afternoon and Saturday morning classes. These are planned especially for employed teachers who hold temporary certificates and desire to earn additional college credits to raise their qualifications.

Persons in other professions also are registering for courses to be given at these times. Information regarding this work may be obtained by telephoning the college at 4200.

The increased list of offerings here provides expansion of the military department to a senior basis. This year the military police unit was inaugurated in the R.O.T.C. and an additional instructor has been assigned to the military personnel. There is probability of another commissioned officer joining the staff at Northeastern, according to Maj. Hugh W. McClary, professor of military science and tactics.

Both basic and advanced work is being given in the R. O. T. C. as a result of the expansion from a junior to a senior institution.

Congress Clears Most Bills In Hopes Of Recess Soon

Washington, Sept. 16. —(AP)— Congress cleared the decks of all but a handful of big bills this week in hopes of starting a long pre-election recess soon.

There was little doubt as the week ended that the legislators will be back in Washington shortly after the November balloting—possibly to consider an excess profits tax bill.

About the only "must" business still on the docket are bills to control subversives, increase taxes and appropriate $17,000,000,000 for defense purposes.

Late Friday, both houses approved legislation requested by the White House, to let Gen. George C. Marshall become defense secretary.

The senate passed the Communist control bill and the emergency spending measure this week. They went to conference committees along with the $4,508,000,000 tax increase. An agreement on terms of the Communist control bill was reported reached Friday night.

The house sent the senate, over the president's vetoes, bills to give clinical treatment to all Spanish-American war veterans and to pave the way for naturalization of some 85,000 orientals living in the United States or Hawaii.

The status of major legislation at the end of the week:

Emergency controls: The president has signed a bill providing authority for price and wage control rationing and other curbs. Appropriation: a compromise $36,000,000,000 bill financing federal agencies for the present fiscal year has been signed.

Defense: Bills lifting statutory manpower ceilings on military personnel, extending enlistment terms one year, providing for family allotments for enlisted men and for the drafting of doctors and dentists have passed.

Social security: A bill blanketing 10,000,000 more workers under old age insurance, boosting benefits up to 100 percent and more than doubling security payroll taxes in the next 20 years has been signed.

Civil rights: A bill creating a fair employment practices commission (F. E. P. C.) has passed the house but can't hurdle a senate filibuster threat.

Military aid to friendly nations: Funds voted to continue the arms-aid program; additional appropriation pending.

Rent control: The president has signed a bill continuing federal rent controls until December 31, 1950, with an additional six months optional for cities that want it.

Foreign economic assistance (E. C. A.): A $2,526,000,000 fund for economic aid to friendly nations has been voted.

Displaced persons: The president signed a law admitting more foreign refugees.

Postal rates: Increases have been voted by the house, but the senate has not acted.

Brannan plan of farm price supports: Sidetracked.

Federal aid to education: Voted by senate; sidetracked in house.

Oleomargarine taxes: Federal levies repealed.

Postal service: The house has passed a bill to nullify a postal order reducing city mail deliveries to one a day. The senate has not acted.

LOUISIANA IS SOUTH'S BEST ORGANIZED STATE

By Harry Cook

New Orleans, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Plans in Louisiana and Mississippi for defense against atomic warfare run from the smallest towns to the largest cities, a survey showed tonight.

But preparations have not passed the organization stage.

Brig. Gen. Raymond Hufft, Louisiana adjutant general and state director of civilian defense, says "every town in the state" is being organized.

"Louisiana is better organized than any other state in the south," Hufft said. "Lake Charles is perhaps the most prepared in the state."

In Mississippi, Gov. Fielding Wright has set up a civilian defense council providing for the creation of defense councils in all 82 counties and each city having 10,000 or more persons.

Hufft said his office has as-

CONFEREES AGREE ON DEFENSE BILL

However, Decide To Let House Decide Separately On Senate Provision

Washington, Sept. 16. —(AP)— Senate-house conferees agreed today on an emergency defense bill carrying an estimated $17,000,000,000 to build up America's military machine and help arm her allies.

The conferees, however, left it up to the house to decide separately on a senate provision which would shut off U. S. economic aid to any nation that sells arms or militarily useful goods to Russia or her satellites.

The house members of the conference committee insisted on taking that feature of the senate bill back to the house for a direct vote, probably next Wednesday.

The conferees ironed out differences between a $17,192,000,000 senate bill and a $16,771,000,000 house measure.

The committee agreed to cut the senate total by about $120,000,000 but none of the reductions touched the strictly defense features of the legislation.

Thus the compromise measure still carries $11,736,000,000 to expand this country's military program and $4,000,000,000 to help arm friendly nations against Communist aggression.

The bill in final form includes $3,166,403,000 for the army as compared with $3,148,499,000 in the house measure; $3,734,291,000 for the navy as compared with $3,684,007,000; and $4,560,400,000 for the air force as compared with $4,535,400,000.

Both measures provide for 5,333 new war planes.

The biggest single reduction the conferees made in the measure was a 50 percent slash in a $60,000,000 senate provision for administering the new economic controls law.

Acheson's Defense Plan Gains Favor

Despite French Protests, Atlantic Council Pushes Proposal To Re-Arm Germans Nearer Approval; Schuman Leary Of Rearmament

New York, Sept. 16—(AP)—The North Atlantic Council appeared today to be advancing toward approval of Secretary Of State Acheson's plan for rearming Germans now—despite French protests.

The creation of German military units up to division strenth for use in a defense force is a keystone section of the Acheson plan. The French, however, are said to believe that the Germans can contribute towards European defense without being re-armed and that in any case it is premature to include German military units at this time.

The 12-nation council met for two hours this morning in the second day of its scheduled two-day meeting. It hopes to complete its work tonight, but there is so much business before the council it may go over until Monday.

French Foreign Minister Schuman took up most of the morning explaining France's fears and reservations on the re-armament of Germans, informed sources said.

Schuman was said to have told the council that the time has not yet come to include German units. He said there are other ways the Germans could be used at present, according to thse sources.

These sources added that Schuman pointed out the Germans could be used as internal security police to combat sabotage or as workers in construction of fortifications, some of which already have been built in Germany.

DENHAM FIRED BY PRESIDENT

Washington, Sept. 16.—(AP)—President Truman fired Robert N. Denham today as general counsel of board, abruptly ending a long harsh feud between Denham and the five board members.

Mr. Truman asked for Denham's resignation and accepted it on the ground that the differences were so "deep - seated" that Denham and the board were unlikely to restore harmonious relations in their administration of the Taft-Hartley act.

Denham, an aggressive, 64-year-old St. Louis born Republican with an unusual career as lawyer, banker, machinist, cowhand, and army officer, has been under fire from union leaders ever since he was appointed by Mr. Truman three years ago.

Mr. Truman in his letter to Denham said the situation between Denham and the board "is largely due to the fact that the Taft-Hartley act itself creates an administratively unworkable arrangement, which invites confusion and conflict. . ."

"Nevertheless," he said, "It is my duty, so long as this two-headed arrangement remains in the law, to try to make it work."

The president accepted the resignations of the close of business next Monday, and this fact seemed to show that he will name a successor almost at once. The man he names must be approved by the senate.

Red Report 'Too Absurd For Comment'

Berlin, Sept. 16.—(AP)—American authorities here today branded as "too absurd for comment" a Communist report that the U. S. army was sending to Berlin a "special commando force of eight thousand men with the assignment of preparing for the destruction of West Berlin in case of war."

This report was distributed by the Soviet-controlled German news agency adn. It was similar to previous Communist stories about alleged allied plans to blow up the Lorelei rock on the Rhine river and flood vast sections of West Germany in case of war.

'Lights On' After Nine Tonight

Fire sirens, factory whistles and church bells in the Twin Cities will be sounded tonight at 9 to signal the opening of the first "Lights On" drive ever to be conducted in this area.

Sponsored by the Ouachita parish unit of the American Cancer Society, the neighborhood campaign will close the week-long drive to fill the A. C. S. parish quota of $6886 and conclude the official activities of "Cancer Memorial Sunday."

When the drive begins, residents are asked to turn on porch and outside lights on their homes to signal the neighborhood collector that they are ready to contribute to the cancer drive. They will be called on by the local canvasser before 10 p.m.

Grace Church of Monroe has announced that it will broadast hymns and sacred music during the hour over its public address system.

In commenting on the success of the drive to date, Miss Nona "Dutch" Martin, parish chairman, said "Our drive is in its last hours. So far, we haven't reached the goal. If we are to go over the top in this campaign, we must get contributions from every single Twin Cities resident who hasn't contributed yet and who wishes to help in the drive."

Mrs. C. K. Crandall, chairman of the "Lights On" committee, announced Saturday evening that she had completed arrangements for neighborhood canvassers to cover every part of the Twin Cities. 'We're trying to include everyone in our coverage," she said. "Now we hope that every citizen will remember our motto and make their porch lights beacons of hope for victims of cancer."

U.N. FORCES GAINING IN TOUGH BATTLE IN SOUTH

Tokyo, Sunday, Sept. 17—(AP)—Tank-led United Nations troops overran Seoul's outer defenses Saturday, seized its big Kimpo Air Base, and were reported by South Korea's radio to be fighting inside Seoul itself.

United Nations forces 165 miles to the southeast gouged out gains up to five miles in their new offensive against 140,000 Reds rimming the old beachhead.

As reinforcements and material poured ashore at Inchon, the first air attack was made today against the supporting U. S. and British fleet off that west coast port.

U. S. and South Korean marine colums struck northwest and southwest of Seoul, supported by 45-ton Pershing tanks.

The South Korean republic's radio at Pusan, quoting the South Korean high command, said one marine force captured the suburban industrial ward of Yongdungpo at 5 p.m. Saturday (3 a.m. EST) in street fighting led by tanks.

It said other United Nations units hurdled the broad Han river into Seoul proper and were advancing towards the heart of the city of more than 1,000,000 population.

Another tank-speared U. S. Marine force came pounding down the east band of the Han river across from Kimpo airfield and entered Neungg Kok, northwestern Seoul suburb, the Republican announcement said.

The marines already had captured Kimpo, 15 miles northwest of Seoul, against light North Korean resistance. It is the best air base

LOCAL COLLEGE ADDS SIXTH DAY

Registration Up Over Last Year, Enrollments Accepted This Week

Northeast Louisiana State College took on an energetic look Saturday morning when students met regular classes on the sixth day of the week. This was a new experience for many of them. Changing from the five-day program that had been followed when the institution was a junior college was one proof that the school had grown up since last spring.

It was not only the increased Saturday activity that was different since the expansion of the college to a senior basis through state legislation. The enrollment already showed a decided climb from last year's fall figures and enlargement of course offerings included junior year classes.

Registration totaled about 500 at Saturday noon, according to B. S. Hamner, registrar. Complete data will not be available until the latter part of next week. Students still have a few days in which to enter Northeastern for full credit in fall semester courses.

A special service which is proving practical for many teachers is the provision of late afternoon and Saturday morning classes. These are planned especially for employed teachers who hold temporary certificates and desire to earn additional college credits to raise their qualifications.

Persons in other professions also are registering for courses to be given at these times. Information regarding this work may be obtained by telephoning the college at 4200.

The increased list of offerings here provides expansion of the military department to a senior basis. This year the military police unit was inaugurated in the R.O.T.C. and an additional instructor has been assigned to the military personnel. There is probability of another commissioned officer joining the staff at Northeastern, according to Maj. Hugh W. McClary, professor of military science and tactics.

Both basic and advanced work is being given in the R. O. T. C. as a result of the expansion from a junior to a senior institution.

Congress Clears Most Bills In Hopes Of Recess Soon

Washington, Sept. 16. —(AP)— Congress cleared the decks of all but a handful of big bills this week in hopes of starting a long pre-election recess soon.

There was little doubt as the week ended that the legislators will be back in Washington shortly after the November balloting—possibly to consider an excess profits tax bill.

About the only "must" business still on the docket are bills to control subversives, increase taxes and appropriate $17,000,000,000 for defense purposes.

Late Friday, both houses approved legislation requested by the White House, to let Gen. George C. Marshall become defense secretary.

The senate passed the Communist control bill and the emergency spending measure this week. They went to conference committees along with the $4,508,000,000 tax increase. An agreement on terms of the Communist control bill was reported reached Friday night.

The house sent the senate, over the president's vetoes, bills to give clinical treatment to all Spanish-American war veterans and to pave the way for naturalization of some 85,000 orientals living in the United States or Hawaii.

The status of major legislation at the end of the week:

Emergency controls: The president has signed a bill providing authority for price and wage control rationing and other curbs. Appropriation: a compromise $36,000,000,000 bill financing federal agencies for the present fiscal year has been signed.

Defense: Bills lifting statutory manpower ceilings on military personnel, extending enlistment terms one year, providing for family allotments for enlisted men and for the drafting of doctors and dentists have passed.

Social security: A bill blanketing 10,000,000 more workers under old age insurance, boosting benefits up to 100 percent and more than doubling security payroll taxes in the next 20 years has been signed.

Civil rights: A bill creating a fair employment practices commission (F. E. P. C.) has passed the house but can't hurdle a senate filibuster threat.

Military aid to friendly nations: Funds voted to continue the arms-aid program; additional appropriation pending.

Rent control: The president has signed a bill continuing federal rent controls until December 31, 1950, with an additional six months optional for cities that want it.

Foreign economic assistance (E. C. A.): A $2,526,000,000 fund for economic aid to friendly nations has been voted.

Displaced persons: The president signed a law admitting more foreign refugees.

Postal rates: Increases have been voted by the house, but the senate has not acted.

Brannan plan of farm price supports: Sidetracked.

Federal aid to education: Voted by senate; sidetracked in house.

Oleomargarine taxes: Federal levies repealed.

Postal service: The house has passed a bill to nullify a postal order reducing city mail deliveries to one a day. The senate has not acted.

Selective Service, Now 10 Years Old, Functions Again

3,659 Local Draft Boards Engaged In Sending 'Greetings'

Washington, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Selective service is 10 years old today.

And—as every draft-age man, his family or his girl-friend knows—it's actively back in business after a postwar lull.

Throughout the country, its 3,659 local boards will have sent "greetings" to 50,000 of their neighbors by the end of this month as a direct result of the Korean war.

Another 50,000 will get the call in October and 70,000 will be sent for in November. After that, it's anybody's guess—but the latest estimate is that up to 500,000 will have been called by the middle of next year.

Add the 10,052,493 drafted between 1940 and the start of fighting in Korea, and you see why selective service has become an American institution as familiar—if not as beloved—as baseball or apple pie.

President Roosevelt put into being a unique government agency when he signed the selective training and service act on Sept. 16, 1940.

About 85 per cent of selective service personnel during World War II drew no government pay. They were the volunteers on local boards who decided who of their neighbors would go off to fight, who stay behind to man the economy.

The ratio of paid to unpaid workers remains about the same, and half of today's volunteers were with the system during the war.

Selective service describes itself as a vast government procurement agency.

It does not decide how many men are to be drafted.

It does not set physical standards.

It does not train draftees.

Selective service headquarters in Washington breaks the call down into state quotas according to each state's pool of 1-As.

State directors then assign quotas to local boards, who select registrants as they think best, bound by the law and selective service regulations.

Once draftees take the oath, selective service has done its job and is through with them.

The 1940 act provided for registration of all male residents of the U. S. between 21 and 36. About 16,500,000 visited their local boards when registration began on Oct. 16, 1940. Those called were to serve 12 months within the continental U. S.

In those days the order of call was determined by a national lottery. The first was held in a Washington auditorium on Oct. 29, 1940.

Secretary of War Stimson drew the first capsule from the same fish bowl used in the World War I lottery, President Roosevelt, over a coast-to-coast radio hookup, called number 158. A woman in the audience screamed. Her son had draft serial number 158 and would be the first to go in his board's quota.

The lottery was abandoned in December 1942. Registrants have since been called according to birth dates, from the oldest on down.

Inductions began on Nov. 18, 1940. Available records indicate the first draftee to actually take the oath was John E. Lawton of Everett, Mass.

Lawton was discharged after a year in the army, worked in a shipyard, was re-inducted in 1942, served in the medical corps at base hospitals in the U. S. and was not discharged again until December 1946. Now 41, he is married, has a two-year-old son and works in a Glendale, Calif., plastics plant.

After Pearl Harbor the restriction holding draftees to continental service was removed and the period of servce extended to the duration plus six months.

The induction rate was stepped up to a wartime monthly record of 406,374 in February 1943. Eventually men between 18 and 65 had to register. Local boards combed their lists of deferments again and again.

In April 1943 President Roosevelt, as President Truman has done recently, signed a law providing allotments for the dependents of servicemen. The next month dependency deferments ceased for registrants with non-essential jobs.

Today, non-veterans with dependents again face possible liability for service. This could be authorized by the White House, but it would take congressional action to change the present exemption for veterans.

Before Germany surrendered, in May 1945, draft calls started to fall off and selective service began to cut down its staff. Inductions did not cease, however, until Oct. 16, 1946.

By that date nearly 15,000,000 men had served in the armed forces. Two-thirds had gone in via selective service.

When the 1940 act expired at the end of March 1947, the office of selective service records was set up to preserve 44,000,000 draft records and continue a study of draft procedure and problems. The wartime director of selective service, Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, was appointed chief of the new office. He had been connected with the draft since 1936, when he was executive officer of an army-navy committee planning for possible conscription.

General Hershey, who turned 57 this week, was appointed director of the present selective service system when the 1948 act was passed, requiring those between 18 and 26 to register.

Only 30,126 draftees and 57,323 one-year enlistees were taken in under the 1948 act up to Korea. The last call went out in January 1949. But the act induced about 200,000 more to enlist voluntarily in the regular services, reserves and National Guard.

By the end of July 1950—one month after the Korean fighting began—10,943,546 men were registered, 2,63,320 of them exempt from service as World War II vets. More than 1,600,000 were classified 1-A, but only 8,000 of these had yet been examined.

The army has tougher mental requirements and stricter interpretation of its physical standards today. It has rejected about 60 per cent in the present draft, compared to 35.8 per cent during the war.

This puts an added burden on selective service. General Hershey is scratching his gray-haired head once again wondering how his 37,000 draft board members can dig up 170,000 fit men to deliver to Uncle Sam by the end of this November and allow for possible future draft calls.

Prisoners Know Rule Better Than Officer

New York, Sept. 16. —(AP)— Charles Rogers, 66, has been arrested 66 times; Joseph Morris, 61, 31 times.

They showed that today after the pickpocket squad nabbed them on the usual charge, jostling.

Then they led the way down a grill-enclosed stairway to the identification bureau and assumed proper positions to be photographed.

Then one arresting officer said: "Well, let's go to the line-up room."

The prisoners looked incredulous.

"What's the matter, bud?" said one. "Don't you know there's no line - up on Saturday."

There isn't, either.

The men were held for hearing Sept. 28.

It does not train draftees.

Selective service headquarters in Washington breaks the call down into state quotas according to each state's pool of 1-As.

State directors then assign quotas to local boards, who select registrants as they think best, bound by the law and selective service regulations.

Once draftees take the oath, selective service has done its job and is through with them.

The 1940 act provided for registration of all male residents of the U. S. between 21 and 36. About 16,500,000 visited their local boards when registration began on Oct. 16, 1940. Those called were to serve 12 months within the continental U. S.

In those days the order of call was determined by a national lottery. The first was held in a Washington auditorium on Oct. 29, 1940.

Secretary of War Stimson drew the first capsule from the same fish bowl used in the World War I lottery, President Roosevelt, over a coast-to-coast radio hookup, called number 158. A woman in the audience screamed. Her son had draft serial number 158 and would be the first to go in his board's quota.

The lottery was abandoned in December 1942. Registrants have since been called according to birth dates, from the oldest on down.

Inductions began on Nov. 18, 1940. Available records indicate the first draftee to actually take the oath was John E. Lawton of Everett, Mass.

Lawton was discharged after a year in the army, worked in a shipyard, was re-inducted in 1942, served in the medical corps at base hospitals in the U. S. and was not discharged again until December 1946. Now 41, he is married, has a two-year-old son and works in a Glendale, Calif., plastics plant.

After Pearl Harbor the restriction holding draftees to continental service was removed and the period of servce extended to the duration plus six months.

The induction rate was stepped up to a wartime monthly record of 406,374 in February 1943. Eventually men between 18 and 65 had to register. Local boards combed their lists of deferments again and again.

In April 1943 President Roosevelt, as President Truman has done recently, signed a law providing allotments for the dependents of servicemen. The next month dependency deferments ceased for registrants with non-essential jobs.

Today, non-veterans with dependents again face possible liability for service. This could be authorized by the White House, but it would take congressional action to change the present exemption for veterans.

Before Germany surrendered, in May 1945, draft calls started to fall off and selective service began to cut down its staff. Inductions did not cease, however, until Oct. 16, 1946.

By that date nearly 15,000,000 men had served in the armed forces. Two-thirds had gone in via selective service.

When the 1940 act expired at the end of March 1947, the office of selective service records was set up to preserve 44,000,000 draft records and continue a study of draft procedure and problems. The wartime director of selective service, Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, was appointed chief of the new office. He had been connected with the draft since 1936, when he was executive officer of an army-navy committee planning for possible conscription.

General Hershey, who turned 57 this week, was appointed director of the present selective service system when the 1948 act was passed, requiring those between 18 and 26 to register.

Only 30,126 draftees and 57,323 one-year enlistees were taken in under the 1948 act up to Korea. The last call went out in January 1949. But the act induced about 200,000 more to enlist voluntarily in the regular services, reserves and National Guard.

By the end of July 1950—one month after the Korean fighting began—10,943,546 men were registered, 2,63,320 of them exempt from service as World War II vets. More than 1,600,000 were classified 1-A, but only 8,000 of these had yet been examined.

The army has tougher mental requirements and stricter interpretation of its physical standards today. It has rejected about 60 per cent in the present draft, compared to 35.8 per cent during the war.

This puts an added burden on selective service. General Hershey is scratching his gray-haired head once again wondering how his 37,000 draft board members can dig up 170,000 fit men to deliver to Uncle Sam by the end of this November and allow for possible future draft calls.

Prisoners Know Rule Better Than Officer

New York, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Charles Rogers, 66, has been arrested 66 times; Joseph Morris, 61, 31 times.

They showed that today after the pickpocket squad nabbed them on the usual charge, jostling.

Then they led the way down a grill-enclosed stairway to the identification bureau and assumed proper positions to be photographed.

Then one arresting officer said: "Well, let's go to the line-up room."

The prisoners looked incredulous.

"What's the matter, bud?" said one. "Don't you know there's no line - up on Saturday."

There isn't, either.

Industry's Part In War

Possibly one good reason for hesitancy on Russia's part to attack this country directly is the unquestionable certainty that the Kremlin knows the extent of American industrial capacity far better than the average American. Following are reports of leaders in key industries:

Steel: "Today we have more capacity than all the rest of the world put together. Since the last war started, we have built as much new steel capacity as existed in Germany when that war began. This excess capacity is sufficient to meet the present demand." Clarence B. Randall, president of Inland Steel Co.

Rubber: "Today we have not one but two raw materials—natural and synthetic rubber. Before World War II we could turn 85,000 tons of rubber into finished products each month. Now we can process 110,000 tons a month. Before World War II our industry had about 150,000 employes. Today, we have over 200,000." Harry E. Humphreys, Jr., president of United States Rubber Co.

Oil: "There is no need for rationing, even if military demand expands substantially from present levels. Since the end of the last war, the petroleum industry has increased its capacity by more than 25 per cent." Dr. Robert E. Wilson, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Co. (Indiana).

Electric Power: "Right now the electric utility industry has one-third more generating capacity than at the end of the last war, and by the end of 1953 will have three-quarters more." Louis V. Sutton, president of the Carolina Power and Light Co.

Textiles: "With cotton and synthetic-fiber production far ahead of last year, there will be plenty of clothing available in the coming months. Total output of broad woven goods made of cotton is expected to exceed last year's production by 1,500,000,000 square yards." Donald Comer, chairman of the board of Avondale Mills.

Machine Tools: "The industry has far larger capacity than at the start of the second war and could be expanded to meet twice the present demand." Charles J. Stilwell, president of Warner and Swasey Co.

Food: "There is absolutely no reason for panic buying of foods. We have a more abundant supply on hand than ever before." Morris Sayre, president of the Corn Products Refining Co.

In response to queries of officials charged with the task of insuring the nation's security, American industry has virtually said to the government, "Tell us what you want—we can fill the order."

The Scapegoat Steps Out

Louis Johnson's resignation as secretary of defense may lighten the storm of criticism which has been buffeting the Truman administration since it first became apparent that our country was not properly prepared to enter the war in Korea and that our Far Eastern foreign policy had been badly bungled.

The administration has sorely needed a scapegoat. And that is what Louis Johnson has become.

Upon him is being heaped blame which others should share or bear entirely.

He has received blame for action or inaction in cases where he was following orders. Much of the criticism which has come his way arose from the armed forces unification program, which he directed energetically and effectively under a clear mandate from congress. In this program he was strongly opposed by the navy and marine corps opposition which had begun to subside, however, before the Korean war started.

Only a few short weeks before the fighting in Korea began, President Truman himself said that prospects for peace were brighter than they had been in months. He had expressed similar optimism over the international outlook earlier in 1950 and in 1949.

This optimism on the part of the president was mistaken. It unquestionably played a part in our unreadiness to deal with the North Korean invasion.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson announced in January, with President Truman's approval, that the American defense line in the Far East would extend southward from Japan through the Philippines, leaving both Korea and Formosa beyond the line of this defense declaration.

Furthermore, with the state department in full charge in South Korea, and General MacArthur excluded from any phase of policy there, armament which should have been sent to the South Korean forces was withheld. Owen Lattimore said that we should let South Korea fall to the Reds, without appearing to do so. The whole situation as engineered by the state department invited a North Korean attack.

Thoughtful Americans, aware of these facts and of Secretary Acheson's part in turning China over to the Red armies, will say that Secretary Acheson should have been the first man to step out of the Truman cabinet. Upon his shoulders rests far more blame for our tragic losses in Korea than can rightly be placed on the shoulders of Louis Johnson.

It is proper to say, too, that some members of congress and some leaders of the military should share blame for our military unreadiness for the Korean episode. They held to the theory that the nation should not maintain a large military establishment, constantly in readiness. Money was provided for unceasing research. A program of preparing industrial plants for quick conversion to the manufacture of latest possible weapons was adopted.

This, it was felt, would give the nation adequate defense without creating an unbearable tax burden. The assumption al along ws tht w would hv tim to ssmbl nwl [illegible] all along was that we would have time to assemble a new army, make new weapons, expand the air fleets and take the navy out of mothballs—that, as in World Wars I and II, we could win by building up great strength rather than having great strength at the start.

This plan was not just Louis Johnson's. It was widely approved both in and out of the government. It seemed a rational way to carry on the "cold war." The risks which this program obviously contained bore the tag of "calculated risks."

There were many—not just Louis Johnson—who felt that the atomic bomb and the air force provided an adequate guarantee of security during the early stages of a war. The whole program of preparation was for a general war, rather than for the "police action" which bobbed up in Korea on a scale much more grim than any police action should be or is.

Of Louis Johnson let it be said that while he joined others in policies which turned out to be ill-fitted to the emergency which arose, his devotion to Americanism has never been questioned. Louis Johnson has never run with the Reds and pinks of Washington.

Secretary Acheson's bungling, his refusal to turn his back on Alger Hiss and his long association with a policy of appeasement of Red Russia are far greater liabilities to the Truman administration than anything Secretary Johnson did or failed to do.

If the president's cabinet is to be put on a true war footing, along with the rest of the country, then Secretary Acheson should be called upon to resign, and soon.

WALTER WINCHELL

By Jack Lait
Walter Winchell On Vacation

Columning for a living is no sinecure. But it produces its rewarding experiences, with insights int. the suppressed longings of our fellowfolk.

Foremost is revealed the extravagant ambitions in the hearts of little people to change the world.

Nothing could be more healthy than to find citizens eager to uplift and improve life. But I feel that if we all did our little bit we would achieve more in the long run than will ever come of each of us nurturing theories and plans for quick turn over of institutions, even nations.

You would think that such flighty fancies would come from the young, the callow cubs who dream of overpowering the perils that beset mankind with impulsive solutions at the ages and stages when we all project ourselves in imagination as prodigies.

That is not so. Most of the petulant plans for peace on earth, spreading the gospel, unhorsing the dictators, hanging the traitors, putting supermen in high office, eradicating crime and greed and lust, etc., flow from the elderly letterwriters, men and women who have lived long enough to realize that processes of progress are slow and uncertain.

And most of the schemes involve violence.

You would be surprised at the number of Americans, trembling with terror over the possibility of A-bombs being set off on us, who think the best defense would be to destroy those whom they fear with those devastating weapons now—wipe them out—do unto others what they're afraid the others might do unto them.

I surmise most of these good people felt entirely obsolved after row or felt entirely absolved after catching a fish.

The Democrats want curbs against the Republicans and vice versa. They regard the presidential veto as final and right or as interference and mulish mischief, according to their views—and interests.

Minorities—at least those of them who feel strongly enough to get out paper, pen and postage—are pugnaciously militant.

Majorities regard them as selfish upstarts who care nothing for the country, only for the racial, geographical, old world or social brackets individual to themselves.

Tolerance—a much overworked word—is for the other guy.

To the victor belong the spoils—that is the conviction of all but the losers.

I handle some controversial subjects. So I drew panegyrics and jeremiads. I am brave, wise, inspired; or I am a bully taking advantage of my circulation, prejudiced, boss-controlled, looking to get something, or just simple-minded.

All this doesn't alarm me. People are like that. They want to hold what they have and to get more. Their rooted loyalties and enmities are not subject to reason and back of it all is fear, rather than original cruelty.

In this paradise of plenty there is a surging undercurrent of insecurity.

This is not only physical and economic. It is actuated by uncertainty about sociological factors, political potentialities and petty mundane matters.

Some of his trepidation is not without sound foundation. In the brief life of our nation some tremendous changes have eventuated. Taxes and pressure for leveling off inqualities and radical revaluations of human relations have brought us a long distance from "the good old days."

The "haves"—not only as to property—have resisted, as they always will, against encroachments. The prolific disinherited and under privileged will keep fighting. And those conditions spark urges for short cuts with drastic means for fast fruition.

Such impetuous impatience breeds Klans, Mafias, lynchings, bunds, splinter parties, boycotts, general strikes, and, when swollen to great proportions at propitious times and with combinations of collateral circumstances, revolutions.

History has proven all these dangerous, though some have turned out salutary. The revolts in America, elsewhere on this and adjoining continents and in France have brought blessings. The Spanish revolution is a matter for bitter disagreement still. The Russian uprising was an incalcuable tragedy, though it upset a regime not worth saving. That the triumphant proletariat established inhuman totalitarianism beyond the arrogant dream of any czar has proven the overthrow of governments in the name of "the people" is not always a guarantee of the good life. Other popular victories have led to slavery.

Yet so many, I find, are for sudden turnovers, by any means. But I still have faith in the orderly, slower approaches toward the ultimate Utopia. I never write letters to columnists.

Angelo Patri:

OUR CHILDREN

NORMAL PATTERN

Should a widow try to keep her only son, now in his early twenties, from marriage, justifying the idea on the basis that singleness will save him from the trials and tribulations of a married life? Should she deliberately set out to do this because she thinks she and her son could be ideally happy living together as they do now?

Marriage is the normal healthy way of life for men and women. It is based on Nature's laws, sustained by Man's laws, approved by the people and supported by the spiritual, religious forces of society. It is futile in the face of such forces for anybody, man or woman to fight against marriage for young people. They ought to marry as soon as they are in a position to do so.

Instead of trying to teach the children to remain single it would be better to teach them how to choose their mates, how to live happily with them. That will take all the teaching, all the power experience has to bring to bear for this is a field in which nobody but the two concerned can have the final word.

It is natural for a mother to cling to her son but it is also natural, indeed, it is imperative, for that son, or daughter, to grow away from mother and home to build a home of his own and rear his family in it. As he ought to do.

Wise parents accept this and try to prepare the children and themselves for this separation. As soon as the adolescent boy or girl begins to show a preference for one of the opposite sex it is time for the parents to get ready and do what they can to ready the child in question.

It must be remembered that the chosen one is not likely to follow the ideal pattern the parents have in mind. Youth is the time to experiment a bit in the search for a mate, and this is what boys and girls do. They "go" with one friend for a time, then another. The more the better, for only by knowing many boys and girls can they know the sort they get on with best. The only thing a parent can do is to be friendly with all of them. Watch and wait, giving advice when asked and as little as possible then.

When the choice is set the only thing to do is to be friendly with the new member of the family. Friendship, in time, becomes love. The mother afraid of losing her son should remember that she married and had this boy. Was that so bad? And she ought to know that the quickest way to lose him is to try binding him to her for life. Help him to marry and so have two affectionate children where there was but one before. It is life. Make the best of it.

Baby must be handled with steady hands to give him confidence in you. Some excellent advice on this subject is included in Dr. Patri's leaflet P-17, "Tending Baby with a Sure Hand." To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to him, c/o this paper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

William E. Gilroy, D. D.:

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

That was what Paul, above all things, was — a great Christian. He was the first, after his Master, to look out upon humanity with world-wide vision, and a clear, deep, and profound faith in "the glorious gospel of the grace of God," and a passion to declare the good news of that gospel to all men, everywhere, to the very ends of the earth.

As it was, he covered a great part of the world of his time, for he was an indefatiguable traveler, and had he lived long enough, he would undoubtedly have accomplished the fullness of his mission. What he began, in heading westward, and bringing Christianity to Europe, others have continued, in a great line of earnest missionaries. But we owe a great debt to Saint Paul, for, through him, first of all, Christianity came to us.

The faith and vision that sent this determined and heroic man to so great a mission, he himself has very clearly defined. Said he (II Corinthians 5:17): "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new." It was in that faith in the power of the gospel of Christ to bring such new life to any man, that he conceived and carried out his mission.

It is an interesting fact that though Paul was the last of the Apostles to arrive—(he was really the twelfth, taking the place of Judas), though the others had rather hastily appointed Matthias (Acts 1:26), of whom nothing further is known)—we know more about Paul than about any other of the Apostles. This is due to the fact that Luke has told the story of Paul's missionary journeys in the book of Acts, which includes the biographical details of Paul's speeches; and, in addition, Paul himself wrote so much in the Epistles that has come down to us.

In all these records are the evidences of what manner of man he was, what he thought, what he did; and shining through all is the indomitable spirit, the heroism of a man whom no persecution, no hardship, no opposition could swerve from his purpose.

Men are not agreed about these records. Some see in Paul a hard theologian, who made an elaborate affair out of a simple gospel, and in some quarters the cry has been heard, "Back to Jesus," meaning back to Jesus from Paul.

But, if we go back to Jesus, we would have to go back with Paul, for the historic Jesus, who proclaimed the gospel of God's grace, some things hard to understand, was for Paul the great established fact in history, around which centered all his purpose and being.

Peter said that Paul wrote some things hard to understand, and some of us might be confused as was Peter by Paul's occasional long and abstruse arguments.

But to all who would know the real Paul, and appreciate his greatness, apart from the more difficult passages, I commend your attention to a few among the many clear, plain, wonderful things that Paul wrote, such as: I Corinthians 1:13; Romans 12; I Corinthians 3; Ephesians 3:14-21; Romans 8:33-39. Search the many others out for yourself.

BIBLE THOUGHTS:

Our God is a household God, as well as a heavenly one. He has an altar in every man's dwelling; let lightly, and pour out its ashes. men look to it when they rend it —Ruskin.

Have the gates of death been opened unto thee? or hast thou seen the doors of the shadow of death?—Job 38:17.

George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

THE NEW YORK MANNER

The Democrats in New York State would have nominated James Farley to the governorship had he been willing to accept, but the genial Jim is not politicking that way. It is interesting that he had the courage to denounce the current method of balancing Catholic, Protestant and Jew on the tickets of both parties. He said outright that it was un-American to play it that way. nevertheless, that is the way it is being played.

The Democratic candidate, Walter Lynch, a member of the house of representatives, is hardly known outside the Bronx. In fact, he is not too well-known, outside of political circles, even in the Bronx. That in no way infers that he is incapable of being governor of the largest state in the union; but it is likely to mitigate against his election.

Three factors make it difficult for him to achieve his ambitions:

1. Judge Albert Conway, a jurist of outstanding repute, who was to have been nominated, was thrown off the ticket by Louis Hollander, state head of the C. I. O., who accused Judge Conway of being anti-labor, anti-Negro and just a niche above Robert A. Taft. The charges were false but effective.

In Democratic circles, the question arises: Who inspired Louis Hollander to make such charges about so reputable a man? Until that question is answered, many Democrats will vote against the candidate of the Bronx boss, Ed Flynn. And as long as it is believed that Herbert Lehman was in on the deal, a great many Democrats will stay away from the polling booths.

2. As a member of congress for 12 years, Lynch has been a faceless representative, voting strictly as a rubber stamp. Ordinarily, this would have stood him in good stead in a state where organization politics helps a candidate.

But th. Korean war is raising many questions regarding national and international policies, and the new deal and the fair deal (why these are cited separately, I don't know) are not as popular as they used to be. There is much explaining to do, and Herbert Lehman's opposition to the McCarran anti-Communist bill will not get him the Communist or left-wing vote.

3. Thomas E. Dewey has never been a popular man but he has always been respected for his competence, efficiency and integrity. The voters of the state are accustomed to what is generally called his "coldness," which sometimes gives the impression of egocentricity, but they like his achievements, his hard work and the decency of his administration, which compares favorably with much that happens in Washington as well as New York City.

Mr. Lynch will have difficulty in attacking that record. On the other hand, Lynch will be supported by the so-called Liberal party, which is a mildly socialist outfit managed by David Dubinsky and adequately financed. This group has, in the past, been able to poll about 400,000 votes. They may do better than that in this campaign because many who used to vote for the Communists on the vehicle of the American Labor party may vote the Liberal party as the easiest way to soothe their progressive consciences.

Nevertheless, at this stage, nobody doubts that Thomas E. Dewey will be re-elected as governor. Whether he will be able to carry Joe Hanley, his former lieutenant-governor, into the United States senate against Herbert Lehman is not so certain.

Until a week before the Republican convention, Hanley was the candidate for governor and the Republicans expected to be defeated. He removed himself to make room for Thomas E. Dewey and was given the senatorial nomination. However, Lehman is a wonderful vote-gatherer by the New York device of playing the minorities. And there are a large number of minorities in New York and they all have votes. The very factors in Herbert Lehman's record which would damage him in other parts of the country, serve him well in this cosmopolitan state. So, he may win.

Against him is a weariness with what someone called "the men of Yalta." It was this idea which eliminated Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., and Oscar Ewing. It is the idea that there has been something very wrong during the past 10 years and that men associated with power during that decade are not electable.

I should not be surprised if this becomes the issue of the 1950 campaign.

Charrles B. Driscoll:

New York Day By Day

New York — A brief look at the mail. John Stewart, Brunswick, Ga. (that's close to the Marshes of Glynn, if my memory has not gone haywire) writes a friendly letter which nevertheless disturbs me.

After telling me how much he and Mrs. Stewart like the column, he inquires about my health and asks whether I ever miss a day. Answer: in approximately 40 years of daily writing, I have never missed a deadline. My health has been good, bad, and everything in between. In February, 1949, I was gravely ill, and for two days a friend wrote the column. That did not constitute a break in the service, but it nearly broke my heart, because my friend wrote two really good columns.

John Stewart operates a cocker spaniel kennel on Blythe Island, Brunswick. He offers to send me, in token of his appreciation of these writings, a cocker of any color.

My wife and I have been discussing this kind offer. That woman can hardly turn down a dog. Still, our poor little Guru Jones-dog is such a pathetic case, and we love him so dearly, that we both hesitate to take in another dog, who sure would share our affections.

We talk about it. Guru is coal black, handsome, pure-bred, inbred, and not too bright. He permits me to pet him, and goes to sleep with his chin on my knee, in the car, provided my wife is at the wheel. Once recently, after three years of gentle trying, I was permitted to pet him on the divan in the livingroom, while he snuggled close to my wife. But he comes to me for food when I eat breakfast from a tray. He will take food from my hands, but runs with it to some spot where he can see the Mistress, before daring to eat it.

Some readers, condemning me for my lack of love for the late Commander-in-Chief, say that Guru, wouldn't act that way if I were a humane person, admiring Alger Hiss, Secretary Acheson, and all the dark spirits upon whom Mr. Acheson refuses to turn his back. I think this is attacking me from the rear. Poor little Guru has no opinions as to why his counterpart, Henry Wallace, recently raced for the bandwagon. I love Guru Jones, but not Wallace. I hope he falls off the bandwagon, already overcrowded, and breaks his necklace.

Now, a blond cocker puppy might be a good companion to Jones. He might cheer him up. He might convince Toby-Guru that the Master doesn't beat doggies. I'm almost persuaded, as the old hymn used to say.

Guru likes to play with the neighboring dogs. He knows that he is too weak to fight. He butters up his larger friends, and is very friendly to puppies. He will bite big boxers on the ankles, only because he knows they will not pay any attention.

Well, Mr. Stewart, thanks for your offer. We'll have lots of pleasure discussing it. I hope you avoid too much in-breeding in your Georgia cockers.

And this reminds me that a radio emcee who gives away many prizes, includes a cocker span'l in the list of gifts. Poor man. Does he not know that the dog is worthy of his name: spaniel?

BASCOM TIMMONS

It is more than a possibility that President Truman has made a point and lost a fight by mixing it with the U. S. Marines Corps in the now celebrated episode which revolved around his sharp resentment of a congressman's suggestion that the marines should be represented on the joint chiefs of staff.

Nine people out of ten did not know that the marines were not represented on the J. C. S. and probably cared less. But the point is important, and should be explained. It's an off record fight, that has gone on since World War II, and some of its aspects are meaningful to every youth who goes into combat service.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff determine the overall policy for armed service action in Korea or wherever else it may be necessary.

Since the marine corps is by law a part of the Navy, and operates under army command in land operation, the chief of naval operations speaks for it in deliberations of the joint chiefs, with overtones from the chief of staff of the army.

The issue over direct representation for the marine corps stems from island hopping technique of World War II, originated and carried out chiefly by the marines. Their divisions had been trained for months in amphibious landing with the knowledge that when the day arrived, the navy's guns would give the artillery preparation. But on that, the marines had to yield to the navy's judgment. It has been repeatedly charged that at Tarawa, second of the marine landing operations, the marine commander begged the admiral commanding the fleet for one hour more of bombardment before the landing, but was brusquely refused, because the admiral was convinced that "there can't be a Jap left alive on that island".

When the marines landed on Nov. 21, 1943, there were quite a few Japs left—the marines killed more than 5,000 of them and suffered more than 3,000 casualties in four days themselves. A similar difference of opinion was reported at Pelieu, where army commanders ordered an attack against objections of marine commanders, and many more marines were killed in an action now conceded to have been fruitless. The island, after capture proved to be of no particular strategic importance.

The marines simply claim that they know more about amphibious landings, island fighting and the training for those operations than either the army and navy, because that is all they practice at their big coastal bases. Now, with the operation in Korea, new differences of opinion are cropping up, despite the progress made toward unification. Some veteran marines say they don't care about representation on the joint chiefs, if they could persuade the chief of naval operations to grant them more latitude in planning ship to shore operations, which are quite likely to become necessary in Korea.

President Truman still holds to the idea that the marines are a landing force entirely under navy direction until they pass to control of the army. Since the country has awakened to the fact that the marines haven't much of a voice in the direction of their own fighting, those bills in congress to give them representations on the joint chiefs are expected to move. And if the proposal should pass, would President Truman veto it?

Industry's Part In War

Possibly one good reason for hesitancy on Russia's part to attack this country directly is the unquestionable certainty that the Kremlin knows the extent of American industrial capacity far better than the average American. Following are reports of leaders in key industries:

Steel: "Today we have more capacity than all the rest of the world put together. Since the last war started, we have built as much new steel capacity as existed in Germany when that war began. This excess capacity is sufficient to meet the present demand." Clarence B. Randall, president of Inland Steel Co.

Rubber: "Today we have not one but two raw materials —natural and synthetic rubber. Before World War II we could turn 85,000 tons of rubber into finished products each month. Now we can process 110,000 tons a month. Before World War II our industry had about 150,000 employes. Today, we have over 200,000." Harry E. Humphreys, Jr., president of United States Rubber Co.

Oil: "There is no need for rationing, even if military demand expands substantially from present levels. Since the end of the last war, the petroleum industry has increased its capacity by more than 25 per cent." Dr. Robert E. Wilson, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Co. (Indiana).

Electric Power: "Right now the electric utility industry has one-third more generating capacity than at the end of the last war, and by the end of 1953 will have three-quarters more." Louis V. Sutton, president of the Carolina Power and Light Co.

Textiles: "With cotton and synthetic-fiber production far ahead of last year, there will be plenty of clothing available in the coming months. Total output of broad woven goods made of cotton is expected to exceed last year's production by 1,500,000,000 square yards." Donald Comer, chairman of the board of Avondale Mills.

Machine Tools: "The industry has far larger capacity than at the start of the second war and could be expanded to meet twice the present demand." Charles J. Stilwell, president of Warner and Swasey Co.

Food: "There is absolutely no reason for panic buying of foods. We have a more abundant supply on hand than ever before." Morris Sayre, president of the Corn Products Refining Co.

In response to queries of officials charged with the task of insuring the nation's security, American industry has virtually said to the government, "Tell us what you want—we can fill the order."

The Scapegoat Steps Out

Louis Johnson's resignation as secretary of defense may lighten the storm of criticism which has been buffeting the Truman administration since it first became apparent that our country was not properly prepared to enter the war in Korea and that our Far Eastern foreign policy had been badly bungled.

The administration has sorely needed a scapegoat. And that is what Louis Johnson has become.

Upon him is being heaped blame which others should share or bear entirely.

He has received blame for action or inaction in cases where he was following orders. Much of the criticism which has come his way arose from the armed forces unification program, which he directed energetically and effectively under a clear mandate from congress. In this program he was strongly opposed by the navy and marine corps opposition which had begun to subside, however, before the Korean war started.

Only a few short weeks before the fighting in Korea began, President Truman himself said that prospects for peace were brighter than they had been in months. He had expressed similar optimism over the international outlook earlier in 1950 and in 1949.

This optimism on the part of the president was mistaken. It unquestionably played a part in our unreadiness to deal with the North Korean invasion.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson announced in January, with President Truman's approval, that the American defense line in the Far East would extend southward from Japan through the Philippines, leaving both Korea and Formosa beyond the line of this defense declaration.

Furthermore, with the state department in full charge in South Korea, and General MacArthur excluded from any phase of policy there, armament which should have been sent to the South Korean forces was withheld. Owen Lattimore said that we should let South Korea fall to the Reds, without appearing to do so. The whole situation as engineered by the state department invited a North Korean attack.

Thoughtful Americans, aware of these facts and of Secretary Acheson's part in turning China over to the Red armies, will say that Secretary Acheson should have been the first man to step out of the Truman cabinet. Upon his shoulders rests far more blame for our tragic losses in Korea than can rightly be placed on the shoulders of Louis Johnson.

It is proper to say, too, that some members of congress and some leaders of the military should share blame for our military unreadiness for the Korean episode. They held to the theory that the nation should not maintain a large military establishment, constantly in readiness. Money was provided for unceasing research. A program of preparing industrial plants for quick conversion to the manufacture of latest possible weapons was adopted.

This, it was felt, would give the nation adequate defense without creating an unbearable tax burden. The assumption al along ws tht w would hv tim to ssmbl nwl , : all along was that we would have time to assemble a new army, make new weapons, expand the air fleets and take the navy out of mothballs—that, as in World Wars I and II, we could win by building up great strength rather than having great strength at the start.

This plan was not just Louis Johnson's. It was widely approved both in and out of the government. It seemed a rational way to carry on the "cold war." The risks which this program obviously contained bore the tag of "calculated risks."

There were many—not just Louis Johnson—who felt that the atomic bomb and the air force provided an adequate guarantee of security during the early stages of a war. The whole program of preparation was for a general war, rather than for the "police action" which bobbed up in Korea on a scale much more grim than any police action should be or is.

Of Louis Johnson let it be said that while he joined others in policies which turned out to be ill-fitted to the emergency which arose, his devotion to Americanism has never been questioned. Louis Johnson has never run with the Reds and pinks of Washington.

Secretary Acheson's bungling, his refusal to turn his back on Alger Hiss and his long association with a policy of appeasement of Red Russia are far greater liabilities to the Truman administration than anything Secretary Johnson did or failed to do.

If the president's cabinet is to be put on a true war footing, along with the rest of the country, then Secretary Acheson should be called upon to resign, and soon.

WALTER WINCHELL

By Jack Lait
Walter Winchell On Vacation

Columning for a living is no sinecure. But it produces its rewarding experiences, with insights int. the suppressed longings of our fellowfolk.

Foremost is revealed the extravagant ambitions in the hearts of little people to change the world.

Nothing could be more healthy than to find citizens eager to uplift and improve life. But I feel that if we all did our little bit we would achieve more in the long run than will ever come of each of us nurturing theories and plans for quick turn over of institutions, even nations.

You would think that such flighty fancies would come from the young, the callow cubs who dream of overpowering the perils that beset mankind with impulsive solutions at the ages and stages when we all project ourselves in imagination as prodigies.

That is not so. Most of the petulant plans for peace on earth, spreading the gospel, unhorsing the dictators, hanging the traitors, putting supermen in high office, eradicating crime and greed and lust, etc., flow from the elderly letterwriters, men and women who have lived long enough to realize that processes of progress are slow and uncertain.

And most of the schemes involve violence.

You would be surprised at the number of Americans, trembling with terror over the possibility of A-bombs being set off on us, who think the best defense would be to destroy those whom they fear with those devastating weapons now—wipe them out—do unto others what they're afraid the others might do unto them.

I surmise most of these good people felt entirely obsolved after row or felt entirely absolved after catching a fish.

The Democrats want curbs against the Republicans and vice versa. They regard the presidential veto as final and right or as interference and mulish mischief, according to their views—and interests.

Minorities—at least those of them who feel strongly enough to get out paper, pen and postage—are pugnaciously militant.

Majorities regard them as selfish upstarts who care nothing for the country, only for the racial, geographical, old world or social brackets individual to themselves.

Tolerance—a much overworked word—is for the other guy.

To the victor belong the spoils—that is the conviction of all but the losers.

I handle some controversial subjects. So I drew panegyrics and jeremiads. I am brave, wise, inspired; or I am a bully taking advantage of my circulation, prejudiced, boss-controlled, looking to get something, or just simple-minded.

All this doesn't alarm me. People are like that. They want to hold what they have and to get more. Their rooted loyalties and enmities are not subject to reason and back of it all is fear, rather than original cruelty.

In this paradise of plenty there is a surging undercurrent of insecurity.

This is not only physical and economic. It is actuated by uncertainty about sociological factors, political potentialities and petty mundane matters.

Some of his trepidation is not without sound foundation. In the brief life of our nation some tremendous changes have eventuated. Taxes and pressure for leveling off inqualities and radical revaluations of human relations have brought us a long distance from "the good old days."

The "haves"—not only as to property—have resisted, as they always will, against encroachments. The prolific disinherited and under privileged will keep fighting. And those conditions spark urges for short cuts with drastic means for fast fruition.

Such impetuous impatience breeds Klans, Mafias, lynchings, bunds, splinter parties, boycotts, general strikes, and, when swollen to great proportions at propitious times and with combinations of collateral circumstances, revolutions.

History has proven all these dangerous, though some have turned out salutary. The revolts in America, elsewhere on this and adjoining continents and in France have brought blessings. The Spanish revolution is a matter for bitter disagreement still. The Russian uprising was an incalcuable tragedy, though it upset a regime not worth saving. That the triumphant proletariat established inhuman totalitarianism beyond the arrogant dream of any czar has proven the overthrow of governments in the name of "the people" is not always a guarantee of the good life. Other popular victories have led to slavery.

Yet so many, I find, are for sudden turnovers, by any means. But I still have faith in the orderly, slower approaches toward the ultimate Utopia. I never write letters to columnists.

William E. Gilroy, D. D.:

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

That was what Paul, above all things, was — a great Christian. He was the first, after his Master, to look out upon humanity with world-wide vision, and a clear, deep, and profound faith in "the glorious gospel of the grace of God," and a passion to declare the good news of that gospel to all men, everywhere, to the very ends of the earth.

As it was, he covered a great part of the world of his time, for he was an indefatiguable traveler, and had he lived long enough, he would undoubtedly have accomplished the fullness of his mission. What he began, in heading westward, and bringing Christianity to Europe, others have continued, in a great line of earnest missionaries. But we owe a great debt to Saint Paul, for, through him, first of all, Christianity came to us.

The faith and vision that sent this determined and heroic man to so great a mission, he himself has very clearly defined. Said he (II Corinthians 5:17): "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new." It was in that faith in the power of the gospel of Christ to bring such new life to any man, that he conceived and carried out his mission.

It is an interesting fact that though Paul was the last of the Apostles to arrive—(he was really the twelfth, taking the place of Judas), though the others had rather hastily appointed Matthias (Acts 1:26), of whom nothing further is known)—we know more about Paul than about any other of the Apostles. This is due to the fact that Luke has told the story of Paul's missionary journeys in the book of Acts, which includes the biographical details of Paul's speeches; and, in addition, Paul himself wrote so much in the Epistles that has come down to us.

In all these records are the evidences of what manner of man he was, what he thought, what he did; and shining through all is the indomitable spirit, the heroism of a man whom no persecution, no hardship, no opposition could swerve from his purpose.

Men are not agreed about these records. Some see in Paul a hard theologian, who made an elaborate affair out of a simple gospel, and in some quarters the cry has been heard, "Back to Jesus," meaning back to Jesus from Paul.

But, if we go back to Jesus, we would have to go back with Paul, for the historic Jesus, who proclaimed the gospel of God's grace, some things hard to understand, was for Paul the great established fact in history, around which centered all his purpose and being.

Peter said that Paul wrote some things hard to understand, and some of us might be confused as was Peter by Paul's occasional long and abstruse arguments.

But to all who would know the real Paul, and appreciate his greatness, apart from the more difficult passages, I commend your attention to a few among the many clear, plain, wonderful things that Paul wrote, such as: I Corinthians 1:13; Romans 12; I Corinthians 3; Ephesians 3:14-21; Romans 8:33-39. Search the many others out for yourself.

George E. Sokolsky:

THE NEW YORK MANNER

The Democrats in New York State would have nominated James Farley to the governorship had he been willing to accept, but the genial Jim is not politicking that way. It is interesting that he had the courage to denounce the current method of balancing Catholic, Protestant and Jew on the tickets of both parties. He said outright that it was un-American to play it that way, nevertheless, that is the way it is being played.

The Democratic candidate, Walter Lynch, a member of the house of representatives, is hardly known outside the Bronx. In fact, he is not too well-known, outside of political circles, even in the Bronx. That in no way infers that he is incapable of being governor of the largest state in the union; but it is likely to mitigate against his election.

Three factors make it difficult for him to achieve his ambitions:

1. Judge Albert Conway, a jurist of outstanding repute, who was to have been nominated, was thrown off the ticket by Louis Hollander, state head of the C. I. O., who accused Judge Conway of being anti-labor, anti-Negro and just a niche above Robert A. Taft. The charges were false but effective.

In Democratic circles, the question arises: Who inspired Louis Hollander to make such charges about so reputable a man? Until that question is answered, many Democrats will vote against the candidate of the Bronx boss, Ed Flynn. And as long as it is believed that Herbert Lehman was in on the deal, a great many Democrats will stay away from the polling booths.

2. As a member of congress for 12 years, Lynch has been a faceless representative, voting strictly as a rubber stamp. Ordinarily, this would have stood him in good stead in a state where organization politics helps a candidate.

But th. Korean war is raising many questions regarding national and international policies, and the new deal and the fair deal (why these are cited separately, I don't know) are not as popular as they used to be. There is much explaining to do, and Herbert Lehman's opposition to the McCarran anti-Communist bill will not get him the Communist or left-wing vote.

3. Thomas E. Dewey has never been a popular man but he has always been respected for his competence, efficiency and integrity. The voters of the state are accustomed to what is generally called his "coldness," which sometimes gives the impression of egocentricity, but they like his achievements, his hard work and the decency of his administration, which compares favorably with much that happens in Washington as well as New York City.

Mr. Lynch will have difficulty in attacking that record. On the other hand, Lynch will be supported by the so-called Liberal party, which is a mildly socialist outfit managed by David Dubinsky and adequately financed. This group has, in the past, been able to poll about 400,000 votes. They may do better than that in this campaign because many who used to vote for the Communists on the vehicle of the American Labor party may vote the Liberal party as the easiest way to soothe their progressive consciences.

Nevertheless, at this stage, nobody doubts that Thomas E. Dewey will be re-elected as governor. Whether he will be able to carry Joe Hanley, his former lieutenant-governor, into the United States senate against Herbert Lehman is not so certain.

Until a week before the Republican convention, Hanley was the candidate for governor and the Republicans expected to be defeated. He removed himself to make room for Thomas E. Dewey and was given the senatorial nomination. However, Lehman is a wonderful vote-gatherer by the New York device of playing the minorities. And there are a large number of minorities in New York and they all have votes. The very factors in Herbert Lehman's record which would damage him in other parts of the country, serve him well in this cosmopolitan state. So, he may win.

Against him is a weariness with what someone called "the men of Yalta." It was this idea which eliminated Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., and Oscar Ewing. It is the idea that there has been something very wrong during the past 10 years and that men associated with power during that decade are not electable.

I should not be surprised if this becomes the issue of the 1950 campaign.

OUR CHILDREN

NORMAL PATTERN

Should a widow try to keep her only son, now in his early twenties, from marriage, justifying the idea on the basis that singleness will save him from the trials and tribulations of a married life? Should she deliberately set out to do this because she thinks she and her son could be ideally happy living together as they do now?

Marriage is the normal healthy way of life for men and women. It is based on Nature's laws, sustained by Man's laws, approved by the people and supported by the spiritual, religious forces of society. It is futile in the face of such forces for anybody, man or woman to fight against marriage for young people. They ought to marry as soon as they are in a position to do so.

Instead of trying to teach the children to remain single it would be better to teach them how to choose their mates, how to live happily with them. That will take all the teaching, all the power experience has to bring to bear for this is a field in which nobody but the two concerned can have the final word.

It is natural for a mother to cling to her son but it is also natural, indeed, it is imperative, for that son, or daughter, to grow away from mother and home to build a home of his own and rear his family in it. As he ought to do.

Wise parents accept this and try to prepare the children and themselves for this separation. As soon as the adolescent boy or girl begins to show a preference for one of the opposite sex it is time for the parents to get ready and do what they can to ready the child in question.

It must be remembered that the chosen one is not likely to follow the ideal pattern the parents have in mind. Youth is the time to experiment a bit in the search for a mate, and this is what boys and girls do. They "go" with one friend for a time, then another. The more the better, for only by knowing many boys and girls can they know the sort they get on with best. The only thing a parent can do is to be friendly with all of them. Watch and wait, giving advice when asked and as little as possible then.

When the choice is set the only thing to do is to be friendly with the new member of the family. Friendship, in time, becomes love. The mother afraid of losing her son should remember that she married and had this boy. Was that so bad? And she ought to know that the quickest way to lose him is to try binding him to her for life. Help him to marry and so have two affectionate children where there was but one before. It is life. Make the best of it.

Baby must be handled with steady hands to give him confidence in you. Some excellent advice on this subject is included in Dr. Patri's leaflet P-17, "Tending Baby with a Sure Hand." To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to him, c/o this paper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

New York Day By Day

New York — A brief look at the mail. John Stewart, Brunswick, Ga. (that's close to the Marshes of Glynn, if my memory has not gone haywire) writes a friendly letter which nevertheless disturbs me.

After telling me how much he and Mrs. Stewart like the column, he inquires about my health and asks whether I ever miss a day. Answer: in approximately 40 years of daily writing, I have never missed a deadline. My health has been good, bad, and everything in between. In February, 1949, I was gravely ill, and for two days a friend wrote the column. That did not constitute a break in the service, but it nearly broke my heart, because my friend wrote two really good columns.

John Stewart operates a cocker spaniel kennel on Blythe Island, Brunswick. He offers to send me, in token of his appreciation of these writings, a cocker of any color.

My wife and I have been discussing this kind offer. That woman can hardly turn down a dog. Still, our poor little Guru Jones-dog is such a pathetic case, and we love him so dearly, that we both hesitate to take in another dog, who sure would share our affections.

We talk about it. Guru is coal black, handsome, pure-bred, inbred, and not too bright. He permits me to pet him, and goes to sleep with his chin on my knee, in the car, provided my wife is at the wheel. Once recently, after three years of gentle trying, I was permitted to pet him on the divan in the livingroom, while he snuggled close to my wife. But he comes to me for food when I eat breakfast from a tray. He will take food from my hands, but runs with it to some spot where he can see the Mistress, before daring to eat it.

Some readers, condemning me for my lack of love for the late Commander-in-Chief, say that Guru, wouldn't act that way if I were a humane person, admiring Alger Hiss, Secretary Acheson, and all the dark spirits upon whom Mr. Acheson refuses to turn his back. I think this is attacking me from the rear. Poor little Guru has no opinions as to why his counterpart, Henry Wallace, recently raced for the bandwagon. I love Guru Jones, but not Wallace. I hope he falls off the bandwagon, already overcrowded, and breaks his necklace.

Now, a blond cocker puppy might be a good companion to Jones. He might cheer him up. He might convince Toby-Guru that the Master doesn't beat doggies. I'm almost persuaded, as the old hymn used to say.

Guru likes to play with the neighboring dogs. He knows that he is too weak to fight. He butters up his larger friends, and is very friendly to puppies. He will bite big boxers on the ankles, only because he knows they will not pay any attention.

Well, Mr. Stewart, thanks for your offer. We'll have lots of pleasure discussing it. I hope you avoid too much in-breeding in your Georgia cockers.

And this reminds me that a radio emcee who gives away many prizes, includes a cocker span'l in the list of gifts. Poor man. Does he not know that the dog is worthy of his name: spaniel?

IMPOUNDED SPANISH LOAN

Aside from the substance of the issue of a loan to Spain, previously considered in an Editors' Roundtable discussion, a rather large minority of editors feel that President Truman has the authority, in direction of foreign policy, to impound the loan for Spain voted by congress. But editors, in substantial majority, consider the issue raised by Mr. Truman's impounding of the loan an unsettled constitutional question to which some answer should be found. A small minority feels definitely now that such procedure is against our theory of government.

New Bedford (Mass.) Standard-Times (Ind.): "The issue of whether the president can ignore any part of an act of congress after he has given that act his approval has arisen in the case of the $62,500,000 loan to Spain. Congress knew Mr. Truman was opposed to such a loan, but voted it in the general appropriations bill. . . . Congress acted on the ground that Spain would be a strong bulwark against Soviet Russia in resisting the spread of communism. . . . The position taken by congress is sound. The president should act in accordance with it, instead of trying to find legal grounds for refusing to make a loan."

Christian Science Monitor (Ind.): "It may be that Mr. Truman knows some congressmen who voted for the loan out of fear of pro-Franco voting blocs would be glad to have him take the responsibility for blocking it. It is true that by including the loan with appropriations which are essential to keep the government in operation congress denied Mr. Truman any real look like a virtual invitation to chance to veto the loan. That may him to use other powers of the executive to block it, but when a president flouts the purpose of congress he is on shaky ground."

St. Paul (Minn.) Dispatch (Ind.): "Mr. Truman feels that Franco is the subject of so much controversy, particularly in France and Italy, that the granting of an American loan to his government would be unwise. . . . Presidents have withheld funds authorized by congress before, without challenge. There is some doubt whether the president can legally withhold funds appropriated by congress. But the loan to Spain is not a direct appropriation. . . . All of which may leave the advocates of aid to Spain with a hollow victory."

St. Louis (Mo.) Post Dispatch (Ind.-Dem.): "Whether the means Mr. Truman is using against the Spanish loan are as good as his purpose remains to be seen. . . . There can be little question as to what congress thought it was doing when it passed the Franco loan amendment. It 'directed' the Export-Import Bank to lend the money to Franco. It made the loan just as mandatory as it knew how. . . . But the president says he will regard the amendment merely as an authorization; he will impound the $62,500,000 . . . Perhaps a court test will be necessary."

Philadelphia (Pa.) Bulletin (Ind.) "Such impounding power would seem to amount in practice to the exercise of a selective veto, commonly held to be not within presidential power. The Hoover commission has recommended that the impounding power be tested, and either confirmed or denied. In issues between co-ordinate branches of government the supreme court, a third co-ordinate branch, seems powerless to intervene. They are apt to settle down to an endurance contest, one side seeking to tire the other out. A loan to Spain has been a matter of keen controversy. The president's action may send it into a new stage. . . ."

New Orleans (La.) Times-Picayune (Ind.-Dem.): "In firmly opposing the loan-to-Spain rider (in the appropriations bill) . . . President Truman reasserted the executive's traditional right to act as the sole 'voice' of foreign policy. . . . While a good case could be made to deny that the loan—which attaches no conditions to financial aid to Franco—is either good business or would help U. S. foreign policy, the major issue raised properly by Mr. Truman is that dealing with the president's traditional right to initiate foreign policy."

Hartford (Conn.) Courant Rep.): "Since agencies concerned with the loan are under Mr. Truman's direction, he could make it very difficult for Spain to spend the money even without impounding it. All this runs contrary to our theory of government. Control of the purse strings was placed in congress, specifically in the house whose members are most frequently of all officials held accountable to the electorate. Who is the president of the United States to thwart the will of the legislative body by any power other than that of his legal veto? . . . This situation has nothing to do with the issues raised by the loan."

Negro Girl Admits Slaying Of 6 Babies

Danielsville, Ga., Sept. 16.—(AP)—A 14-year-old Negro girl is being held in the Madison county jail here today after officers said she confessed to the slaying of six Negro babies in two years.

Deputy Sheriff Fred Booth identified the girl as Ezzie Daniels and said she lived with her family on a farm near Ila. Three of the babies were her brothers and sisters and the other three were children of her sister.

Deputy Booth said the oldest baby was 14 months old and the others ranged from six to eight weeks of age. The last allegedly was slain last Sunday. All were strangled to death.

The officer quoted the girl as saying she strangled the babies because she tired of caring for them while other members of the family worked in the fields. He said one warrant had been issued charging her with murder.

REUNDANT

At 1 o'clock this morning, after 16 hours of making like Joe Executive, I finally climbed into bed, but instead of getting the sleep which refreshes, I whomped me up one heck of a nightmare. . . .

I was seated at my desk trying to figure out some new capers for my cabaret when the switchboard operator called down to say that a Miss McNeill wanted to see me.

"Tell her the chorus call is Friday," I said.

"This one has gray hair," said the phone girl, "and says you were one of her pupils in P. S. 44 back in 1910."

"Oh, that Miss McNeill. Why didn't you say so? Send her right down."

When the old schoolmarm walked in carrying her umbrella before her like a bayonet, I was standing behind my desk, shifting from one foot to the other.

"You may be seated, Billy," she said.

"It's a pleasure to see you again, Miss McNeill," I said. "Is there any little thing I can do for you—like getting a pair of tickets for 'South Pacific'?"

"You haven't changed much," said my old teacher. "You still talk too fast and don't know what to do with your hands. What's more, you look as guilty as ever."

"Yes ma'am," I said, turning a neon pink. "I mean, no ma'am. I mean I'm not looking guilty. All my relatives use their eyes sideways like this, it runs in the family. Anyhow, this is certainly an unexpected surprise."

"Redundant as usual," said Miss McNeill reproachfully. "If a thing is a surprise it can't be expected. But let me explain why I'm here. Several years ago I finally gave up teaching, and ever since it's been a hobby of mine to call on my old pupils and see whether they remember any of the things I taught them."

"I'm sure I remember most of what I learned," I said.

"Splendid," said the schoolmarm. "Suppose, for a start, you tell me the capital of Oregon."

"Portland," I said.

"Wrong," said Miss McNeill. "It's Salem. Let's try again. Can you tell me what happened in 1501?"

"You mean 1501 Broadway?" I bad-joked. "That's the Paramount Building where Bob Hope grossed a hundred grand in a week."

"Smart-alecky as ever," said Miss McNeill. "How's your arithmetic? If you were to divide a hundred dollars by six and seven eighths, what would you get?"

"Search me," I said, "but it certainly wouldn't be enough for that pair of tickets to 'South Pacific.'"

My old teacher sighed. "How do you keep track of your accounts?" she asked.

"I don't," I said. "Ive got a bookkeeper."

"And I suppose your secretary does your spelling for you."

"Pretty much," I said. "In my book, a spelling bee is an educated insect."

"William Rose," said the old schoolmarm, "it's evident that you have forgotten everything I ever taught you. Especially your grammar. I read your column occasionally, and you consistently use 'that' when you mean 'which,' and vice versa."

"I wish you would straighten me out on that," I said, "so I could tip off the other columnists who use 'that' every whichway."

The old girl shook her head sadly. "I guess I'd better be going," she said. "Anyhow, it was nice seeing you again."

"Likewise," I fibbed. "I'll have the receptionist show you out."

"Gracious!" said Miss McNeill. "Can't you even find your way out of your own office?"

As we waited for the elevator, the old lady patted me on the head. "Be kind to those around you," she said. "Lord knows what you'd do without them."

I went back to my office and picked up a phone which was ringing like crazy. Before I could answer it, however, someone began to shake me, and when I blinked my eyes open, I saw it was Eleanor.

"You've been sleeping like a zombie," said my wife. "The alarm's been going for at least a minute."

"I thought it was the phone," I said. "I've been having a nightmare."

"Do you want me to fix you some orange juice?" asked Eleanor.

"Thanks, darling," I said, "but this morning I'd kind of like to squeeze the oranges myself."

He had a fair idea what the Chinese themselves, with their remarkable sense of humor, thought about it.

In Germany where extra powerful radio equipment is being installed at Munich to hit eastern Germany and Russia, Germans are reported as saying they like the entertainment programs for American troops (which are in English, of course) but when the Voice comes on, they turn off the radio because none of the commentators speak German very well. And the poor Koreans, with lots of trouble in their own back yard, are reported to have said that the Voice was "butchering" their language.

NON-FARM WORK SHOWING GAIN

State Labor Dept. Reports Monroe Area Increased To 19,700 In August

Non-farm employment in the Monroe labor market area (Ouachita parish) increased from 19,500 in July to 19,700 in August.

Of the total gain in workers 175 were reported in manufacturing firms and 25 in non-manufacturing industries.

Total female employment in the area remained unchanged between July and August.

Unemployment declined from 1,900 in July to 1,700 in August, which is the lowest level reached this year.

Further declines in unemployment are forecast during the next two months, due to increased activity in several local industries, and to demand for seasonal farm workers during the cotton harvest.

Employers indicate that at least 175 more workers will be on their payrolls by October.

Placements made by the Monroe office of the Louisiana division of employment security increased from 321 in June to 332 in July, and to 348 in August.

The supply of workers has decreased but appears adequate to meet the demand during the next 60 days.

DOWN SOUTH

HOPALONG OR HOMEWORK?

As some of our southern communities get ready for the coming of television this fall, it would be well for the citizens of these communities to get some idea of what's in store for them. Television has now been in use long enough in the larger centers, particularly in the north and east, for us to get a pretty good impression of what it means in our daily lives.

There is one thing at least that both advocates and critics of television would agree on—that it is here to stay. Manufacturers expect to turn out just about five and one-half million sets during this calendar year—and that is a total of one and one-third million more sets than were in use altogether last January 1st. Furthermore, until the threat of limited production along these lines was brought on by the Korean war, it was estimated that production next year might run to ten millionsets.

But let's take a look at the impressions gained by those who have been using television for some time. A recent cartoon in a New York paper showed a house in flames and the family escaping. The parents had armfuls of personal valuables; the children were lugging the television set out the front door. That typifies the position television is taking in the American home as the center of family life.

Advocates of television argue that it is re-establishing the family circle. Surveys, they say, show that parents who went to the movies once a week go only once a month after television is installed, and that children go only half as much as they used to.

Critics admit this—but they say, look at that family circle! It is in a darkened room with eyes strained at a twelve-inch screen. They say the children and the parents in television homes read fewer books fewer magazines, fewer newspapers; that homework takes scond place to Hopalong Cassidy; that mother never darns or sews any more because she can't watch a wrestling match and darn the old man's socks at the same time, and that efforts to iron the weekly wash and watch television result in unprecedented quantities of scorched shirts and underwear. They say that the nation's eyesight is deteriorating; that the choice is now between Channel X and 20-20 vision, and you can't have both.

But regardless of all this argument back and forth, it is agreed that television is here to stay and that family habits are being changed threby—and we all know that once American family habits change, they stay changed. Big advertisers are turning to television who have heretofore viewed it with skepticism. Television shows of sports attractions are being shown in movie theaters. There is much discussion of the effect of television upon attendance at these sports attractions; large sums of money are involved, and our own Southeastern College conference has turned thumbs down on television of its football games.

On the entertainment side of television, it is complained that the programs leave much to be desired. It is said that they are too much like the 1950 version of the nickelodeon — the peepshow that preceded the silent film. As for the children, they get by eye much the same programs they got by ear from the radio. Their current craze, Hopalong Cassidy, has been made immensely wealthy by cashing in on his television popularity. But there seems to be considerable question as to the "elevating influence" of a majority of the childrens' programs. As one writer or television said recently, if a youngster "can't commit a crime without botching the job, its only because the parent had not had the set turned on long enough".

Let's hope that the fact that television is reaching some parts of the south a little late means that at least these communities shall have escaped a few of its growing pains.

ISRAELIS LIKE ICE CREAM

Tel Aviv, Israel.—(AP)—Business not only is rushing at an American-style ice cream shop in Tel Aviv—it's out of hand. Israelis, from 10 a.m. to midnight daily, push their way in and out of "The Penguin." Its the only place in all Israel where one can buy milk shakes, ice cream sodas, popcorn, waffles, and sandwiches made of Israeli bologna. All that's lacking is hamburgers. They're not available because of meat shortages. An enterprising young Jewish immigrant from New York started the business. He never has a dull moment handling thousands of customers daily.

Vancouver —(AP)— Pedestrians looking at a large outdoor thermometer here were startled to see the indicator sweep from 120 degrees down to zero and back again in a few seconds. Officials said it wasn't the weather, just a jammed switch.

He had a fair idea what the Chinese themselves, with their remarkable sense of humor, thought about it.

In Germany where extra powerful radio equipment is being installed at Munich to hit eastern Germany and Russia, Germans are reported as saying they like the entertainment programs for American troops (which are in English, of course) but when the Voice comes on, they turn off the radio because none of the commentators speak German very well. And the poor Koreans, with lots of trouble in their own back yard, are reported to have said that the Voice was "butchering" their language.

NON-FARM WORK SHOWING GAIN

State Labor Dept. Reports Monroe Area Increased To 19,700 In August

Non-farm employment in the Monroe labor market area (Ouachita parish) increased from 19,500 in July to 19,700 in August.

Of the total gain in workers 175 were reported in manufacturing firms and 25 in non-manufacturing industries.

Total female employment in the area remained unchanged between July and August.

Unemployment declined from 1,900 in July to 1,700 in August, which is the lowest level reached this year.

Further declines in unemployment are forecast during the next two months, due to increased activity in several local industries, and to demand for seasonal farm workers during the cotton harvest.

Employers indicate that at least 175 more workers will be on their payrolls by October.

Placements made by the Monroe office of the Louisiana division of employment security increased from 321 in June to 332 in July, and to 348 in August.

The supply of workers has decreased but appears adequate to meet the demand during the next 60 days.

Thurman Sensing,

Director of Research, Southern States Industrial Council:

HOPALONG OR HOMEWORK?

As some of our southern communities get ready for the coming of television this fall, it would be well for the citizens of these communities to get some idea of what's in store for them. Television has now been in use long enough in the larger centers, particularly in the north and east, for us to get a pretty good impression of what it means in our daily lives.

There is one thing at least that both advocates and critics of television would agree on—that it is here to stay. Manufacturers expect to turn out just about five and one-half million sets during this calendar year—and that is a total of one and one-third million more sets than were in use altogether last January 1st. Furthermore, until the threat of limited production along these lines was brought on by the Korean war, it was estimated that production next year might run to ten millionsets.

But let's take a look at the impressions gained by those who have been using television for some time. A recent cartoon in a New York paper showed a house in flames and the family escaping. The parents had armfuls of personal valuables; the children were lugging the television set out the front door. That typifies the position television is taking in the American home as the center of family life.

Advocates of television argue that it is re-establishing the family circle. Surveys, they say, show that parents who went to the movies once a week go only once a month after television is installed, and that children go only half as much as they used to.

Critics admit this—but they say, look at that family circle! It is in a darkened room with eyes strained at a twelve-inch screen. They say the children and the parents in television homes read fewer books fewer magazines, fewer newspapers; that homework takes scond place to Hopalong Cassidy; that mother never darns or sews any more because she can't watch a wrestling match and darn the old man's socks at the same time, and that efforts to iron the weekly wash and watch television result in unprecedented quantities of scorched shirts and underwear. They say that the nation's eyesight is deteriorating; that the choice is now between Channel X and 20-20 vision, and you can't have both.

But regardless of all this argument back and forth, it is agreed that television is here to stay and that family habits are being changed threby—and we all know that once American family habits change, they stay changed. Big advertisers are turning to television who have heretofore viewed it with skepticism. Television shows of sports attractions are being shown in movie theaters. There is much discussion of the effect of television upon attendance at these sports attractions; large sums of money are involved, and our own Southeastern College conference has turned thumbs down on television of its football games.

On the entertainment side of television, it is complained that the programs leave much to be desired. It is said that they are too much like the 1950 version of the nickelodeon — the peepshow that preceded the silent film. As for the children, they get by eye much the same programs they got by ear from the radio. Their current craze, Hopalong Cassidy, has been made immensely wealthy by cashing in on his television popularity. But there seems to be considerable question as to the "elevating influence" of a majority of the childrens' programs. As one writer or television said recently, if a youngster "can't commit a crime without botching the job, its only because the parent had not had the set turned on long enough".

Let's hope that the fact that television is reaching some parts of the south a little late means that at least these communities shall have escaped a few of its growing pains.

ISRAELIS LIKE ICE CREAM

Tel Aviv, Israel.—(AP)—Business not only is rushing at an American-style ice cream shop in Tel Aviv—it's out of hand. Israelis, from 10 a.m. to midnight daily, push their way in and out of "The Penguin." Its the only place in all Israel where one can buy milk shakes, ice cream sodas, popcorn, waffles, and sandwiches made of Israeli bologna. All that's lacking is hamburgers. They're not available because of meat shortages. An enterprising young Jewish immigrant from New York started the business. He never has a dull moment handling thousands of customers daily.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM

Vancouver — (AP) — Pedestrians looking at a large outdoor thermometer here were startled to see the indicator sweep from 120 degrees down to zero and back again in a few seconds. Officials said it wasn't the weather, just a jammed switch.

Freshmen under 21 years of age who are entering Tulane this fall are eligible for participation in the naval ROTC contract student program, Captain Edward T. Eves, professor of naval science said Saturday.

Contract students receive naval texts, uniforms, and equipment free for the first two years of their university work. During the latter two years they also receive approximately $30 per month ration allowance .

"The contract students are civilians under contract to the navy," said Eves. "They may receive regular navy commissions or marine corps commissions after graduation under certain conditions, but most become reserve officers.

"Contract students may follow nearly any program of the university," the captain said. "Men in this category are allowed to take competitive examinations for admission to the Naval Academy at Annapolis." he added.

"In addition to the educational opportunities," Eves said, "contract midshipmen are allowed to take a regular summer cruise aboard a naval vessel prior to graduation."

Tulane's naval ROTC program, begun in 1938, is one of the oldest in the nation. Captain Eves pointed out that many Tulane NROTC officers served in the last war and he said that some undoubtedly are now on duty in the far east. He urged interested young men to contact his office prior to the Sept. 20 registration date at Tulane.

NEW OIL WELLS COMING IN FAST

No Difficulty Seen In Meeting Military And Civilian Demand

By Max B. Skelton

Houston, Sept. 16.—(AP)—New oil wells are being completed at a record pace which industry spokesmen say must be maintained.

Most oilmen see no difficulty in the industry meeting heavy military and civilian demand for petroleum products unless a scarcity of materials forces cutbacks in drilling programs.

They want to make sufficient advance preparations to prevent a recurrence of 1942 should the nation once again be faced with a full-scale national emergency.

Domestic crude output in 1941 the year of Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor, was 3,841,700 barrels daily. The average dropped to 3,799,000 in 1942.

Despite the heavy military demand, it was not until 1943 domestic output began to climb. Daily output averaged 4,125,000 that year, and another 459,000 barrels were added in 1944 and 110,000 more in 1945.

Any setback in drilling operations probably would govern to a large degree the extent of gasoline rationing for civilians in event of another war.

The president of the National Petroleum Association this week was confident there will be no need for rationing of petroleum products in the near future.

W. S. Zehrung, Oil City, Pa., said at Atlantic City, N. J., there is plenty of oil for everyone.

Domestic crude output last week reached 5,908,830 barrels daily, a second consecutive weekly record. Barring a drop in the rate of new wells completed, the national daily average should be above the 6,000,000 sometime next month.

The oil and gas materials committee of the Independent Petroleum Association of America met in Fort Worth this week to study the steel supply outlook.

Bryan W. Payne, Tyler, Tex., committee chairman, said reports of shortages and maldistribution of steel supplies already are being reported by some oilmen.

Crude oil output should continue upward in October but possibly at a slower rate of climb.

Major purchasers of Texas crude have indicated their October's needs will be only 10,135 barrels daily above their September requirements. The bureau of mines predicted October Texas crude demand at 70,000 barrels daily over the September estimate.

ATTEND CHURCH TODAY IS URGED

Kiwanis' Campaign Gets Started Now; Public Urged To Cooperate

Co-operation of other service clubs in the "Go To Church Campaign," has been given by the sponsoring Kiwanis Club in their efforts along this line. Kiwanians, with the joint support of all pastors in Ouachita parish, have set September 17 to October 31 as the period in which the campaign will be in progress.

Supporters of church attendance urge that in times like the present it is even more necessary than in normal times to pay attention to things spiritual and that church attendance stands in the forefront.

Today and each Sunday in the next few weeks it is urged that those who have not been regular in attending church, renew their attendance and interest therein.

A commttee of well known men in various walks of life will aid in advancing the campaign. Posters in show windows tell the story of need for church attendance. There will be "ads" in the papers and the radio will carry the message into the homes.

On Monday, Rev. A. T. Mitchell will get a report from the churches as to attendance Sunday and it is hoped to show in each and every church that there are many who are responding to the call to be present in the sacred edifices on this holy day.

NEW OIL WELLS COMING IN FAST

No Difficulty Seen In Meeting Military And Civilian Demand

By Max B. Skelton

Houston, Sept. 16.—(AP)—New oil wells are being completed at a record pace which industry spokesmen say must be maintained.

Most oilmen see no difficulty in the industry meeting heavy military and civilian demand for petroleum products unless a scarcity of materials forces cutbacks in drilling programs.

They want to make sufficient advance preparations to prevent a recurrence of 1942 should the nation once again be faced with a full-scale national emergency.

Domestic crude output in 1941 the year of Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor, was 3,841,700 barrels daily. The average dropped to 3,799,000 in 1942.

Despite the heavy military demand, it was not until 1943 domestic output began to climb. Daily output averaged 4,125,000 that year, and another 459,000 barrels were added in 1944 and 110,000 more in 1945.

Any setback in drilling operations probably would govern to a large degree the extent of gasoline rationing for civilians in event of another war.

The president of the National Petroleum Association this week was confident there will be no need for rationing of petroleum products in the near future.

W. S. Zehrung, Oil City, Pa., said at Atlantic City, N. J., there is plenty of oil for everyone.

Domestic crude output last week reached 5,908,830 barrels daily, a second consecutive weekly record. Barring a drop in the rate of new wells completed, the national daily average should be above the 6,000,000 sometime next month.

The oil and gas materials committee of the Independent Petroleum Association of America met in Fort Worth this week to study the steel supply outlook.

Bryan W. Payne, Tyler, Tex., committee chairman, said reports of shortages and maldistribution of steel supplies already are being reported by some oilmen.

Crude oil output should continue upward in October but possibly at a slower rate of climb.

Major purchasers of Texas crude have indicated their October's needs will be only 10,135 barrels daily above their September requirements. The bureau of mines predicted October Texas crude demand at 70,000 barrels daily over the September estimate.

ATTEND CHURCH TODAY IS URGED

Kiwanis' Campaign Gets Started Now; Public Urged To Cooperate

Co-operation of other service clubs in the "Go To Church Campaign," has been given by the sponsoring Kiwanis Club in their efforts along this line. Kiwanians, with the joint support of all pastors in Ouachita parish, have set September 17 to October 31 as the period in which the campaign will be in progress.

Supporters of church attendance urge that in times like the present it is even more necessary than in normal times to pay attention to things spiritual and that church attendance stands in the forefront.

Today and each Sunday in the next few weeks it is urged that those who have not been regular in attending church, renew their attendance and interest therein.

A commttee of well known men in various walks of life will aid in advancing the campaign. Posters in show windows tell the story of need for church attendance. There will be "ads" in the papers and the radio will carry the message into the homes.

On Monday, Rev. A. T. Mitchell will get a report from the churches as to attendance Sunday and it is hoped to show in each and every church that there are many who are responding to the call to be present in the sacred edifices on this holy day.

U. S. Will Spark Move For Soft Japanese Peace Treaty

By Edward E. Bomar

Washington, Sept. 15.—(AP)— The United States is ready to press its ar-tie Pacific allies to accept a soft peace with Japan, without restrictions or rearmament or trade, and without reparations or indemnity.

Administration plans also call for retaining Okinawa as an American military base under a United Nations trusteeship, and, with Tokyo's consent, to keep American troops in Japan after the formal occupation is ended.

This American program was outlined today by responsible officials, following President Truman's statement that he has directed the state department to renew treaty preliminaries immediately with 12 other wartime foes of Japan. Soviet Russia is included.

If Moscow as widely expected continues to insist on a treaty dictated by the big powers alone, officials believe the non - Communist nations will agree to a separate peace settlement which would leave Japan in a technical state of war with Russia and in the western camp. Indications already have been received that Japanese leaders favor this course.

Some of the other countries already have been sounded out and their initial reaction to American plans appears to be favorable, reporters were told. Representatives of the others, including Russia, will be consulted over the next two months during the forthcoming session of the U. N. general assembly. The consultations will involve both secretary of State Acheson and John Foster Dulles, his Republican adviser, who has headed up the work on the treaty program.

The terms proposed by the United States for Japan contrast with those imposed on Italy and the eastern European allies of Hitler, which had to say reparations and were limited in the size of their armed forces.

However, it is proposed to strip Japan of Formosa however just as Italy was deprived of her colonies in Africa.

The administration program, shaped over the past six months, represents agreement between the state and defense departments over the future security of Japan and the defense interests of the U. S. and the western nations in Asia.

The adopted formula involves (1) retaining Okinawa (2) keeping American forces in Japan by consent, in the same manner that U. S. air forces are stationed in England. (3) permitting Japan to rearm gradually if the country decides to abandon its present no-arms policy, and (4) bringing the Japanese into the United Nations system of global peace and security.

The matter of keeping some U. S. troops in Japan, as "protective allies" rather than as conquerors, would be worked out by the United States and Japan, and would not be involved in the peace treaty proper.

Decisions on other questions involved in the treaty and Japan's future include:

1. Peace conference — whether to hold a conference, when and where, will be decided in consultations with the other allies.

2. China — The U. S. "at the present stage" will ignore Communist China and deal with the Nationalists.

3. Formosa — A tentative idea is to have the treaty strip the island from Japan and leave its ultimate disposition up to the U. N. The Ryukus Islands, including Okinawa, would be placed under U. N. trusteeship with the U. S. the administrator, permitting continued American use of Okinawa as a military base.

4. Economic — restrictions would be lifted entirely on normal Japanese production and trade. The Korean crisis and the resultant increased U. S. buying abroad promise to make Japan self-supporting soon, officials think. Before June the calculations were four or five years would be required. Forecasts are that Japan in the future can pay her way and raise her standard of living by building up trade without southeast Asia and other areas, without dependance on the Chinese mainland.

The proposed settlement contains no provision for permanent U. S. military bases in Japan, in the sense of bases which could be used for offensive purposes. Officials said what the U. S. wants above all is to prevent a "power vacuum" in Japan which might invite aggression from the Communist mainland.

Some opposition or criticism is looked for from Australia, the Philippines and Burma which suffered from Japanese aggression. They have been critical in the past of any move to permit Japan to emerge again as a military power. The Philippines has taken the lead in demanding heavy reparations payments.

Abandoning the Japanese no-arms policy, which is written into the Japanese constitution, is held by American officials to be a matter for the Japanese themselves. Premier Yoshida and other leaders were consulted by Dulles in Tokyo last June and are expected to be brought into further discussions. Japan currently is increasing her police forces from 125,000 to 200,000 men.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur was credited with making "important contributions" to the U. S. policy.

EXPERIMENTS IN EDUCATION HELD

A. L. Smith School Seeks Progress Along Most Modern Lines

By O. K. Bailey

Experimental work in education, so necessary for the schools to keep pace with the rapidly changing world in which we live, is being continued in a new phase at the A. L. Smith School, it is announced by O K. Bailey, principal.

Two years a program of instruction was initiated in human relations using the materials worked out by Dr. H. Edmund Bullis and others at the University of Delaware. The work in this field has been very successful. Last session a student council was organized, with representatives from the various grades, who met with the principal each week to assist in the solving of the many problems which the pupils and faculty face in a school program. The pupils received training in Democratic procedure, and many problems were adjusted that made for a happier and more successful school year.

The emphasis on the program this year will be improving home school relationship. At the call of the principal, 120 parents came to the school auditorium to discuss the following phases of the school program:

1. The school lunch program.
2. Reporting to parents on pupil progress.
3. Organization of parents study (discussion) groups on the grade level.

After a brief discussion the parents voted unanimously to contribute 10 cents per day for each child's lunch served. A lengthy discussion followed on the proposal to substitute scheduled parent-teacher conferences at regular intervals for the present system of reporting to parents by means of a report card. The proposal was new to most of the parents and many good questions were asked which helped to clarify the proposal. It was suggested that it be tried as an experiment for one year only, after which it would be evaluated and a future program planned on the basis of the evaluation. This system of reporting to parents has been in operation in a number of the schools throughout the country for as long as 12 years. The closest known school is the Demonstration School in connection with Louisiana State University Teachers College.

In this type of program no report cards at all are sent home to upset the parent and Johnnie. Instead a conference with every parent is scheduled at a convenient time, when the parent and teacher sit down at the teacher's desk, in complete privacy and discuss Johnnie's progress and problems. During the course of this discussion they prepare together Johnnie's future program, based on Johnnie's needs. In this manner the parent and the teacher are both kept informed on the child's problems at home and school, and by their joint planning enter into a compact or agreement to work together on the greatest needs in the child's life.

There are so many phases of the child's development that can not be shown by report cards that can be evaluated in the parent teacher conference. Such a program, planned on the basis on the individual child's needs would eliminate the undesirable competetive aspects of school life, and convince both the teacher and the parent of each's sincere interest in the child's welfare. The emphasis would then be on the partnership idea of parent and teacher. The emotional climate in which they worked would be considerably improved and each child would be more able to progress at his own rate.

For the first four days of the school session, school has been conducted in the morning only. During the afternoon the teachers have visited the homes of the children, a total of 89 visits have been made. Teachers have thus had an opportunity to become acquainted with the parents and assist in making any adjustments for the good of the child that were necessary.

The parents will meet with the faculty in a second meeting Tuesday night, September 26th, to further discuss the parent-teachers conference, after which eoch grade group will be given an opportunity to decide if they would like to participate in the experiment. Superintendent Avants has accepted an invitation to be present and participate in the discussion. All the school patrons, and others interested are urged to be present.

Plans are underway to organize parent study discussion groups on the grade level basis. This is strictly voluntary program, and discussions will be open on the pre-school level. Arrangements will be made for a series of meetings then on the first grade level, second grade level, etc. Motion pictures on child development, mental hygiene, etc., will constitute a part of the program.

With the rapid progress that is being made Mr. Salley, the contractor, on our new building it is believed that at least a part of these facilities will be available for the latter portion of this school year. Other phases of our school program will then be possible, then more of the needs of our children can be met. Thanks to the cooperation of the parents and the Ouachita parish school board.

Just sharpen your pencil—and there you are!

ACROSS this broad land there are thousands of people who have been doing themselves a disfavor.

Seems they "just naturally assume" a Buick is beyond their reach—and so pass up the car they're really itching to own.

Now why "assume" anything as important to your happiness as a new car?

Why not see for yourself how delivered prices run—how close Buick matches your own budget—how frequently it is priced under some cars you may be considering?

Then—if there is a particular car in mind—sharpen up your pencil a little.

Is it a six—or an eight, like Buick? If an eight, is it a valve-in-head eight? That adds a plus in efficiency, you know, even without the extra edge of Buick's Fireball power.

Will you ride on four soft coil springs, as in Buick—or on only two? Will the drive be through a sealed torque-tube that keeps the rear wheel assembly firmly aligned? It is in a Buick.

Do you get soft, low-pressure tires as part of the price—or as extras? Will you have bumper guards built as part of the bumper, or a one-piece cast-metal grille that can be costly to repair or replace?

Does the price include air cleaner; oil filter; dual horns, windshield wipers and sun visors; an automatic dome light; self-locking luggage lid; a single key for all locks?

And is there an automatic drive*, or one in which gears still shift in normal driving?

Yes, sharpen your pencil—and there you will be, in a Buick.

Whether it's a SPECIAL, a SUPER or a lordly ROADMASTER, you'll be driving the big buy of its price class, and getting a rich bonus of driving comfort, driving thrill and "fashion-first" styling.

But you have to make the first move. You are the one who has to find out. How about starting now—with a call on your Buick dealer?

EXPERIMENTS IN EDUCATION HELD

A. L. Smith School Seeks Progress Along Most Modern Lines

By O. K. Bailey

Experimental work in education, so necessary for the schools to keep pace with the rapidly changing world in which we live, is being continued in a new phase at the A. L. Smith School, it is announced by O K. Bailey, principal.

Two years a program of instruction was initiated in human relations using the materials worked out by Dr. H. Edmund Bullis and others at the University of Delaware. The work in this field has been very successful. Last session a student council was organized, with representatives from the various grades, who met with the principal each week to assist in the solving of the many problems which the pupils and faculty face in a school program. The pupils received training in Democratic procedure, and many problems were adjusted that made for a happier and more successful school year.

The emphasis on the program this year will be improving home school relationship. At the call of the principal, 120 parents came to the school auditorium to discuss the following phases of the school program:

1. The school lunch program.
2. Reporting to parents on pupil progress.
3. Organization of parents study (discussion) groups on the grade level.

After a brief discussion the parents voted unanimously to contribute 10 cents per day for each child's lunch served. A lengthy discussion followed on the proposal to substitute scheduled parent-teacher conferences at regular intervals for the present system of reporting to parents by means of a report card. The proposal was new to most of the parents and many good questions were asked which helped to clarify the proposal. It was suggested that it be tried as an experiment for one year only, after which it would be evaluated and a future program planned on the basis of the evaluation This system of reporting to parents has been in operation in a number of the schools throughout the country for as long as 12 years. The closest known school is the Demonstration School in connection with Louisiana State University Teachers College.

In this type of program no report cards at all are sent home to upset the parent and Johnnie. Instead a conference with every parent is scheduled at a convenient time, when the parent and teacher sit down at the teacher's desk, in complete privacy and discuss Johnnie's progress and problems. During the course of this discussion they prepare together Johnnie's future program, based on Johnnie's needs. In this manner the parent and the teacher are both kept informed on the child's problems at home and school, and by their joint planning enter into a compact or agreement to work together on the greatest needs in the child's life.

There are so many phases of the child's development that can not be shown by report cards that can be evaluated in the parent teacher conference. Such a program, planned on the basis on the individual child's needs would eliminate the undesirable competetive aspects of school life, and convince both the teacher and the parent of each's sincere interest in the child's welfare. The emphasis would then be on the partnership idea of parent and teacher. The emotional climate in which they worked would be considerably improved and each child would be more able to progress at his own rate.

For the first four days of the school session, school has been conducted in the morning only. During the afternoon the teachers have visited the homes of the children, a total of 89 visits have been made. Teachers have thus had an opportunity to become acquainted with the parents and assist in making any adjustments for the good of the child that were necessary.

The parents will meet with the faculty in a second meeting Tuesday night, September 26th, to further discuss the parent-teachers conference, after which each grade group will be given an opportunity to decide if they would like to participate in the experiment. Superintendent Avants has accepted an invitation to be present and participate in the discussion. All the school patrons, and others interested are urged to be present.

Plans are underway to organize parent study discussion groups on the grade level basis. This is strictly voluntary program, and discussions will be open on the preschool level. Arrangements will be made for a series of meetings then on the first grade level, second grade level, etc. Motion pictures on child development, mental hygiene, etc., will constitute a part of the program.

With the rapid progress that is being made Mr. Salley, the contractor, on our new building it is believed that at least a part of these facilities will be available for the latter portion of this school year. Other phases of our school program will then be possible, then more of the needs of our children can be met. Thanks to the cooperation of the parents and the Ouachita parish school board.

Just sharpen your pencil—and there you are!

ACROSS this broad land there are thousands of people who have been doing themselves a disfavor.

Seems they "just naturally assume" a Buick is beyond their reach—and so pass up the car they're really itching to own.

Now why "assume" anything as important to your happiness as a new car?

Why not see for yourself how delivered prices run—how close Buick matches your own budget—how frequently it is priced under some cars you may be considering?

Then—if there is a particular car in mind—sharpen up your pencil a little.

Is it a six—or an eight, like Buick? If an eight, is it a valve-in-head eight? That adds a plus in efficiency, you know, even without the extra edge of Buick's Fireball power.

Will you ride on four soft coil springs, as in Buick—or on only two? Will the drive be through a sealed torque-tube that keeps the rear wheel assembly firmly aligned? It is in a Buick.

Do you get soft, low-pressure tires as part of the price—or as extras? Will you have bumper guards built as part of the bumper, or a one-piece cast-metal grille that can be costly to repair or replace?

Does the price include air cleaner; oil filter; dual horns, windshield wipers and sun visors; an automatic dome light; self-locking luggage lid; a single key for all locks?

And is there an automatic drive*, or one in which gears still shift in normal driving?

Yes, sharpen your pencil—and there you will be, in a Buick.

Whether it's a SPECIAL, a SUPER or a lordly ROADMASTER, you'll be driving the big buy of its price class, and getting a rich bonus of driving comfort, driving thrill and "fashion-first" styling.

But you have to make the first move. You are the one who has to find out. How about starting now—with a call on your Buick dealer?

NORTHEAST OPENS WITH POTEAU THURSDAY

OKLAHOMA TEAM COMES HERE FOR FOOTBALL SCRAP

Will Be Only Contest For College Here Until October 26

The Indians of Northeast Louisiana State College, successor to Northeast Junior College, open their football campaign here Thursday night against Poteau Junior College of Oklahoma at Brown Field.

TICKETS ON SALE

Tickets for box seats to Northeast Louisiana football games this season will be delivered to purchasers this week, Coach James L. Malone said last night, and there are only three boxes yet remaining to be sold

Season reserved seat tickets are also on advanced sale at the college and Lockhart-Blair Sports Shop.

Commenting on the rapid sale of box seats and the reported good sale of other pasteboards, Coach Malone said, "We appreciate the interest of our fans as manifest by the good early ticket sales. We need all the local support we can get, and it looks like we'll have a good following again this year. We invite as many as possible to come out to see us Thursday night because it'll be a month before we'll offer another home game."

Starting lineups for the Redskins had not been determined yesterday, and Coach Malone indicated he might not be ready to definitely fix his assignments before the middle of the week. He was pretty cheerful last night after a game-conditions scrimmage in which the Redskin offensive began to take on a more impressive show, and the defense continued its good work.

The "White" team, playing only on offensive in the scrimmage, managed to rip off five touchdowns through the "Purple" defense.

"The scrimmage today was entirely satisfactory," Malone declared, "and I'm particularly pleased with the physical condition of the squad for this early in the season."

The scrimmage claimed one casualty, however. Harry Hubenthal, freshman fullback from Fort Smith Ark., suffered a shoulder injury. Ed Plonsky, right half, missed the rough work because of a leg injury that is expected to keep him out of action for Poteau. Sievers and Louis Phelps will share right half until Plonsky is able to vie for the job again.

Poteau will be coming here for the game "in the dark," as Malone said neither team has had the opportunity to feel out the other. Poteau, however, is said to have a heavy outfit operating from the split-T. The game will also be Poteau's opener.

Curtis Risks Mat Title Against Segura Here Tuesday

Jack Curtis, the Vicksburg batter who only recently reclaimed the world's light heavyweight wrestling title for the fifth time, will give Bobby Segura, light-heavy kingpin of Mexico, a chance to reclai the crown here Tuesday night at Gus Kallio's arena.

Segura, who won the belt in midsummer from Bark Estes in Florida and then lost it in his first defense to Curtis, was given the title shot at Curtis again after defeating Don Keene, Birmingham Ala., here the past week.

Within a few minutes after disposing of Keene Segura stormed into Promoter Kallio's office to pour on the pressure for a Curtis title go.

Three times Segura has failed to win back the belt since passing it on to Curtis, and this time he put up a cash inducement to seal the bargain.

"Get me that Curtis match," Segura challenged. "He might just try to give me the run-around, claiming I've already had my chance but here's $100 that should bring him around. I've always heard Curtis is money-hungry, so the right to get him."

Kallo said Segura posted the $100 for Curtis to clinch the match, win or lose.

They'll battle over a 90-minute time limit route in Kallio's main event.

Clashing in the semi final, beginning at 8:15 o'clock, will be "Green Ghost," the mystery man of the ring, and George Curtis younger brother of the champ.

The semi-final will have a time limit of one hour. Both matches will go two falls to win.

Columbia Trounces Marksville, 20 To 6

Columbia, La., Sept. 16.—(Special)—The Columbia Crimson Tide recovering from a costly first-quarter fumble, came back to defeat Marksville, 20 to 6, here last night.

On the second play of the game Columbia fumbled with a Marksville gridder picking up the fumbled ball and scampering 55 yards for the visitors' only touchdown.

But after a series of plays, Meredith scored for the Tide from the 10-yard line, and Harrelson kicked the point that gave Columbia a 7-6 halftime lead.

In the fourth quarter James took a pass to the Marshville four to set up a touchdown for Meredith who plunged the rest of the way, and Harrelson again added the point. Then a Marksville punt, blocked by Riser and covered on the two, set up the last touchdown for Perry.

Schroeder, Sedgman Reach Pacific Southwest Finals

Los Angeles, Sept. 16.—(AP)— Ted Schroeder won his grudge match with agallant comeback against National Champion Art Larsen today and will meet Frank Sedgman of Australia tomorrow in the men's singles finals of the Pacific Southwest Tennis Tournament.

Schroeder, veteran American Davis Cup star, took a licking for the first two sets but rallied to defeat Larsen by scores of 4-6, 4-6, 10-8, 6-4, 6-0.

Earlier in the afternoon, Sedgman moved into the finals by defeating Herb Flam, Beverly Hills, Calif., runnre-up for the U. S. Singles crown this year. Sedgman won in straight sets, 6-4, 6-2, 9-7.

Trav Slugger Leads Despite Vol Squawk

Atlanta, Sept. 16. —(AP)— The Southern Association's 1950 batting championship belonged to Pat Haggerty of Little Rock by a fraction of a point today, but not without a loud squawk from Nashville.

The final averages by Howe News Bureau, the league's official statistician, recorded Haggerty's average as .3464. Tom Neill, Nashville outfielder, was in second place with .3460.

But Nashville fans and sports writers were still complaining over the final Little Rock game of the season with Birmingham. Haggerty bunted five times and beat out four for hits.

Sports Editor Naylor Stone of the Birmingham Post-Herald replied it wasn't so, that Birmingham had a regular outfielder, Bob Dipiertro, playing third base that day, and he just couldn't field Haggerty's bunts. Stone flung a label of "cry baby" at Nashville.

Johnson said the last time there was such confusion over the title was back in 1938, when Johnny Hill of Atlanta nosed out Bert Haas 36, had 334 total bases, 40 doubles, and 125 runs batted in. His of Nashville.

Memphis' Bill Wilson had clear title to the power hitting crown. He led the league in home runs with batting average was .311.

Sicily Island Routs Jena 'B' Team, 31-0

Johnny Martin charged ten yards for the third tally in the second quarter, while Taylor made his second goal shortly afterward.

The final touchdown came in the third quarter on a sustained drive with Martin, Price and Taylor clearing the trail. Cecil Thurman and Lamar Guice fell out of the game with leg injuries.

The Tigers will be short two of their starting players when they meet the Crowville Bulldogs in home territory next Friday night, but a fasy-moving line may make up for the loss. Buddy Roberts, who blocked three Jena kicks Friday night, is expected to see action in the Crowville battle.

CITY'S ALL-STAR GAME TOMORROW

Softball League Aces Will Clash With Clover Leaf At Barkdull Faulk

The City Softball League All-Stars plays Title-holding Clover Leaf Dairy at Barkdull Faulk Monday night in a game postponed last week in favor of a home game for the Monroe Sports.

Carl Russ, who hurled the Nichol Motors team to second place in the League will head the pitching staff against Cecil Johnson, a double-threat pitcher and outfielder who is slated to start for Clover Leaf.

George Fruge and Ralph Sanders hit the All-Star list to back Russ on the mound. Sam Rubin and Sonny Webb shared honors for the catching job.

The All-Star line-up including reserves, will be: Russ, Fruge and Sanders, pitchers; Webb and Rubin, catchers; Sugar and Downing, first base; McKeithen and Passman, second; Wood and Hall, third; Robert Smith, shortstop.

On the Clover Leaf lineup, McLeland and Wilbur Smith will relieve Johnson on the mound; Anderson, first base. Hampton, second; Hugh Smith, third; Bull Durham, shortstop; Cecil Johnson, Bell and Dyer in the outfield.

The Clover Leaf champs will be out to hold their title, since no All-Star team has defeated the title-holders with the exception of Spatafora Pharmacy loss in 1946, to the All-Stars under Manager Billy Hargiss and Herbert Hayes.

Nolan Bryant, Ralph Marionneaux and Ben Brownlee are the All-Star mentors this year, and with an extra week-end for practice they expect to give the Milkmen a hard time on the Barkdull Faulk diamond.

Mrs. H. S. Nix, president of the Barkdull Faulk P. T. A., stated that committees have completed arrangements to accommodate a large crowd for the annual game. New bleachers have been added to insure plenty of seating space.

Several Clover Leaf players were chosen on the All-Star roster, but according to league rules and custom they will remain on their old team for the big game. Jack Facundus, now enrolled at the University of Nebraska, Cecil Johnson, J. R. Hood and Jack Dyer were named among the other contenders.

NORTHEAST OPENS WITH POTEAU THURSDAY

OKLAHOMA TEAM COMES HERE FOR FOOTBALL SCRAP

Will Be Only Contest For College Here Until October 26

The Indians of Northeast Louisiana State College, successor to Northeast Junior College, open their football campaign here Thursday night against Poteau Junior College of Oklahoma at Brown Field.

TICKETS ON SALE

Tickets for box seats to Northeast Louisiana football games this season will be delivered to purchasers this week, Coach James L. Malone said last night, and there are only three boxes yet remaining to be sold

Season reserved seat tickets are also on advanced sale at the college and Lockhart-Blair Sports Shop.

Commenting on the rapid sale of box seats and the reported good sale of other pasteboards, Coach Malone said, "We appreciate the interest of our fans as manifest by the good early ticket sales. We need all the local support we can get, and it looks like we'll have a good following again this year. We invite as many as possible to come out to see us Thursday night because it'll be a month before we'll offer another home game."

Starting lineups for the Redskins had not been determined yesterday, and Coach Malone indicated he might not be ready to definitely fix his assignments before the middle of the week. He was pretty cheerful last night after a game-conditions scrimmage in which the Redskin offensive began to take on a more impressive show, and the defense continued its good work.

The "White" team, playing only on offensive in the scrimmage, managed to rip off five touchdowns through the "Purple" defense.

"The scrimmage today was entirely satisfactory," Malone declared, "and I'm particularly pleased with the physical condition of the squad for this early in the season."

The scrimmage claimed one casualty, however. Harry Hubenthal, freshman fullback from Fort Smith Ark., suffered a shoulder injury. Ed Plonsky, right half, missed the rough work because of a leg injury that is expected to keep him out of action for Poteau. Sievers and Louis Phelps will share right half until Plonsky is able to vie for the job again.

Poteau will be coming here for the game "in the dark," as Malone said neither team has had the opportunity to feel out the other. Poteau, however, is said to have a heavy outfit operating from the split-T. The game will also be Poteau's opener.

Curtis Risks Mat Title Against Segura Here Tuesday

Jack Curtis, the Vicksburg battler who only recently reclaimed the world's light heavyweight wrestling title for the fifth time, will give Bobby Segura, light-heavy kingpin of Mexico, a chance to reclai the crown here Tuesday night at Gus Kallio's arena.

Segura, who won the belt in midsummer from Balk Estes in Florida and then lost it in his first defense to Curtis, was given the title shot at Curtis again after defeating Don Keene, Birmingham Ala., here the past week.

Within a few minutes after disposing of Keene Segura stormed into Promoter Kallio's office to pour on the pressure for a Curtis title go.

Three times Segura has failed to win back the belt since passing it on to Curtis, and this time he put up a cash inducement to seal the bargain.

"Get me that Curtis match," Segura challenged. "He might just try to give me the run-around, claiming I've already had my chance but here's $100 that should bring him around. I've always heard Curtis is money-hungry, so the right to get him."

Kallio said Segura posted the $100 for Curtis to clinch the match, win or lose.

They'll battle over a 90-minute time limit route in Kallio's main event.

Clashing in the semi-final, beginning at 8:15 o'clock, will be "Green Ghost," the mystery man of the ring, said George Curtis younger brother of the champ.

The semi-final will have a time limit of one hour. Both matches will go two falls to win.

Columbia, La., Sept. 16.—(Special)—The Columbia Crimson Tide recovering from a costly first-quarter fumble, came back to defeat Marksville, 20 to 6, here last night.

On the second play of the game Columbia fumbled with a Marksville gridder picking up the fumbled ball and scampering 55 yards for the visitors' only touchdown.

But after a series of plays, Meredith scored for the Tide from the 10-yard line, and Harrelson kicked the point that gave Columbia a 7-6 halftime lead.

In the fourth quarter James took a pass to the Marshville four to set up a touchdown for Meredith who plunged the rest of the way, and Harrelson again added the point. Then a Marksville punt, blocked by Riser and covered on the two, set up the last touchdown for Perry.

Schroeder, Sedgman Reach Pacific Southwest Finals

Los Angeles, Sept. 16.—(AP)— Ted Schroeder won his grudge match with agallant comeback against National Champion Art Larsen today and will meet Frank Sedgman of Australia tomorrow in the men's singles finals of the Pacific Southwest Tennis Tournament.

Schroeder, veteran American Davis Cup star, took a licking for the first two sets but rallied to defeat Larsen by scores of 4-6, 4-6, 10-8, 6-4, 6-0.

Earlier in the afternoon, Sedgman moved into the finals by defeating Herb Flam, Beverly Hills, Calif., runnre-up for the U. S. Singles crown this year. Sedgman won in straight sets, 6-4, 6-2, 9-7.

Trav Slugger Leads Despite Vol Squawk

Atlanta, Sept. 16. —(AP)— The Southern Association's 1950 batting championship belonged to Pat Haggerty of Little Rock by a fraction of a point today, but not without a loud squawk from Nashville.

The final averages by Howe News Bureau, the league's official statistician, recorded Haggerty's average as .3464. Tom Neill, Nashville outfielder, was in second place with .3460.

But Nashville fans and sports writers were still complaining over the final Little Rock game of the season with Birmingham. Haggerty bunted five times and beat out four for hits.

Sports Editor Naylor Stone of the Birmingham Post-Herald replied it wasn't so, that Birmingham had a regular outfielder, Bob Dipiertro, playing third base that day, and he just couldn't field Haggerty's bunts. Stone flung a label of "cry baby" at Nashville.

Johnson said the last time there was such confusion over the title was back in 1938, when Johnny Hill of Atlanta nosed out Bert Haas 36, had 334 total bases, 40 doubles, and 125 runs batted in. His of Nashville.

Memphis' Bill Wilson had clear title to the power hitting crown. He led the league in home runs with batting average was .311.

Sicily Island Routs Jena 'B' Team, 31-0

Johnny Martin charged ten yards for the third tally in the second quarter, while Taylor made his second goal shortly afterward.

The final touchdown came in the third quarter on a sustained drive with Martin, Price and Taylor clearing the trail. Cecil Thurman and Lamar Guice fell out of the game with leg injuries.

The Tigers will be short two of their starting players when they meet the Crowville Bulldogs in home territory next Friday night, but a fasy-moving line may make up for the loss. Buddy Roberts, who blocked three Jena kicks Friday night, is expected to see action in the Crowville battle.

CITY'S ALL-STAR GAME TOMORROW

The City Softball League All-Stars plays Title-holding Clover Leaf Dairy at Barkdull Faulk Monday night in a game postponed last week in favor of a home game for the Monroe Sports.

Carl Russ, who hurled the Nichol Motors team to second place in the League will head the pitching staff against Cecil Johnson, a double-threat pitcher and outfielder who is slated to start for Clover Leaf.

George Fruge and Ralph Sanders hit the All-Star list to back Russ on the mound. Sam Rubin and Sonny Webb shared honors for the catching job.

The All-Star line-up including reserves, will be: Russ, Fruge and Sanders, pitchers; Webb and Rubin, catchers; Sugar and Downing, first base; McKeithen and Passman, second; Wood and Hall, third; Robert Smith, shortstop.

On the Clover Leaf lineup, McLeland and Wilbur Smith will relieve Johnson on the mound; Anderson, first base, Hampton, second; Hugh Smith, third; Bull Durham, shortstop; Cecil Johnson, Bell and Dyer in the outfield.

The Clover Leaf champs will be out to hold their title, since no All-Star team has defeated the title-holders with the exception of Spatafora Pharmacy loss in 1946, to the All-Stars under Manager Billy Hargiss and Herbert Hayes.

YANKEES SIDETRACK BENGALS, REGAIN LEAD

SEVEN-RUN 9TH INNING DECIDES CONTEST, 8 TO 1

By Jack Hand

Detroit, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Lefty Ed Ford, 21-year-old Rookie sensation, pitched New York back into the American League lead today behind a crackling seven-run explosion in the ninth that sunk Detroit 8-1.

Turning back the Tigers with six hits, young Ford grabbed the all-important rubber game of this vital first place series before 56,548 stunned fans.

Yankee power routed Dizzy Trout in the last inning a few minutes after Detroit fought back to tie the score in the eighth. All during this chill afternoon it had looked as though Joe DiMaggio's 30th homer, a 425-foot clout to left center in the sixth was to be the only score of a throbbing struggle.

As a result of the Yankee triumph and Boston's 5-2 loss at St. Louis the league race looks like this with two weeks to go:

Teams	Won	Lost	GB	TP
New York	89	51	—	14
Detroit	88	51	½	15
Boston	87	53	2	14

The leading Yanks now move on to St. Louis for a two-game series to be played in a double header tomorrow afternoon. Ed Lopat and Tommy Byrne probably will do the honors. Boston comes into Briggs Stadium tomorrow for the opener of a two-game set with lefty Mel Parnell primed to face Freddie Hutchinson.

There was little warning of the Yankee outburst, that ruined a pretty pitching duel between Trout and young Ford, a kid from the sandlots of Astoria, Long Island, who just joined the Yanks July 1 and piled up a superb 7-0 record.

This was the first victory for the blond southpaw with the nickname of "Whitey" against first division opposition. It seemed that the Binghamton, N. Y., and Kansas City grad was to ride home with a shutout until doubles by Gerry Priddy and Vic Wertz tied the score at 1-1 in the eighth.

Snapping off his curve ball in brilliant style, Ford polished off his afternoon's work by whiffing ex-Yankee, Charley Keller, as a pinch-hitter to end the game. It was his sixth strike out.

Eleven Yanks went to bat in the furious ninth as the Yanks battered Trout and his successor, Hal Newhouser, who lost the series opener. The big seven runs drove New York into a half game lead, the fifth time in seven days that first place has changed hands.

Four walks, two of them intentional, singles by Gene Woodling, Joe DiMaggio and Bobby Brown and a double by Phil Ruzzuto added up to seven big runs and a fifth loss for Trout who has won 13 games.

Once again the "luck" of Manager Casey Stengel was good. He used Bobby Brown at third base because Billy Johnson had a swollen right knee. Brown came through with three singles, driving in three runs.

Gene Woodling, back in the lineup after a layoff due to a groin injury, replaced Hank Bauer in left and weighed in with two singles. Stengel let pitcher Ford bat with the score tied, a man on second and one out in the ninth and Whitey drew an important walk.

BROWNS CHECK BOSOX

St. Louis, Sept. 16. —(AP)— The giant-killing St. Louis Browns, using a pitcher who had completed only two of his last 16 starting assignments, dealt another stunning blow to Boston's pennant hopes today by defeating the Red Sox 5-2.

The pitcher was Cliff Fannin and he yielded only five hits to the fence busters, struck out seven and issued no passes.

Box score:

Thus the pesky Browns, who put the dampers on pennant ambitions of the Cleveland Indians last week, did the same for the Red Sox. The triumph was the ninth in ten games for the seventh-place Browns, who took the series from the Bosox two games to one.

Until they came to St. Louis, Steve O'Neill's power hitters had won six straight and 24 out of their last 27.

Jena Rally Claims Tie With Mansfield

Jena, La., Sept. 16.—(Special)—Jena and Mansfield battled to a thrilling 19-19 deadlock here Friday night in Giant Stadium, with the hometown gridders fighting back from a 0-13 first-quarter deficit to tie the game in the last quarter after leaving the field at the halfway mark on the short end of a 6-19 count.

Halfback Jack Stout provided Mansfield's big running punch, cutting loose in the opening minutes of the second quarter for a 69-yard gallop to score Mansfield's third and final counter of the night.

Mansfield scored first in the opening minutes of the first quarter when Dick Hawthorne, Wolverine right tackle, scooped up a Jena fumble and raced 55 yards to tally. Doyle Leach's pass to Stout for the point was good. The invader's other marker came in the first quarter when Jimmy Stoker hit Stout in the end zone from Jena's five-yard line.

Jena scored in the second quarter, climaxing a 60-yard drive after a 20-yard kickoff return with Donnie Sheppard rocketing through center from Mansfield's five. His pass to Bo Wilson for the point was wide.

Coming back in the second half, Jena drove to Mansfield's 15, and again to the one on separate drives, only to be halted by fumbles. They finally cashed in their second marker on a 44-yard push with Jimmie Coleman slashing over guard from the Wolverines' four for the tally. An attempted quarterback sneak by Taylor failed for the point.

Halting the ensuing Mansfield drive and forcing a kick out of bounds, Jena drove from their own 46 to Mansfield's 20, from which point Sheppard nailed Coleman in the end zone for the third Giant tally. This time Taylor's quarterback sneak was good for the all-important and game-tieing point to end the scoring for the night and leave the game deadlocked 19-19.

NORTHWESTERN'S FORMER ACE BIG GUN IN TRIUMPH

Philadelphia Pros Lose Scott Early In Grid's 'World Series' Scrap

By Harold Classen

Philadelphia, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Otto Graham pitched three touchdown passes and scored one himself and he personally conducted the Cleveland Browns to a 35 to 10 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles in the long awaited world series of football before 71,237 at Municipal Stadium tonight. The triumph gave Cleveland the mythical world's professional football championship in the opening game of the 31st National Football League season.

The game marked the official marriage of the defunct All-America Conference with the National League which now is known as the National Football League.

Four years of bitter athletic civil war and $8,000,000 of money was spent before this game could take place. And so keen was the interest that a huge crowd sat under the stars in ideal weather for the contest.

Officially, there is peace between the two factions in professional football's new combine. But there was none on the field between their respective champions.

In the very first quarter, John McGee of the Eagles was sent to the showers for playing too rough. Penalties were numerous the remainder of the way but the lads kept their tempers in check.

Of the Browns first four touchdowns, Graham passed for three and scored the fourth himself. He handed off to Rex Bumgardner for the fifth just seconds before the final gun.

In all, the Northwestern alumnus threw 38 passes and 21 reached their targets. The flips added 346 yards to the Browns total yardage.

While Graham monopolized all the honors on the field his expected rival for the headlines, Steve Van Buren, did not play. Van Buren, N. F. L. ground-gaining record holder, has been out for a month with an injured toe.

Clyde Scott, former Navy and Arkansas star who also was an Olympic hurdler, was lost to the Eagles in the first half after putting most of the zip in the Philadelphians' machine in the early moments.

Neville Battles Homer Pels Here Friday in 1st Home Grid Contest

Bengals Offering Rehash Of Last Year's "A" championship Playoff

With the Tigers placing victories over the Boston Bears and Minden's Crimson Tide safely behind them, and the Pelicans still burning from a 40 to 6 defeat at the hands of another Monroe team, Friday night's game promises to be a rough, tough battle.

The Pels are defending the northwest Louisianad istrict Class A championship. Neville will be defending home territory and a short but unbroken record of wins.

Coach Bill Ruple said that his boys came out of the Minden struggle in good physical condition, but over-confidence may cause a lot of trouble. Snice Al Dogget, a veteran triple-threat artist, is on the Pelican starting list, the Neville mentor is taking no chances on under - rating Minden because of their bad loss to Ouachita.

The Minden coach is putting his squad through a hard drill session, and spending a lot of time on a new formation, using Al Doggett and Nealy, who is said to be one of the finest pass receivers in the state.

And the Tiger backfield is making its own bid for fame. Harold Bassett, W. T. Brown, Tommy Leo: and Charles Martin scored in the first half of the Minden game Friday night. Out of six attempted passes, the Bengals cleared five for long gains.

Neville drill session will be aimed at eliminating blocking weaknesses.

"During the Minden game," Coach Ruple said, "the boys were content to block one man. This time I want them to get up and guard the ball-carrier."

Left guard Al Williams, a 275-pounder who sparked Neville's firm defensive line, will be in the game Friday night. Williams was in almost every pile-up in the first game this year, not missing more than two or three tackles during his turn on the field.

With Williams sparking the defense and Bassett showing an unusual talent for calling the right maneuver at the right time, Neville's chances for victory may be as good as they were in '47 and '48, when they won 19-6 and 12-7.

The Tigers have not forgotten that Homer handed them their first defeat last year in a 21 to 0 game in which Doggett crossed their goal line three times. Brown, who has starred in both Tiger games this year, played against Doggett last year, and will probably get a chance to try for revenge Friday night.

Anticipating a sell-out crowd, ticket managers have placed the hole of Neville's concrete stadium on reserve for local fans who want to see a rehash of last year's north Louisiana district championship game. After losing in regular scheduled play, Neville bounced back in the north district playoff to stop Homer and move on to the state final, losing out to De Quincy.

Tigers Send Sore-Armed Trucks Home For Rest

Detroit, Sept. 16. —(AP)— Right-hander Virgil Trucks, last year the ace of the Detroit Tiger pitching staff but a sore-shoulder casualty this year, today was sent to his Birmingham, Ala., home for the rest of the season.

Tiger General Manager Billy Evans said he had been informed Trucks definitely would be unable to pitch again this year.

The 31-year-old fastballer hurt his arm on May 13 beating St. Louis 1-0 in an 11-inning contest. The ailment has been diagnosed as an inflamed tendon in his right shoulder.

Trucks won 19 games last year. This year he had a 3-1 record before the injury.

Attendance Down In Texas Beaumont Shows Increase

Dallas, Sept. 16. —(AP)— Texas League baseball clubs drew 1,648,828 paid admissions during the past season, a decrease of 359,099 from last year, league Secretary Milton Price announced today.

Beaumont, the only club to show an increase, drew 170,536, a gain of 54,272. Shreveport attendance dropped the most, to 117,854, down 104,477 from 1949.

OUACHITA VISITS RUSTON FRIDAY

Bearcats Loom As Another Stumbling Block In Path Of Lions

The Ouachita Parish High School Lions, refusing to lose sleep over the setback at the hands of Bossier City here Friday night and accepting the loss as a needed "lesson" for a green eleven, point for another rugged rival and their first road trip of the season when they go against the Ruston Bearcats next Friday night at Ruston.

"We don't want to alibi the loss to Bossier," Coach Jim Hodgins said yesterday. "Bossier has a good ball club, there's no use trying to discount that. But it was a ball game we stood a good chance to win until the loss of Counts spoiled our timeing with the 'T' and forced us to switch to the single wing which worked with fair success."

Count, a guard last year who has been moved into the backfield, was injured shortly before the half ended with the Lions leading, 12-6. The Bossier eleven pulled ahead to win, 19-12, in the last half. The injury was not believed serious, and Counts should be ready for Ruston.

Ruston promises to be another rough foe for the Lions if the preseason dope on the Haynesville Tornado was worth anything Haynesville, rated along with Byrd of Shreveport as the most likely team to win twin-A honors in north Louisiana this year, had all it could do to squeeze past Ruston, 7-6, Friday night.

This could be Ruston's year to snap a string of five straight losses to the Lions. The Bearcats lat efeate Oss. P. H. S, .1 8-id6d.n last defeated O. P. H. S., 18-6, in 1944. And, until the win streak of late years, Ouachita has had little luck stopping the Lincoln parish elevens. From 1929 when Monroe's high schools began fielding elevens independent of each other until the last Bearcat win in '44, Ouachita had lost six, won only two, and tied two with Ruston.

YANKEES SIDETRACK BENGALS, REGAIN LEAD

SEVEN-RUN 9TH INNING DECIDES CONTEST, 8 TO 1

By Jack Hand

Detroit, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Lefty Ed Ford, 21-year-old Rookie sensation, pitched New York back into the American League lead today behind a crackling seven-run explosion in the ninth that sunk Detroit 8-1.

Turning back the Tigers with six hits, young Ford grabbed the all-important rubber game of this vital first place series before 56,548 stunned fans.

Yankee power routed Dizzy Trout in the last inning a few minutes after Detroit fought back to tie the score in the eighth. All during this chill afternoon it had looked as though Joe DiMaggio's 30th homer, a 425-foot clout to left center in the sixth was to be the only score of a throbbing struggle.

Teams	Won	Lost	GB	TP
New York	89	51	—	14
Detroit	88	51	½	15
Boston	87	53	2	14

The leading Yanks now move on to St. Louis for a two-game series to be played in a double header tomorrow afternoon. Ed Lopat and Tommy Byrne probably will do the honors. Boston comes into Briggs Stadium tomorrow for the opener of a two-game set with lefty Mel Parnell primed to face Freddie Hutchinson.

There was little warning of the Yankee outburst, that ruined a pretty pitching duel between Trout and young Ford, a kid from the sandlots of Astoria, Long Island, who just joined the Yanks July 1 and piled up a superb 7-0 record.

This was the first victory for the blond southpaw with the nickname of "Whitey" against first division opposition. It seemed that the Binghamton, N. Y., and Kansas City grad was to ride home with a shutout until doubles by Gerry Priddy and Vic Wertz tied the score at 1-1 in the eighth.

Snapping off his curve ball in brilliant style, Ford polished off his afternoon's work by whiffing ex-Yankee, Charley Keller, as a pinch-hitter to end the game. It was his sixth strike out.

Eleven Yanks went to bat in the furious ninth as the Yanks battered Trout and his successor, Hal Newhouser, who lost the series opener. The big seven runs drove New York into a half game lead, the fifth time in seven days that first place has changed hands.

Four walks, two of them intentional, singles by Gene Woodling, Joe DiMaggio and Bobby Brown and a double by Phil Ruzzuto added up to seven big runs and a fifth loss for Trout who has won 13 games.

Once again the "luck" of Manager Casey Stengel was good. He used Bobby Brown at third base because Billy Johnson had a swollen right knee. Brown came through with three singles, driving in three runs.

Gene Woodling, back in the lineup after a layoff due to a groin injury, replaced Hank Bauer in left and weighed in with two singles. Stengel let pitcher Ford bat with the score tied, a man on second and one out in the ninth and Whitey drew an important walk.

BROWNS CHECK BOSOX

St. Louis, Sept. 16. —(AP)— The giant-killing St. Louis Browns, using a pitcher who had completed only two of his last 16 starting assignments, dealt another stunning blow to Boston's pennant hopes today by defeating the Red Sox 5-2.

The pitcher was Cliff Fannin and he yielded only five hits to the fence busters, struck out seven and issued no passes.

Box score:

Thus the pesky Browns, who put the dampers on pennant ambitions of the Cleveland Indians last week, did the same for the Red Sox. The triumph was the ninth in ten games for the seventh-place Browns, who took the series from the Bosox two games to one.

Until they came to St. Louis, Steve O'Neill's power hitters had won six straight and 24 out of their last 27.

Jena Rally Claims Tie With Mansfield

Jena, La., Sept. 16.—(Special)—Jena and Mansfield battled to a thrilling 19-19 deadlock here Friday night in Giant Stadium, with the hometown gridders fighting back from a 0-13 first-quarter deficit to tie the game in the last quarter after leaving the field at the halfway mark on the short end of a 6-19 count.

Halfback Jack Stout provided Mansfield's big running punch, cutting loose in the opening minutes of the second quarter for a 69-yard gallop to score Mansfield's third and final counter of the night.

Mansfield scored first in the opening minutes of the first quarter when Dick Hawthorne, Wolverine right tackle, scooped up a Jena fumble and raced 55 yards to tally. Doyle Leach's pass to Stout for the point was good. The invader's other marker came in the first quarter when Jimmy Stoker hit Stout in the end zone from Jena's five-yard line.

Jena scored in the second quarter, climaxing a 60-yard drive after a 20-yard kickoff return with Donnie Sheppard rocketing through center from Mansfield's five. His pass to Bo Wilson for the point was wide.

Coming back in the second half, Jena drove to Mansfield's 15, and again to the one on separate drives, only to be halted by fumbles. They finally cashed in their second marker on a 44-yard push with Jimmie Coleman slashing over guard from the Wolverines' four for the tally. An attempted quarterback sneak by Taylor failed for the point.

Halting the ensuing Mansfield drive and forcing a kick out of bounds, Jena drove from their own 46 to Mansfield's 20, from which point Sheppard nailed Coleman in the end zone for the third Giant tally. This time Taylor's quarterback sneak was good for the all-important and game-tieing point to end the scoring for the night and leave the game deadlocked 19-19.

NORTHWESTERN'S FORMER ACE BIG GUN IN TRIUMPH

By Harold Classen

Philadelphia, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Otto Graham pitched three touchdown passes and scored one himself and he personally conducted the Cleveland Browns to a 35 to 10 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles in the long awaited world series of football before 71,237 at Municipal Stadium tonight. The triumph gave Cleveland the mythical world's professional football championship in the opening game of the 31st National Football League season.

The game marked the official marriage of the defunct All-America Conference with the National League which now is known as the National Football League.

Four years of bitter athletic civil war and $8,000,000 of money was spent before this game could take place. And so keen was the interest that a huge crowd sat under the stars in ideal weather for the contest.

Officially, there is peace between the two factions in professional football's new combine. But there was none on the field between their respective champions.

In the very first quarter, John McGee of the Eagles was sent to the showers for playing too rough. Penalties were numerous the remainder of the way but the lads kept their tempers in check.

Of the Browns first four touchdowns, Graham passed for three and scored the fourth himself. He handed off to Rex Bumgardner for the fifth just seconds before the final gun.

In all, the Northwestern alumnus threw 38 passes and 21 reached their targets. The flips added 346 yards to the Browns total yardage.

While Graham monopolized all the honors on the field his expected rival for the headlines, Steve Van Buren, did not play. Van Buren, N. F. L. ground-gaining record holder, has been out for a month with an injured toe.

Clyde Scott, former Navy and Arkansas star who also was an Olympic hurdler, was lost to the Eagles in the first half after putting most of the zip in the Philadelphians' machine in the early moments.

Neville Battles Homer Pels Here Friday in 1st Home Grid Contest

Bengals Offering Rehash Of Last Year's "A" championship Playoff

With the Tigers placing victories over the Boston Bears and Minden's Crimson Tide safely behind them, and the Pelicans still burning from a 40 to 6 defeat at the hands of another Monroe team, Friday night's game promises to be a rough, tough battle.

The Pels are defending the northwest Louisianad istrict Class A championship. Neville will be defending home territory and a short but unbroken record of wins.

Coach Bill Ruple said that his boys came out of the Minden struggle in good physical condition, but over-confidence may cause a lot of trouble. Snice Al Dogget, a veteran triple-threat artist, is on the Pelican starting list, the Neville mentor is taking no chances on under - rating Minden because of their bad loss to Ouachita.

The Minden coach is putting his squad through a hard drill session, and spending a lot of time on a new formation, using Al Doggett and Nealy, who is said to be one of the finest pass receivers in the state.

And the Tiger backfield is making its own bid for fame. Harold Bassett, W. T. Brown, Tommy Leo: and Charles Martin scored in the first half of the Minden game Friday night. Out of six attempted passes, the Bengals cleared five for long gains.

Neville drill session will be aimed at eliminating blocking weaknesses.

"During the Minden game," Coach Ruple said, "the boys were content to block one man. This time I want them to get up and guard the ball-carrier."

Left guard Al Williams, a 275-pounder who sparked Neville's firm defensive line, will be in the game Friday night. Williams was in almost every pile-up in the first game this year, not missing more than two or three tackles during his turn on the field.

With Williams sparking the defense and Bassett showing an unusual talent for calling the right maneuver at the right time, Neville's chances for victory may be as good as they were in '47 and '48, when they won 19-6 and 12-7.

The Tigers have not forgotten that Homer handed them their first defeat last year in a 21 to 0 game in which Doggett crossed their goal line three times. Brown, who has starred in both Tiger games this year, played against Doggett last year, and will probably get a chance to try for revenge Friday night.

Anticipating a sell-out crowd, ticket managers have placed the hole of Neville's concrete stadium on reserve for local fans who want to see a rehash of last year's north Louisiana district championship game. After losing in regular scheduled play, Neville bounced back in the north district playoff to stop Homer and move on to the state final, losing out to De Quincy.

Tigers Send Sore-Armed Trucks Home For Rest

Detroit, Sept. 16. —(AP)— Right-hander Virgil Trucks, last year the ace of the Detroit Tiger pitching staff but a sore-shoulder casualty this year, today was sent to his Birmingham, Ala., home for the rest of the season.

Tiger General Manager Billy Evans said he had been informed Trucks definitely would be unable to pitch again this year.

The 31-year-old fastballer hurt his arm on May 13 beating St. Louis 1-0 in an 11-inning contest. The ailment has been diagnosed as an inflamed tendon in his right shoulder.

Trucks won 19 games last year. This year he had a 3-1 record before the injury.

Attendance Down In Texas Beaumont Shows Increase

Dallas, Sept. 16. —(AP)— Texas League baseball clubs drew 1,648,828 paid admissions during the past season, a decrease of 359,099 from last year, league Secretary Milton Price announced today.

Beaumont, the only club to show an increase, drew 170,536, a gain of 54,272. Shreveport attendance dropped the most, to 117,854, down 104,477 from 1949.

OUACHITA VISITS RUSTON FRIDAY

The Ouachita Parish High School Lions, refusing to lose sleep over the setback at the hands of Bossier City here Friday night and accepting the loss as a needed "lesson" for a green eleven, point for another rugged rival and their first road trip of the season when they go against the Ruston Bearcats next Friday night at Ruston.

"We don't want to alibi the loss to Bossier," Coach Jim Hodgins said yesterday. "Bossier has a good ball club, there's no use trying to discount that. But it was a ball game we stood a good chance to win until the loss of Counts spoiled our timeing with the 'T' and forced us to switch to the single wing which worked with fair success."

Count, a guard last year who has been moved into the backfield, was injured shortly before the half ended with the Lions leading, 12-6. The Bossier eleven pulled ahead to win, 19-12, in the last half. The injury was not believed serious, and Counts should be ready for Ruston.

Ruston promises to be another rough foe for the Lions if the preseason dope on the Haynesville Tornado was worth anything Haynesville, rated along with Byrd of Shreveport as the most likely team to win twin-A honors in north Louisiana this year, had all it could do to squeeze past Ruston, 7-6, Friday night.

This could be Ruston's year to snap a string of five straight losses to the Lions. The Bearcats lat efeate Oss. P. H. S, .1 8-id6d,n last defeated O. P. H. S., 18-6, in 1944. And, until the win streak of late years, Ouachita has had little luck stopping the Lincoln parish elevens. From 1929 when Monroe's high schools began fielding elevens independent of each other until the last Bearcat win in '44, Ouachita had lost six, won only two, and tied two with Ruston.

BLACKWELL TAMES PHILLIES ON 3-HITTER

Philadelphia Loses Another Starting Pitcher When Miller Hurts Shoulder

Philadelphia, Sept. 1. —(AP)— The Philadelphia Phils were blanked 2 to 0 by the three-hit pitching of Cincinnati's Ewell Blackwell today and lost the services of their third starting pitcher within a week.

While "The Whip" Blackwell was collaring the Phils, starter Bob Miller was forced to retire at the start of the seventh inning with a sore shoulder. How long he will be out was not determined.

The Phils lost Emory "Bubba" Church last night. He was hit by a pitched ball and will be out for at least 10 days. Last Sunday Curt Simmons went to camp as a soldier.

Ted Kluszewski drove in both Cincinnati runs. His fly to center in the first scored Bob Adams who had singled to left, went to second on an error by Granny Hamner and to third on Johnny Wyrostek's sacrifice.

Wyrostek's double and Kluszewski's single in the sixth accounted for the other run.

Blackwell has allowed only 10 hits in his last four games. He beat Boston 5-1 with one hit, lost to Pittsburgh 3-2 with five hits and lost to Brooklyn 3-1 with one hit.

Despite the loss the Phils maintained their 7 1-2 game National League lead as the St. Louis Cards eked out a 4-3 victory over the second place Brooklyn Dodgers.

Both the Reds and Phils showed signs of weariness as h etrleuiio signs of weariness as the result of the 19 inning nightcap of a twi-night doubleheader last night which went into the early hours today. The Phils won it 8-7 and the opener 2-1.

CARDS EDGE DODGERS

Brooklyn, Sept. 16. —(AP)— Del Rice's ninth-inning homer gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 4-3 victory over Brooklyn today and wrecked the Dodgers' chances of gaining on the league-leading Philadelphia Phils. The Phils now hold a 7½ game lead over the Brooks.

The Phils' 2-0 loss to Cincinnati was posted on the scoreboard when the ninth got under way. Rice's home run off starting and losing pitcher Carl Erskine dampened the Dodgers' hopes.

But the Brooks and the 12,486 fans took heart in their half of the inning when Bruce Edwards walked. Jackie Robinson ran for Edwards. Pinch-hitter Cal Abrams bunted and both runners were safe when Tommy Glaviano threw wild over second.

Crowville Crushes Lumberjacks, 38-7

Crowville, La., Sept. 16.—(Special)—The Crowville High School Bulldogs hit a fighting Clarks eleven for three fast touchdowns in the first quarter Friday night and rolled on to win 38-7.

J. D. French, Tommy Moore and Bufford Ashley crossed the Clarks goal line in rapid succession.

Scores came again in every quarter inning, with French making a lightning 90-yard run for one tally. French scored again and Royce Parker eluded the Clarks backfield for another score.

Clarks chalked up their only score late in the fourth quarter on a pass.

The two extra points for the Bulldogs came on a run by Moore and a kicked goal by French. The Bulldogs tangle with the Sicily Island Tigers at Sicily Island Friday night.

Louisiana Tech In Curtain-Raiser At Ruston Next Saturday Night

Ruston, Sept. 16—(Special)—Louisiana Tech's gridiron squad swings into the final week of practice before the season-opener with Howard Payne College here next Saturday night, with the quarterback post still the chief headache for the Bulldog coaching staff.

Bobby Aillet, son of the Tech head mentor, was the signal-caller last year when the Bulldogs swept to the Gulf States Conference title and won their last seven games. The Techsters lost to Howard Payne 22-19 and Bradley University 20-18 in the first two tilts of the campaign.

The capable Bob Aillet's graduation left Lowell Morrison of Haynesville, his understudy last season, as the lad likely to step up to a starting post. However, after the first two weeks of practice, George Ferrington of Winnsboro has looked impressive and may get the nod of the offensive platoon. This would leave Morrison to share the duties with Wyman Lee Collie of Ruston on the defensive unit. Norman Moore of El Dorado, Ark. is also putting up a still fight for the job.

Coach Joe Aillet expects a weaker offensive unit this year but looks for a big improvement in the defensive team. He says he is well pleased with the showing of the squad during the first two weeks of practice and the team should be in good condition for the lid-lifter.

The appearance of Jimmy Harrison on the campus boosted the morale of the Techmen for the season. Harrison, still plagued by injuries of last year, plans to handle oGnKly the punting. However, after the first few games when he is well conditioned, Harrison may well be cavorting on the field in the same manner which made him an all-G. S. C. selection the past two years. He was also total offense leader during the two years of G. S. C. competition.

BLACKWELL TAMES PHILLIES ON 3-HITTER

Philadelphia, Sept. 1. —(AP)— The Philadelphia Phils were blanked 2 to 0 by the three-hit pitching of Cincinnati's Ewell Blackwell today and lost the services of their third starting pitcher within a week.

While "The Whip" Blackwell was collaring the Phils, starter Bob Miller was forced to retire at the start of the seventh inning with a sore shoulder. How long he will be out was not determined.

The Phils lost Emory "Bubba" Church last night. He was hit by a pitched ball and will be out for at least 10 days. Last Sunday Curt Simmons went to camp as a soldier.

Ted Kluszewski drove in both Cincinnati runs. His fly to center in the first scored Bob Adams who had singled to left, went to second on an error by Granny Hamner and to third on Johnny Wyrostek's sacrifice.

Wyrostek's double and Kluszewski's single in the sixth accounted for the other run.

Blackwell has allowed only 10 hits in his last four games. He beat Boston 5-1 with one hit, lost to Pittsburgh 3-2 with five hits and lost to Brooklyn 3-1 with one hit.

Despite the loss the Phils maintained their 7 1-2 game National League lead as the St. Louis Cards eked out a 4-3 victory over the second place Brooklyn Dodgers.

Both the Reds and Phils showed signs of weariness as h etrleuiio signs of weariness as the result of the 19 inning nightcap of a twi-night doubleheader last night which went into the early hours today. The Phils won it 8-7 and the opener 2-1.

CARDS EDGE DODGERS

Brooklyn, Sept. 16. —(AP)— Del Rice's ninth-inning homer gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 4-3 victory over Brooklyn today and wrecked the Dodgers' chances of gaining on the league-leading Philadelphia Phils. The Phils now hold a 7½ game lead over the Brooks.

The Phils' 2-0 loss to Cincinnati was posted on the scoreboard when the ninth got under way. Rice's home run off starting and losing pitcher Carl Erskine dampened the Dodgers' hopes.

But the Brooks and the 12,486 fans took heart in their half of the inning when Bruce Edwards walked. Jackie Robinson ran for Edwards. Pinch-hitter Cal Abrams bunted and both runners were safe when Tommy Glaviano threw wild over second.

This brought up the left-handed hitting Duke Snider who had tied the score with a homer off Wilks in the eighth. Snider hit to shortstop Marty Marion who stepped on second and threw to first for the game-ending double play.

Ruston, Sept. 16—(Special)—Louisiana Tech's gridiron squad swings into the final week of practice before the season-opener with Howard Payne College here next Saturday night, with the quarterback post still the chief headache for the Bulldog coaching staff.

Bobby Aillet, son of the Tech head mentor, was the signal-caller last year when the Bulldogs swept to the Gulf States Conference title and won their last seven games. The Techsters lost to Howard Payne 22-19 and Bradley University 20-18 in the first two tilts of the campaign.

The capable Bob Aillet's graduation left Lowell Morrison of Haynesville, his understudy last season, as the lad likely to step up to a starting post. However, after the first two weeks of practice, George Ferrington of Winnsboro has looked impressive and may get the nod of the offensive platoon. This would leave Morrison to share the duties with Wyman Lee Collie of Ruston on the defensive unit. Norman Moore of El Dorado, Ark. is also putting up a still fight for the job.

Coach Joe Aillet expects a weaker offensive unit this year but looks for a big improvement in the defensive team. He says he is well pleased with the showing of the squad during the first two weeks of practice and the team should be in good condition for the lid-lifter.

The appearance of Jimmy Harrison on the campus boosted the morale of the Techmen for the season. Harrison, still plagued by injuries of last year, plans to handle oGnKly the punting. However, after the first few games when he is well conditioned, Harrison may well be cavorting on the field in the same manner which made him an all-G. S. C. selection the past two years. He was also total offense leader during the two years of G. S. C. competition.

Crowville Crushes Lumberjacks, 38-7

Crowville, La., Sept. 16.—(Special)—The Crowville High School Bulldogs hit a fighting Clarks eleven for three fast touchdowns in the first quarter Friday night and rolled on to win 38-7.

J. D. French, Tommy Moore and Bufford Ashley crossed the Clarks goal line in rapid succession.

Scores came again in every quarter inning, with French making a lightning 90-yard run for one tally. French scored again and Royce Parker eluded the Clarks backfield for another score.

Clarks chalked up their only score late in the fourth quarter on a pass.

The two extra points for the Bulldogs came on a run by Moore and a kicked goal by French. The Bulldogs tangle with the Sicily Island Tigers at Sicily Island Friday night.

Beats Out Favored Stablemate, Bed O'Roses, In Aqueduct Feature

New York, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Bed O' Roses was supposed to be the solid horse in the $66,000 Beldame Handicap today at Aqueduct, but a stablemate — Next Move — went out and won it by two and one quarter lengths.

A crowd of 31,171 turned out for the finale of the Aqueduct season, and established the Vanderbilt entry as the heavy choice.

Second money in the mile and one eighth event for fillies and mares went to W. J. Lenihan's September, a Calumet farm castoff. Calumet's Wistful moved into third place in the stretch but could only take third, a length behind September.

Jockey Nichols Combest sent Next Move to the front at the break and was never threatened in the mile and one eighth stake—one of the nation's richest for the weaker sex. The time was a good 1:50-1 5 as Next Move galloped along easily several lengths clear all the time.

The three-year-old daughter of Bull Lea-Now What picked up a $47,000 purse for her Maryland-New York sportsman owner and returned $4.40, $2.80 and $2.80 at the mutuels. September paid $8.90 and $4.40 and Wistful was $3.00 to show.

In winning, Next Move boosted her total gleanings to $181,650. She has won 10 races, finished second twice and third once in 21 starts. Last year she was lady-in-waiting as the experts crowned Bed O' Roses 2-year-old queen of the turf.

The time is the best for the stake since the 1942 split running when both Belair stud's Vagrancy and Binglin stock farm's Barrancosa each were clocked in 1:50.

Saucier Tops Texas Sluggers With .343

Dallas, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Frank Saucier of San Antonio led the Texas League in batting with an average of .343.

Saucier got 151 hits in 44 mes at bat.

Ruggles said the averages were all completely official except subject to recheck.

Beaumont and Oklahoma City swept up most of the individual titles. Bob Marquis of Beaumont led in runs with 124, McDougald in hits with 187. Stu Locklin of Oklahoma City in doubles with 43, Eddie Knoblauch of Tulsa in triples with 15 and Bob Lemon of Oklahoma City in home runs and runs batted in with 39 and 119 respectively.

The league produced three 20-game pitchers. Jim Blackburn of Tulsa led in percentage with 21-7 for .750. Wayne McLeland of Dallas had a 21-8 record and Ernie Nevel of Beaumont 21-12.

Oklahoma City, which finished sixth in the league race, led the circuit in hitting with .270. Beaumont was second with .266.

Plan Afoot To 'Rescue' Coaches From Task Of Player Recruiting

Savannah, Ga., Sept. 16.—(AP)—A highly-placed move came to light today to "rescue" college football coaches from the task of recruiting talent.

James Lynah, N. C. A. A. panel chairman, disclosed that he had developed a plan to take recruiting of players out of the hands of coaches and alumni and assign it to the offices of conference commissioners.

Lynah hastened to add that he is not now at liberty to disclose any details of the project. He said it will be a "welcome relief" to coaches who find the corralling of top-calibre players distasteful, "especially when alumni inject themselves in the picture."

He predicted it will halt the yearly train of forced "resignations" of coaches who were unable to round up high calibre crews.

The N. C. A. A. official announced he will present the plan in detail to N. C. A. A. conference members at the end of this season. If adopted, it will go into effect next season.

Details probably will be outlined to individual conferences before the N. C. A. A. annual meeting.

Lynah insisted that his purpose is to "help" the coach.

"For some years," he said, "coaches have dominated the football rules committee and have, in reality, been the custodians of the sport.

"They have permitted the game to become so complex that even with their large and expensive staffs of assistants they have no time to teach the game to novices.

"They demand ready-made players of proven aptitudes and skills for indoctrination into their respective systems. Furthermore, they require with their combined freshman and varsity squads, weeks of pre-season fall practice, daily rehearsals, Sunday lectures and review of moving pictures of the contests, in addition to hours of physical conditioning, in order to field fairly creditable teams."

On top of this comes the burden of lining up capable players, and it was Lynah's idea that 'coaches really need rescue" from such "situations of their own creation."

"There is little doubt," he went on, "that they find a job of recruiting very distasteful, especially when alumni inject themselves into the picture."

Recruiting football players," he asserted, "is distinctly not a part of a coach's job any more than recruiting students for a chemistry course is a part of the chemistry professor's job."

He granted that recruiting and subsidizing of players is "destined to continue forsome time" but said "they are susceptible to firmer control."

As other virtues of his plan he listed substantial savings in recruiting costs and a more equitable distribution of athletes.

DOUBLE-A RACE GROWS WARMER

Eagles, Lumberjacks Tie; Wildcats Have Hard Fight; Lions Lose

(By The Associated Press)

Two of Louisiana's double - A football powers locked horns last night in a game that proved only that both are football powers.

Bogalusa and Warren Easton of New Orleans fought to a 6-6 tie, their second deadlock in two years. Both came up with the same bruising play that carried them to the front in Louisiana football.

Two other games matched double-A teams. Lake Charles had to come from a two-touchdown deficit with some fancy running to beat Terrebonne of Houma 18-12. Baton Rouge came up to expectations by trouncing Bolton of Alexandria 18-0 after a scoreless first half.

Other double-A teams took on outside competition. Catholic of Baton Rouge beat Bishop Byrne of Port Arthur, Tex., 37-14. Byrd of Shreveport downed Natchitoches 35-12 and Haynesville edged Ruston 7-6. The other league teams fared poorly. Port Arthur downed Fortier of New Orleans 33-0, Bossier City beat Ouachita 19-12 and Abbeville beat Lafayette 19-12.

Both Bogalusa and Warren Easton resorted to passes to score. Easton tallied first on a 20-yard play from Harry Willie to Mickey Lacoste. Bogalusa retaliated with a 25-yard play from Cliff Stringfield to D. B. Hall.

Terrebonne hit for two scores in the opening period on Tommy Strait's 72-yard run and Camille Arceneaux's 24-yard end around jaunt. Lake Charles came back with an 85-yard punt return by Larry McBride, a four-yard plunge by Dick Sarver and a 67-yard run by McBride.

Baton Rouge awakened in the second half to beat Bolton with scores by Jim Cain and Merlin Darouse on short runs and a nine-yard Bobby Baker to Charlie Walker pass.

J. F. Herrington scored three touchdowns and Russ Gautreaux two to pace Catholic over Bishop Byrne, Herrington on runs of one, 59 and 73 yards, and Gautreaux on runs of 27 and 75. Jack Fernandez got the other. Bobby Ledet and Walter Boudreaux scored for Byrne.

Starting backs Edgar Galloway and Ronald Wideman got a touchdown each for Byrd against Natchitoches, then left it to Subs Dan Brown, Raymond McFadden and Donald Owens to get the rest. Wideman kicked the five points. Archie Worsham got both Natchitoches scores.

Adral Nelson of Haynesville booted the extra point that beat Ruston. His kick came after Bill Stanberry scored on a 13-yard run around end. Ruston's score came on a Stimpson to Rentz pass with four minutes left.

Favored Ouachita got off to a good start, with touchdowns by Bob Carter and Guy DuPriest, and led 12-6 at halftime. But Bossier City came back on touchdowns by J. O. Finley and Tony Montalbano to take the game. The first Bossier score was also made by Finley.

Abbeville had too much for double-A Lafayette. But the losers managed two drives that paid off. The scores came on an eight yard run by Billy McDaniels and a six-yard run by Dub Polson.

Port Arthur scored almost at will against outclassed Fortier. Port Arthur's Frank Eidom was too hard to handle. He scored twice and sparked his team throughout the game.

Upsets Favored Mae Murray With Stunning 6-4 Win In Finals

By Sterling Slappey

Atlanta, Sept. 16.—(AP)—The rapid fire and seldom straying golf shots of long and lean Beverly Hanson trampled little Mae Murray with a 6-4 victory today and won her the Women's National Amateur championship in a great upset.

Miss Hanson, a bassoon-playing former newspaper woman in Fargo, N. D., astounded the gallery at old East Lake course with a fast game which caught Miss Murray off balance. Beverly, now playing out of Pasadena, Calif., was expected to lose the finals by a fairly large score.

On the first nine holes of the 36-hole final Miss Murray, the 24-year old daughter of a Scottish golf professional in Rutland, Vt., took a two-hole lead. That lead disappeared and as they made the first turn of the day the Californian led instead.

The only rally generated by Miss Murray came in the tag end of the match when she won two consecutive holes. A birdie by Miss Hanson on the 32nd hole ended the golden anniversary National at the 6,521 yard par 75 course which gave Bobby Jones, Alexa Stirling and Charlie Yates their starts to national and international titles.

Beverly has won seven titles this year in nine attempts. In addition she won both her matches in Curtis Cup competition at Buffalo, N. Y. Tournament victories came in the mid-winter at Los Angeles, the California state, Southern California, and in invitational meets at Pasadena, Palm Springs and Indio, all in California. She lost in the Western and the Trans-Mississippi.

Beverly was the first to make Mae scramble and she did it with solid golf. While Miss Murray's shots began to spray and her score by holes varied from two's to sixes, Miss Hanson's never went above five or below three. When Miss Hanson lost a hole it usually was to a birdie or an eagle.

This was Beverly's fifth try for the National title. She failed to qualify once, reached the quarter-finals twice and last year lost in with hardly a nod from the gal the first round.

Miss Murray came to East Lake lery as the potential winner. She remained mostly among the mass until she defeated Fay Crocker of Montevideo, Uruguay, in a 27-hole fourth round match. The length of that match exceeded anything on United States Golf Association records going back to 1919.

From the victory over Crocker until the back nine of this morning's round, Mae was the pick to win.

Deluxe Outlasts Reville To Win Narragansett Run

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 16.—(AP)—True Davis, Jr.'s four-year-old Deluxe came from behind to defeat George D. Widener's Reville by a half-length in the $29,600 Narragansett Special here today before a 23,812 crowd.

After Deluxe covered the mile and three-sixteenths in 1:57 3-5, the Frances stable's High Bracket showed, a length and three-quarters behind Reville.

The Brandywine stable's Cochise top-weighted with 123 pounds and the favorite in the field of 11, had a rough start out of the gate and never threatened before finishing ninth.

While earning $20,550 for his new owner, Deluxe, in with a 110-pounds impost, paid $13.80, $7.20 and $5.40. Reveille returned $14.40 and $10.00 and High Bracket $11.20 for show.

Miss Murray came to East Lake as the potential winner. She remained mostly among the mass until she defeated Fay Crocker of Montevideo, Uruguay, in a 27-hole fourth round match. The length of that match exceeded anything on United States Golf Association records going back to 1919.

From the victory over Crocker until the back nine of this morning's round, Mae was the pick to win.

Deluxe Outlasts Reville To Win Narragansett Run

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 16.—(AP)—True Davis, Jr.'s four-year-old Deluxe came from behind to defeat George D. Widener's Reville by a half-length in the $29,600 Narragansett Special here today before a 23,812 crowd.

After Deluxe covered the mile and three-sixteenths in 1:57 3-5, the Frances stable's High Bracket showed, a length and three-quarters behind Reville.

The Brandywine stable's Cochise top-weighted with 123 pounds and the favorite in the field of 11, had a rough start out of the gate and never threatened before finishing ninth.

While earning $20,550 for his new owner, Deluxe, in with a 110-pounds impost, paid $13.80, $7.20 and $5.40. Reveille returned $14.40 and $10.00 and High Bracket $11.20 for show.

Students Given Official Welcome

N.E. STATE OPENS 4-YEAR PROGRAM

Fun And Seriousness Combine At First General Meet Of Fall Term

The shadow of Northeast Junior College faded out Thursday when the first enrollees of Northeast Louisiana State College were welcomed at an orientation program at the new institution by President Lewis Slater.

Slater stressed in his address the importance of scholarship and determination to learn on the part of the students. A former faculty member at N. J. C., Slater received enthusiastic applause upon being introduced as the new president.

As guest speaker for the day, Rev. A. M. Serex, pastor of the First Methodist Church in Monroe, pointed out the responsibility on the part of the first students to enter the new college. He emphasized that the progress and success of the school "depend on the personalities comprising its student body and leadership."

Like any other institution, Serex said, a college is known by the deeds and achievements of the people who make it up and not its material assets.

Rev. C. S. Cadwallader delivered the benediction. Cadwallader is pastor of the College Place Baptist Church.

Turning from the more serious events of the program, students and faculty members were served refreshments with President and Mrs. Slater as hosts. Music by a hill-billy band and square dancing followed.

The entire activity for the day was confined to the gymnasium due to repair work now in progress in the auditorium.

However, the gym proved desirable for the music and dance session.

The hillbilly band, fragments of a similar amateur organization on the campus two seasons ago, displayed the talents of Harry Liner, Thomas Bearden, Bryan Ritter, John "Red" Hanks and Tommy Lindsey. Liner, Bearden and Ritter are former N. J. C. students. Hanks, of Chestnut and Lindsey Baton Rouge, both are from the L. S. U. campus.

Another high point of interest was the introduction of the football team by the newly appointed Assistant Coach "Woody" Boyles, who is an N. J. C. graduate and former member of the Indian squad himself. Coach Jim Malone was absent for the big event. The Indian Chief was reported out of town carrying out scouting chores.

The potential cheering squad for the coming season, including members from Northeast Louisiana high schools and one from Arkansas, gave a brief, unrehearsed presentation. They were led by veterans of the N. J. C. pep team.

BAVARIAN PAIR WILL BE GUESTS

Young Women To Go To LaSalle Parish To Study Home Demonstration

Jena, La., Sept. 16.—(Special)—Two young women from the province of Bavaria, in western Germany, will visit in LaSalle parish during the week beginning Sept. 18 for the purpose of studying home demonstration practices under the agricultural extension service, it was announced this week by Mrs. Maxine Reeves, LaSalle parish home agent.

The young women, Fraulein Elizabeth Leipold and Fraulein Frederike Straller, now are studying at Louisiana State University under the foreign student exchange program and are making these field trips to a few selected parishes of Louisiana, Mrs. Reeves said.

Before coming to the United States for study, the young women were employed as teachers in a girls' agricultural school in Bavaria, teaching during the winter months and conducting work similar to the home demonstration services of the extension program during the spring and summer months.

On these field trips into the various parishes of the state, the young women will seek to learn methods of organization of home and farm extension services and ways and means of adapting and applying them to their problems in Germany, Mrs. Reeves pointed out. These field trips will continue through the month of October, she said.

COTTON

New York

During early trading, the market was irregular with nearly deliveries depressed by hedges and some profit taking. Dealers also sold in expectation of increased hedges next week which might accompany heavier movement of new crop cotton.

The early selling, however, dwindled away and a small amount of mill buying was sufficient to reverse the lower trend and institute net gains in midmorning. Selling increased toward the close and prices were off at the final trade.

Closing prices were steady, 25 cents a bale lower to five cents higher.

Trading was quiet with fluctuations over a narrow range. The early demand was attributed to trade buying to fix prices and heave rains in the north-central portion of the belt.

Little Theatre Curtain Call

Look at us! You'd almost think we'd gone into the Pen Pal business here in the Little Theatre corner. It's not quite that, though, just a note we think will interest you. Here 'tis:

Dear Monroe:

If that sounds rather like an impersonal way to begin a letter, let me hasten to explain that that is my way of telling everyone within sound of Little Theatre of Monroe's voice that I am glad to be back and very anxious to begin my second year of directing in your city.

The past year is an unprecedented one in the history of the Little Theatre. Last fall, before the season began, we promised our members the best in community theatre. I believe that our obligation (yes, once the promise was made, we considered it an obligation) was more than casually fulfilled. And still there have been no cries of short-changed members. So with that feeling of having a firmly established year behind us, we are diving headfirst into our new year.

I feel that Monroe is now theatrically an adult, and certain headaches that arose last year, will not be repeated. Casting, which was the most serious of the problems, will have to be approached in a different manner. If the theatre is to exist, thrive and advance, there must be more cooperation on that front. There were times last year when, after tryouts had been well publicized in advance, only a half dozen aspirants would turn out. For a city of this size, that is a shamefully poor representation. If a person is interested in having a theatre in Monroe, he should be interested of aiding on a production where his services are most needed.

There are many of these theatrical headaches, and although it is my place to remedy them, it can only be done with the help of all. It is essential that there be community unification if there is to be community theatre. Little Theatre is many things, but most important it is your friend. Who of you would not rally to the cause of a friend when needed? So if you should be called upon during this year for help which at first appearance might seem an inconvenience, consider the overall enjoyment gained by so many from the cause in which you have a hand.

After much careful reading, rereading and many hours spent burning the mid-night oil I feel that this season is about to get off to a start much ahead of last year. This afternoon we are holding tryouts for the first play of the season, "Boy Meets Girl", a farce comedy written fifteen years ago, a period which has only helped enhance its quality. There are nineteen in the cast, a fact which last year would have eliminated it as a possibility. Not so now. Remember, we are theatrically an adult, and since that is the case, there is no play that we can not attempt, enlarging the possibilities of a superior season. Come out to the playhouse at 3 this afternoon, if for no reason other than to familiarize yourself with the theatre. Know your theatre. It is a friend worth knowing. And remember, I may be calling on you before the end of this season.

Theatrically yours,
C. Stocker Fontelieu,
Executive Director,
Little Theatre of Monroe.

Stocker certainly put the issue to us squarely on that one. The question we must face is this: Are we or are we not a well-equipped, well-qualified Little Theatre group? We think so. And we think that, being well set up in the dramatic business, we must go forward and follow Stocker's lead. There's plenty to be done, we tell ourselves. All right, let's do it now!

Movie Notes: Melvin Greenblatt, manager of the Paramount and Capitol theaters in Monroe and avid Little Theatre booster, let us in on a bit of promising entertainment news. "Summer Stock," MGM's latest technicolor superduper, is on the way to the Paramount. The musical, featuring Judy Garland, Gene Kelly, Eddie Bracken, Gloria De Haven, Phil Silvers and Marjorie Main, has a story line that's aimed right at the hearts of Little Theatre fans. The story takes place in a summer stock company of amateur actors who have set up stage on an old Connecticut farm. By coincidence, Mr. G. also mentioned the date it's opening . . . next Sunday, September 24.

Man Shoots Wife, Self, 6 Children Survive

Greencastle, Ind., Sept. 16.—(AP)—An Indianapolis factory worker shot his wife to death today as she and their six children ran from her home, and then killed himself.

Mrs. Martha Jackson, 28-year-old waitress, was killed by a shotgun charge as she and the children, age 4 to 11, ran screaming across the yard of their home in nearby Bainbridge. The husband, Lester, 35, killed himself with the same gun after Mrs. Jackson fell.

The children ran to the home of a neighbor, Jesse Coffman, and told of an argument and threats by the father before the shooting.

Eleven-year-old Shirley said her father came to their home before their mother returned from a restaurant on U. S. 36 where she worked.

"Mommie hadn't been home long before Daddy started abusing her," Shirley said. "He got out the big shotgun. We were all afraid and got right out of the house. We thought Mommie was coming with us.

"The next thing we heard was the gun firing," Shirley continued. "Then there was mother lying in the front yard. Just a few seconds later we heard another shot."

Neighbors said the husband had not been living with the family recently.

The children, in addition to Shirley, are David, 10; Lester, Jr., 8; Bonnie, 6; Susie, 5, and Kay, 4.

LOSE HOTELS IN SHANGHAI

Singapore—(AP)—British hotel owners in Shanghai are forfeiting their hotels owned for generations by their families, rather than bring in fresh capital to keep them going, says Mrs. Jessie Ferguson, a Shanghai resident for 27 years, who is now on her way back to England. Foreign residents found it extremely difficult to live in the Red-held city, she said. Business was slack. There was only one guest in a 15-floor skyscraper. Hotel owners had to pay heavy taxation to the Communist government—a policy designed to get rid of the foreign investor so the Reds could take over, she said.

ARK-LA-TEX PLAN MISSION SERVICE

Meetings This Week Will Coincide With 'Go To Church' Campaign

Beginning Monday and continuing through Friday, the Lutheran churches of the Ark-La-Tex area will hold a week of simultaneous Mission Services.

The services will be of the informal—evangelistic type and will be designed to reach non-church members. It is significant that in Monroe, this week of Mission Services coincides with the local drive of the Kiwanis Club to "Go to Church".

Plans have been made for each of the local pastors to open and close the week in their own parishes. On Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday each will take charge of services at one of the various other congregations. Services at Trinity Lutheran Church, located two blocks south of Northeast Louisiana State College, this city, will begin each evening at 7:30.

The schedule of services at Trinity is:

Monday, Sept. 18—Rev. Harold Reinhardt, pastor of Trinity, Monroe, La., will speak on the words of Christ, "I am the Vine"—John 15, 5-7 and 11.

Wednesday, Sept. 20—Rev. Donald Reinbolt of Redeemer, Alexandria, La., He will speak on, "The Great Contrast"—Romans 6, 23.

Thursday, Sept. 21.—Rev. Wesley Kuhn of Our Savior, El Dorado, Ark. will speak of "God's Blank Check"—I John 5, 11-12.

Friday, Sept. 22.—Rev. Harold Reinhardt of Trinity, Monroe, La., will speak of "The Second Creation"—Psalm 5, 10-12.

On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday the local pastor, Rev. Harold Reinhardt, will be in charge of the services at Shreveport, Alexandria and El Dorado respectively. Invitation have been sent out to many of the residents of Monroe to attend not only these Mission Services but also the regular services on Sunday mornings.

BAVARIAN PAIR WILL BE GUESTS

Young Women To Go To La-Salle Parish To Study Home Demonstration

Jena, La., Sept. 16.—(Special)—Two young women from the province of Bavaria, in western Germany, will visit in LaSalle parish during the week beginning Sept. 18 for the purpose of studying home demonstration practices under the agricultural extension service, it was announced this week by Mrs. Maxine Reeves, LaSalle parish home agent.

The young women, Fraulein Elizabeth Leipold and Fraulein Frederike Straller, now are studying at Louisiana State University under the foreign student exchange program and are making these field trips to a few selected parishes of Louisiana, Mrs. Reeves said.

Before coming to the United States for study, the young women were employed as teachers in a girls' agricultural school in Bavaria, teaching during the winter months and conducting work similar to the home demonstration services of the extension program during the spring and summer months.

On these field trips into the various parishes of the state, the young women will seek to learn methods of organization of home and farm extension services and ways and means of adapting and applying them to their problems in Germany, Mrs. Reeves pointed out. These field trips will continue through the month of October, she said.

COTTON

New York

During early trading, the market was irregular with nearly deliveries depressed by hedges and some profit taking. Dealers also sold in expectation of increased hedges next week which might accompany heavier movement of new crop cotton.

The early selling, however, dwindled away and a small amount of mill buying was sufficient to reverse the lower trend and institute net gains in midmorning. Selling increased toward the close and prices were off at the final trade.

Futures closed five cents to $1.05 a bale lower than the previous close.

New Orleans

Closing prices were steady, 25 cents a bale lower to five cents higher.

Trading was quiet with fluctuations over a narrow range. The early demand was attributed to trade buying to fix prices and heave rains in the north-central portion of the belt.

GYPT GETS FAST TRAINS

Cairo—(AP)—Modern, high-speed trains soon will run on the Egyptian railways network. The gyptian government has ordered 10 trains from England. With a speed of 100 miles per hour, they will reduce the present three-hour trip between Cairo and Alexandria, the summer capital, to a little more than one hour. Five trains already are enroute to Egypt.

Man's Pocket Picked At Religious Meeting

Pasadena, Calif., Sept. 16.—(AP)—Police today sought a hardened sinner who failed to get religion from the preaching of Evangelist Billy Graham.

Some 50,000 attended the revival meeting Thursday night in the Rose Bowl and an estimated 1,000 or so were converted.

But Albert C. Hamilton today reported to police that his pocket was picked of $480 at the revival.

Little Theatre Curtain Call

Look at us! You'd almost think we'd gone into the Pen Pal business here in the Little Theatre corner. It's not quite that, though, just a note we think will interest you. Here 'tis:

Dear Monroe:

If that sounds rather like an impersonal way to begin a letter, let me hasten to explain that that is my way of telling everyone within sound of Little Theatre of Monroe's voice that I am glad to be back and very anxious to begin my second year of directing in your city.

The past year is an unprecedented one in the history of the Little Theatre. Last fall, before the season began, we promised our members the best in community theatre. I believe that our obligation (yes, once the promise was made, we considered it an obligation) was more than casually fulfilled. And still there have been no cries of short-changed members. So with that feeling of having a firmly established year behind us, we are diving headfirst into our new year.

I feel that Monroe is now theatrically an adult, and certain headaches that arose last year, will not be repeated. Casting, which was the most serious of the problems, will have to be approached in a different manner. If the theatre is to exist, thrive and advance, there must be more cooperation on that front. There were times last year when, after tryouts had been well publicized in advance, only a half dozen aspirants would turn out. For a city of this size, that is a shamefully poor representation. If a person is interested in having a theatre in Monroe, he should be interested of aiding on a production where his services are most needed.

There are many of these theatrical headaches, and although it is my place to remedy them, it can only be done with the help of all. It is essential that there be community unification if there is to be community theatre. Little Theatre is many things, but most important it is your friend. Who of you would not rally to the cause of a friend when needed? So if you should be called upon during this year for help which at first appearance might seem an inconvenience, consider the overall enjoyment gained by so many from the cause in which you have a hand.

After much careful reading, rereading and many hours spent burning the mid-night oil I feel that this season is about to get off to a start much ahead of last year. This afternoon we are holding tryouts for the first play of the season, "Boy Meets Girl", a farce comedy written fifteen years ago, a period which has only helped enhance its quality. There are nineteen in the cast, a fact which last year would have eliminated it as a possibility. Not so now. Remember, we are theatrically an adult, and since that is the case, there is no play that we can not attempt, enlarging the possibilities of a superior season. Come out to the playhouse at 3 this afternoon, if for no reason other than to familiarize yourself with the theatre. Know your theatre. It is a friend worth knowing. And remember, I may be calling on you before the end of this season.

Theatrically yours,
C. Stocker Fontelieu,
Executive Director,
Little Theatre of Monroe.

Stocker certainly put the issue to us squarely on that one. The question we must face is this: Are we or are we not a well-equipped, well-qualified Little Theatre group? We think so. And we think that, being well set up in the dramatic business, we must go forward and follow Stocker's lead. There's plenty to be done, we tell ourselves. All right, let's do it now!

Movie Notes: Melvin Greenblatt, manager of the Paramount and Capitol theaters in Monroe and avid Little Theatre booster, let us in on a bit of promising entertainment news. "Summer Stock," MGM's latest technicolor superduper, is on the way to the Paramount. The musical, featuring Judy Garland, Gene Kelly, Eddie Bracken, Gloria De Haven, Phil Silvers and Marjorie Main, has a story line that's aimed right at the hearts of Little Theatre fans. The story takes place in a summer stock company of amateur actors who have set up stage on an old Connecticut farm. By coincidence, Mr. G. also mentioned the date it's opening . . . next Sunday, September 24.

Man Shoots Wife, Self, 6 Children Survive

Greencastle, Ind., Sept. 16.—(AP)—An Indianapolis factory worker shot his wife to death today as she and their six children ran from her home, and then killed himself.

Mrs. Martha Jackson, 28-year-old waitress, was killed by a shotgun charge as she and the children, age 4 to 11, ran screaming across the yard of their home in nearby Bainbridge. The husband, Lester, 35, killed himself with the same gun after Mrs. Jackson fell.

The children ran to the home of a neighbor, Jesse Coffman, and told of an argument and threats by the father before the shooting.

Eleven-year-old Shirley said her father came to their home before their mother returned from a restaurant on U. S. 36 where she worked.

"Mommie hadn't been home long before Daddy started abusing her," Shirley said. "He got out the big shotgun. We were all afraid and got right out of the house. We thought Mommie was coming with us.

"The next thing we heard was the gun firing," Shirley continued. "Then there was mother lying in the front yard. Just a few seconds later we heard another shot."

Neighbors said the husband had not been living with the family recently.

The children, in addition to Shirley, are David, 10; Lester, Jr., 8; Bonnie, 6; Susie, 5, and Kay, 4.

LOSE HOTELS IN SHANGHAI

Singapore—(AP)—British hotel owners in Shanghai are forfeiting their hotels owned for generations by their families, rather than bring in fresh capital to keep them going, says Mrs. Jessie Ferguson, a Shanghai resident for 27 years, who is now on her way back to England. Foreign residents found it extremely difficult to live in the Red-held city, she said. Business was slack. There was only one guest in a 15-floor skyscraper. Hotel owners had to pay heavy taxation to the Communist government—a policy designed to get rid of the foreign investor so the Reds could take over, she said.

ARK-LA-TEX PLAN MISSION SERVICE

Meetings This Week Will Coincide With 'Go To Church' Campaign

Beginning Monday and continuing through Friday, the Lutheran churches of the Ark-La-Tex area will hold a week of simultaneous Mission Services.

The services will be of the informal—evangelistic type and will be designed to reach non-church members. It is significant that in Monroe, this week of Mission Services coincides with the local drive of the Kiwanis Club to "Go to Church".

Plans have been made for each of the local pastors to open and close the week in their own parishes. On Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday each will take charge of services at one of the various other congregations. Services at Trinity Lutheran Church, located two blocks south of Northeast Louisiana State College, this city, will begin each evening at 7:30.

The schedule of services at Trinity is:

Monday, Sept. 18—Rev. Harold Reinhardt, pastor of Trinity, Monroe, La., will speak on the words of Christ, "I am the Vine"—John 15, 5-7 and 11.

Wednesday, Sept. 20—Rev. Donald Reinbolt of Redeemer, Alexandria, La., He will speak on, "The Great Contrast"—Romans 6, 23.

Thursday, Sept. 21.—Rev. Wesley Kuhn of Our Savior, El Dorado, Ark. will speak of "God's Blank Check"—I John 5, 11-12.

Friday, Sept. 22.—Rev. Harold Reinhardt of Trinity, Monroe, La., will speak of "The Second Creation"—Psalm 5, 10-12.

On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday the local pastor, Rev. Harold Reinhardt, will be in charge of the services at Shreveport, Alexandria and El Dorado respectively. Invitation have been sent out to many of the residents of Monroe to attend not only these Mission Services but also the regular services on Sunday mornings.

OIL MEN KEEPING EYE ON CONTROLS

Hope Voluntary Measures May Forestall Or Minimize Regulations

By Tex Easley

Washington, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Oil men are keeping a watchful eye on the tightening of economic controls, hoping voluntarily measures may forestall or minimize regulations for their industry.

The oil field materials committee of the Independent Petroleum Association of America met this week in Fort Worth to discuss the situation.

Encouraged by the attitude of the Texas meeting, I. P. A. A. General Counsel Russell B. Brown returned here contemplating talks with steel representatives. He hopes the two industries can get together on an allocation and distribution plan.

A five-point program was endorsed by the I. P. A. A.:

1. Determination and allocation by the steel industry of an adequate supply of the strategic metal for tubular goods and other needs of the oil industry.

2. Distribution by the petroleum industry itself of steel goods only where they are in immediate demand, for the purpose of preventing any accumulation of scarce stocks.

3. Recognition of the needs of small independent operators, who can't plan their activities far ahead.

4. Discourage individual producers from accumulating or holding unnecessary stockpiles of steel goods.

5. Sponsor studies and investigations to learn better methods of operating and improvising so as to lessen steel requirements.

As an example of the third point, Brown told of an independent operator who recently discovered oil in five wildcat tests and is now in need of tubular goods to get production started.

One of the practices the industry voluntarily can adopt to relieve the steel shortage, Brown said, is that of pulling one string of casing where two are in a hole and the geological structure permits such a step.

"I believe we can work out a voluntary program that will be successful," Brown added.

"It should avoid a return of the black market, and insure delivery of steel to producers who need to meet the national defense rquirments for oil."

Brown expressed belief that most major companies would be willing to take less steel if assured adequate supplies for their operations.

There is speculation of a possible announcement soon by Secretary of the Interior Chapman creating a bureau of minerals and energy.

One report is that such a bureau would be divided into three divisions: Oil and gas, coal, electricity.

Although this arrangement probably wouldn't please most of the oil industry as much as the old petroleum administration for war, there is talk former Deputy P. A. W. Administrator Ralph K. Davies may be made undersecretary of the interior to handle oil affairs.

Representative Gavin (R.-Pa.), who hails from Oil City, paid tribute in the house yesterday to the petroleum industry.

After noting that the first oil well in the U. S. was discovered in his congressional district 91 years ago, Gavin said the industry had met all demands upon it.

"Industrial initiative has been the principal factor," he added.

"Men free to exercise their own judgments have found the oil and developed the processes and the methods of converting it to beneficial uses."

OIL MEN KEEPING EYE ON CONTROLS

Hope Voluntary Measures May Forestall Or Minimize Regulations

By Tex Easley

Washington, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Oil men are keeping a watchful eye on the tightening of economic controls, hoping voluntarily measures may forestall or minimize regulations for their industry.

The oil field materials committee of the Independent Petroleum Association of America met this week in Fort Worth to discuss the situation.

Encouraged by the attitude of the Texas meeting, I. P. A. A. General Counsel Russell B. Brown returned here contemplating talks with steel representatives. He hopes the two industries can get together on an allocation and distribution plan.

A five-point program was endorsed by the I. P. A. A.:

1. Determination and allocation by the steel industry of an adequate supply of the strategic metal for tubular goods and other needs of the oil industry.

2. Distribution by the petroleum industry itself of steel goods only where they are in immediate demand, for the purpose of preventing any accumulation of scarce stocks.

3. Recognition of the needs of small independent operators, who can't plan their activities far ahead.

4. Discourage individual producers from accumulating or holding unnecessary stockpiles of steel goods.

5. Sponsor studies and investigations to learn better methods of operating and improvising so as to lessen steel requirements.

As an example of the third point, Brown told of an independent operator who recently discovered oil in five wildcat tests and is now in need of tubular goods to get production started.

One of the practices the industry voluntarily can adopt to relieve the steel shortage, Brown said, is that of pulling one string of casing where two are in a hole and the geological structure permits such a step.

"I believe we can work out a voluntary program that will be successful," Brown added.

"It should avoid a return of the black market, and insure delivery of steel to producers who need to meet the national defense rquirments for oil."

Brown expressed belief that most major companies would be willing to take less steel if assured adequate supplies for their operations.

There is speculation of a possible announcement soon by Secretary of the Interior Chapman creating a bureau of minerals and energy.

One report is that such a bureau would be divided into three divisions: Oil and gas, coal, electricity.

Although this arrangement probably wouldn't please most of the oil industry as much as the old petroleum administration for war, there is talk former Deputy P. A. W. Administrator Ralph K. Davies may be made undersecretary of the interior to handle oil affairs.

Representative Gavin (R.-Pa.), who hails from Oil City, paid tribute in the house yesterday to the petroleum industry.

After noting that the first oil well in the U. S. was discovered in his congressional district 91 years ago, Gavin said the industry had met all demands upon it.

"Industrial initiative has been the principal factor," he added.

"Men free to exercise their own judgments have found the oil and developed the processes and the methods of converting it to beneficial uses."

STATE REPORT

The members of the Junior Charity League wish to express gratitude to citizens of the Twin Cities for their supportt in helping to make their recentt thrift shop sale, "The Flea Market," a success. They are grateful to the many merchants who contributed merchandise for this sale and to V. C. Spatafora for the free loan of his building for the sale; to William Mintz, of the Terminal Bag Company, for the paper bags he donated for the purchases; to Bancroftt Paper Company for the numerous cake boxes used in the sweet shop as well as to the Louisiana Paper Company for cellophane used in wrapping the homemade candies and cookies. Mr. Henderson, of Ryan's Variety store loaned a dress rack, as did A. D. Hakim of York's Children's shop and Charles Searcy also aided.

From the proceeds of the sale, a net profit of $664.54 was realized and the Junior Charity League can now go forward in their help to the many underprivileged children of the community and through this medium, the members again wantt to express their appreciation to all who made this project so worthwhile.

With deep regret in another column of today's paper we announce the re-assignment of Rev. George Parce, Jr., from the pastorate of the Memorial Methodist Church here, to the pastorate of the First Methodist Church in DeRidder. The present tpastor of the last named church has been re-assigned as chaplain in the far east war and it became necessary to fill the post thus left tvacant. Unfo[illegible] Monroe, but fortunately for DeRidder, popular George Pearce, Jr. was the choice. George Pearce has been a resident here only several years but in this time he has made worlds of friends both within and without the circle of his church. His devotion to his cause, his unselfishness, his desire at any and all times to be of assistance to fellow man, marked him as an unusually remarkable and all together fine person to know.

In Shreveport he was picked as the young man of the year and the one who had done the most for the advancement of the city along all lines of activity. We know Memorial Church here will be deeply regrateful to be forced to lose such a valuable asset as George Pearce has proved in our midst.

Church bells and sirens will peal forth at the stroke of 9 o'clock tonight throughout the Twin Cities. Immediately thereafter the local drive for the American Cancer Society will be in full progress.

Evryone in sympathy with the raising of funds for the prosecution of the war on this disease will be asked to turn on their porch lights. This will last for an hour o[illegible]ntil a collector has called and taken the donation for this worthy cause. If one cannot donate or is not so disposed, the light on the porch should be out. This is a most original project, states Miss Nina (Dutch) Martin, campaign chairman, and everyone in the Twin Cities is asked to cooperate to the best tadvantage in its success. "Turn on the porch lights; have a donation, large or small in readiness, thus doing your part."

U.S. To Stop Marshall Plan Aid To Greece

Athens, Greece, Sept. 16. —(AP)— The United States told Greece today Marshall Plan aid will be reduced because Greece has not done what it could to help itself.

But ECA Chief Paul Porter said that the reduction might be restored partially if the Greek government cuts its expenses and builds up revenues.

This hope of restoration of the Marshall funds was contained in a statement issued by the government after Porter conferred with Premier Sophocles Venizelos and his coalition government leaders.

Porter said the reduction was decided upon some time ago in Washington and casts no reflection on the New Venizelos government which took office Wednesday. He described the present coalition government as stable.

EXPAND INVASION

South Korea's naval chief, Rear Adm. Sohn Wn Il, told AP correspondent Relman Morin at Inchon:

"The enemy is different now; he is not fighting. I do not believe the North Koreans have any organized army units this far north."

Sohn said he thought the Reds would surrender if they had a chance.

This was not true, however, on the rain-lashed southern front, where the United Nations forces launched a general offensive. They advanced, but it was hard going through deep mud and against an enemy who sometimes ran but more often stood and fought with the desperation of death. It was a bitter, seesaw conflict at most points.

U. S. Second Division troops had the best success in the early hours of the southeastern general offensive. A division spokesman said they drove four and one-half miles to the east bank of the Naktong river against Reds pulling back westward in a "general exodus" and in "vast, mad confusion."

The Second Division failed however, in the first attempt to drive North Koreans from vital Hill 201, which commands a vast sweep of the Allied central front. They smashed to within 300 yards of the hilltop late Saturday but nightfall forced them to make a heartbreaking withdrawal down its slopes.

Frontline reports from the center of the Naktong River line showed the Americans had pushed back an estimated 3,000 North Korean Reds—elements of three reduced divisions. Enemy casualties in that sector were estimated at 1,500.

Other Allied ground forces struck forward one to five miles against stiffer Red opposition on the extreme south, the north and the northeast sectors of the 120-mile United Nations perimeter.

The early successes brought a comment of guarded optimism from Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker, commanding the U. S. Eighth Army on the southeast perimeter.

The war, he said, "should be over quickly" but there will be hard fighting ahead if the Reds bring up reserves "we don't know about."

Two army corps were formed in Walker's command to launch the new general offensive. The first corps was created under the command of Maj. Gen. Frank W. Milburn.

sembled a "tremendous amount" of data as background for the defense of the state.

He said he had a complete catalog of every piece of fire-fighting equipment in Louisiana of all doctors, nurses, police units, of every ambulance, of normal and emergency capacities of all hospitals, and of all heavy engineering equipment which could be used for clearing roads and streets.

A network of radio communications blankets Louisiana, Hufft said.

"The entire state defense system can be alerted within two minutes of any warning of attack," he said.

In event of an alert, the warning would be relayed to the highway patrol's cars which would notify towns of the state.

But state programs in both Mississippi and Louisiana are holding up for the long-delayed national plan for civilian defense, which Gen. Hufft said could be expected "probably next week."

Governor Wright has instructed Mississippi county and municipal defense councils to select chairmen "without delay."

In New Orleans, defense director Paul Ristrop said, "we are waiting for guidance from Washington, as it is desired that these things be done on as uniform a basis as possible."

In Baton Rouge, Dean C. A. Ives, defense director, said he has had time only to set up an organization and "apportion responsibility." He said, "we are depending upon the state and federal people for air raid warning," but added that block wardens would patrol streets to render service and aid.

In Shreveport, R. F. Scott, civilian defense co-ordinator, said, "we are getting ready to set up a civil defense program."

There are no actual plans for shelters, warning systems, and medical aid layouts.

Shreveport's Scott said, "we are holding back on detailed plans until after the conference of mayors in Washington during the first part of October."

In New Orleans, for example, a plan was discussed to use the city's some 120 miles of open and underground canals as shelters in case of an attack. This plan has now been abandoned. The city has said that the cost of underground bomb shelters would be prohibitive, for the town lies practically at sea level.

Ristrop has given "high priority" to a plan for setting up a 500-strong volunteer reserve police unit and a 3496-member fire department reserve to work out of the city's 41 fire stations.

The Mississippi plan calls for the county defense councils to be composed of the president of the board of supervisors, the sheriff, the chancery clerk, the superintendent of education, and mayors of the respective municipalities in counties having 1,000 or more persons.

The municipal defense council are to be composed of the mayor, the members of the city council or board of aldermen, the chief of police and the chief of the fire department.

G. O. P. DEMANDS

is no doubt Marshall will be confirmed for his new job speedily.

White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said that President Truman is expected to sign the bill Monday and then send Marshall's formal appointment to the senate for action.

"There is no question that Marshall will be confirmed but there may be a roll call vote on the nomination so that senators can go on record," Knowland said. "I don't think there will be much discussion."

Hickenlooper, who contended that congress ought not to scuttle the principle of keeping civilians at the top of the military department, commented "the fight is over," so far as Marshall is concerned.

The Iowa senator said he doesn't know whether Johnson's replacement by Marshall will mean any change in foreign policies.

"I assume that General Marshall's chief objective will be to strengthen the nation's military defenses to carry out the foreign policies of the president and the secretary of state," Hickenlooper said.

Johnson was the target for sharp criticism in congress and elsewhere on the score that the Korean war had disclosed gaping holes in the American preparedness program.

This criticism was said by some members to have contributed to the practically unanimous Democratic vote in the senate to change the law and pave the way for Marshall's appointment.

Thirty - seven Democrats voted for the bill and only one, Senator McCarran of Nevada, opposed it when it was passed, 47 to 21, Friday night. McCarran often has been at odds with the Truman administration on such matters as its policies regarding China and Spain.

Republicans, on the other hand, contributed 20 of the votes against the bill while 10 G.O.P. members supported it.

This apparently represented a protest against administration policies as much as it did support of the civilian-control principle.

The members of the Junior Charity League wish to express gratitude to citizens of the Twin Cities for their supportt in helping to make their recentt thrift shop sale, "The Flea Market," a success. They are grateful to the many merchants who contributed merchandise for this sale and to V. C. Spatafora for the free loan of his building for the sale; to William Mintz, of the Terminal Bag Company, for the paper bags he donated for the purchases; to Bancroftt Paper Company for the numerous cake boxes used in the sweet shop as well as to the Louisiana Paper Company for cellophane used in wrapping the homemade candies and cookies. Mr. Henderson, of Ryan's Variety store loaned a dress rack, as did A. D. Hakim of York's Children's shop and Charles Searcy also aided.

From the proceeds of the sale, a net profit of $664.54 was realized and the Junior Charity League can now go forward in their help to the many underprivileged children of the community and through this medium, the members again wantt to express their appreciation to all who made this project so worthwhile.

With deep regret in another column of today's paper we announce the re-assignment of Rev. George Parce, Jr., from the pastorate of the Memorial Methodist Church here, to the pastorate of the First Methodist Church in DeRidder. The present tpastor of the last named church has been re-assigned as chaplain in the far east war and it became necessary to fill the post thus left tvacant. Unfo[illegible] Monroe, but fortunately for DeRidder, popular George Pearce, Jr. was the choice. George Pearce has been a resident here only several years but in this time he has made worlds of friends both within and without the circle of his church. His devotion to his cause, his unselfishness, his desire at any and all times to be of assistance to fellow man, marked him as an unusually remarkable and all together fine person to know.

In Shreveport he was picked as the young man of the year and the one who had done the most for the advancement of the city along all lines of activity. We know Memorial Church here will be deeply regrateful to be forced to lose such a valuable asset as George Pearce has proved in our midst.

Church bells and sirens will peal forth at the stroke of 9 o'clock tonight throughout the Twin Cities. Immediately thereafter the local drive for the American Cancer Society will be in full progress.

Evryone in sympathy with the raising of funds for the prosecution of the war on this disease will be asked to turn on their porch lights. This will last for an hour o ntil a collector has called and taken the donation for this worthy cause. If one cannot donate or is not so disposed, the light on the porch should be out. This is a most original project, states Miss Nina (Dutch) Martin, campaign chairman, and everyone in the Twin Cities is asked to cooperate to the best tadvantage in its success. "Turn on the porch lights; have a donation, large or small in readiness, thus doing your part."

U.S. To Stop Marshall Plan Aid To Greece

Athens, Greece, Sept. 16. —(AP)— The United States told Greece today Marshall Plan aid will be reduced because Greece has not done what it could to help itself.

But ECA Chief Paul Porter said that the reduction might be restored partially if the Greek government cuts its expenses and builds up revenues.

This hope of restoration of the Marshall funds was contained in a statement issued by the government after Porter conferred with Premier Sophocles Venizelos and his coalition government leaders.

Porter said the reduction was decided upon some time ago in Washington and casts no reflection on the New Venizelos government which took office Wednesday. He described the present coalition government as stable.

that Korea has to offer, and a U. S. Air Force spokesman who announced its capture predicted it soon would be in Allied operation.

"The enemy is different now; he is not fighting. I do not believe the North Koreans have any organized army units this far north."

Sohn said he thought the Reds would surrender if they had a chance.

This was not true, however, on the rain-lashed southern front, where the United Nations forces launched a general offensive. They advanced, but it was hard going through deep mud and against an enemy who sometimes ran but more often stood and fought with the desperation of death. It was a bitter, seesaw conflict at most points.

U. S. Second Division troops had the best success in the early hours of the southeastern general offensive. A division spokesman said they drove four and one-half miles to the east bank of the Naktong river against Reds pulling back westward in a "general exodus" and in "vast, mad confusion."

LOVELY BRIDE OF SEPTEMBER

Mrs. James Kavanaugh Clinton, the former Miss Dorothy Nicol, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Nicol of Ruston, whose marriage was solemnized in Ruston recently. Mr. Clinton is the son of Mrs. J. H. Kendall and the late William David Clinton, also of Ruston.

Miss Dorothy Nicol Weds Mr. James Kavanaugh Clinton

Impressive Double-Ring Ceremony Takes Place In Ruston At First Presbyterian Church

At seven o'clock on Saturday evening, September 2nd, Miss Dorothy Nicol, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Nicol, and Mr. James Kavanaugh Clinton, son of Mrs. J. H. Kendall and the late William David Clinton, were married at the First Presbyterian Church in Ruston. The Rev. Thomas M. Davis read the impressive double ring ceremony.

The vows were spoken within the chancel in a setting outlined with cathedral tapers and flanked with arrangements of white gladioli. Garlands of white mums and huckleberry formed the back ground of the sanctuary.

Miss Aline Ruple at the organ played a medley of prenuptial music, including "The Angel Serenade" by Braga and "The Song of the Evening Star" by Wagner. She accompanied Mr. George Frank Brown, violinist in "Melodie" by Gluck. "Traumerai" by Schumann was softly played during the sacred service.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was regal in a gown of antique ivory satin fashioned with an illusion yoke that formed a madonna portrait neckline, which was accented by a deep, wide all-over rosepoint bertha. The tight-fitting sleeves tapered to points over her hands. The fulness of the skirt was formed by panels, swept into a cathedral train. Her veil of imported illusion was made from a rose-point panel from Belgium and fell from a soft calot of rosepoint lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of white rosebuds, with a glamelia center, and stephanotis.

Her sisters, Miss Margery Nicol and Miss Martha Nicol, were her honor attendants, and her bridesmaids were Miss Alice Heard and Mrs. James Yarberry. A junior bridesmaid was Miss Mary Helen Barksdale. The bridesmaids wore gowns of soft green satin and net. These were bare top fashions of net with a wide mid-drift of satin. The extremely full skirts fell to the floor. Their shoulders were covered by satin jackets fashioned with short cup sleeves and deep portrait necklines.

On their heads they wore bands of flame velvet which were accented by tiny veils. They carried flame-colored glamelias upon a background of caladium leaves.

The junior bridesmaid's dress, the same color as the dresses of the bridesmaids, was designed with full net skirt and taffeta waist trimmed in small buttons and a Peter Pan collar. Her headdress was a band of flame velvet.

The groom's brother, David Clinton of Baton Rouge, was best man, and James Kavanaugh of Ruston, Richard Kavanaugh of Gillam, and James McFadden of Jackson, Miss., were groomsmen.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Nicol wore a gray chiffon dinner dress over rose taffeta. Her corsage was made of pink Amaryllis lilies. The mother of the groom, Mrs. Kendall, was dressed in an ankle-length blue crepe with lace inset and wore pink carnations.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Nicol, the parents of the bride, were hosts at a small informal reception at their new country home on the Vienna road for members of the wedding party, the relatives of the bride and the groom, and the out-of-town guests.

The house was lovely with arrangements of white flowers and an interesting display of the bride's gifts. On the wrought-iron tables on the lawn were the bride's cake and punch bowl. The garden was a picture, with the north Louisiana pines beautifully silhouetted by lights.

For the wedding trip the bride wore a tie silk silver gray print suit with a smartly tailored jacket trimmed in white silk braid and pencil-slim skirt. A short, full black velvet cape, a black velvet cloche with fluted braid trim and short veil, black suede shoes and bag, and three-quarter-length doe skin gloves completed the ensemble. The corsage was a flame colored glamelia from the heart of the bridesmaid's bouquet.

The marriage is the union of pioneer families of north Louisiana. Miss Nicol's maternal grandparents were Captain and Mrs. E. L. Kidd of Ruston; her paternal grandparents were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walter Nicol of Mobile, Ala. She attended Newcomb College, where she was pledged to Pi Beta Phi fraternity. In January, 1950 she was graduated from the University of Arkansas.

The groom's grandparents were Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Kavanaugh and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Clinton of Clay. A captain in the air corps reserve, Mr. Clinton served overseas in War II with the ATC. LOVELY BRIDE OF SEPTEMBER

Mrs. James Kavanaugh Clinton, the former Miss Dorothy Nicol, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Nicol of Ruston, whose marriage was solemnized in Ruston recently. Mr. Clinton is the son of Mrs. J. H. Kendall and the late William David Clinton, also of Ruston.

At seven o'clock on Saturday evening, September 2nd, Miss Dorothy Nicol, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Nicol, and Mr. James Kavanaugh Clinton, son of Mrs. J. H. Kendall and the late William David Clinton, were married at the First Presbyterian Church in Ruston. The Rev. Thomas M. Davis read the impressive double ring ceremony.

The vows were spoken within the chancel in a setting outlined with cathedral tapers and flanked with arrangements of white gladioli. Garlands of white mums and huckleberry formed the back ground of the sanctuary.

Miss Aline Ruple at the organ played a medley of prenuptial music, including "The Angel Serenade" by Braga and "The Song of the Evening Star" by Wagner. She accompanied Mr. George Frank Brown, violinist in "Melodie" by Gluck. "Traumerai" by Schumann was softly played during the sacred service.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was regal in a gown of antique ivory satin fashioned with an illusion yoke that formed a madonna portrait neckline, which was accented by a deep, wide all-over rosepoint bertha. The tight-fitting sleeves tapered to points over her hands. The fulness of the skirt was formed by panels, swept into a cathedral train. Her veil of imported illusion was made from a rose-point panel from Belgium and fell from a soft calot of rosepoint lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of white rosebuds, with a glamelia center, and stephanotis.

Her sisters, Miss Margery Nicol and Miss Martha Nicol, were her honor attendants, and her bridesmaids were Miss Alice Heard and Mrs. James Yarberry. A junior bridesmaid was Miss Mary Helen Barksdale. The bridesmaids wore gowns of soft green satin and net. These were bare top fashions of net with a wide mid-drift of satin. The extremely full skirts fell to the floor. Their shoulders were covered by satin jackets fashioned with short cup sleeves and deep portrait necklines.

On their heads they wore bands of flame velvet which were accented by tiny veils. They carried flame-colored glamelias upon a background of caladium leaves.

The junior bridesmaid's dress the same color as the dresses of the bridesmaids, was designed with full net skirt and taffeta waist trimmed in small buttons and a Peter Pan collar. Her headdress was a band of flame velvet.

The groom's brother, David Clinton of Baton Rouge, was best man, and James Kavanaugh of Ruston, Richard Kavanaugh of Gillam, and James McFadden of Jackson, Miss., were groomsmen.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Nicol wore a gray chiffon dinner dress over rose taffeta. Her corsage was made of pink Amaryllis lilies. The mother of the groom, Mrs. Kendall, was dressed in an ankle-length blue crepe with lace inset and wore pink carnations.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Nicol, the parents of the bride, were hosts at a small informal reception at their new country home on the Vienna road for members of the wedding party, the relatives of the bride and the groom, and the out-of-town guests.

The house was lovely with arrangements of white flowers and an interesting display of the bride's gifts. On the wrought-iron tables on the lawn were the bride's cake and punch bowl. The garden was a picture, with the north Louisiana pines beautifully silhouetted by lights.

For the wedding trip the bride wore a tie silk silver gray print suit with a smartly tailored jacket trimmed in white silk braid and pencil-slim skirt. A short, full black velvet cape, a black velvet cloche with fluted braid trim and short veil, black suede shoes and bag, and three-quarter-length doe skin gloves completed the ensemble. The corsage was a flame colored glamelia from the heart of the bridesmaid's bouquet.

The marriage is the union of pioneer families of north Louisiana. Miss Nicol's maternal grandparents were Captain and Mrs. E. L. Kidd of Ruston; her paternal grandparents were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walter Nicol of Mobile, Ala. She attended Newcomb College, where she was pledged to Pi Beta Phi fraternity. In January, 1950 she was graduated from the University of Arkansas.

The groom's grandparents were Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Kavanaugh and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Clinton of Clay. A captain in the air corps reserve, Mr. Clinton served overseas in War II with the ATC. In 1949 he received his degree in business administration from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute. His fraternity is Kappa Sigma. The couple will make their home in Jennings where the groom is a partner in an insurance agency.

RECENT BRIDE

Miss Carolyn Lee And Sidney Alexander Seegers Married

Ceremony Unites Couple At Columbia Methodist Church In Columbia

Southern smilax outlined the background of the pulpit and choir loft and threw into relief the large white wedding bells tied with wide satin bows and the lighted cross hanging from above in the Columbia Methodist Church recently for the wedding of Miss Carolyn Lee and Mr. Sidney Alexander Seegers. Beneath the wedding bells was a triple and double-arched candelabra and arch which were twined with fern and small white mums. White satin bows held two smaller white bells from the center and each side of the arch beneath which the vows were spoken. Flanking each side were floor baskets of king size white asters and fern. The chancel was interlaced with graceful smilax, white satin ribbon bows and wedding bells. The white satin prie-dieu ruffled with tulle and centered with a large tulle bow completed a beautiful setting. The Rev. S. A. Seegers, father of the groom, officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Miss Ethel Rose Rogers, organist rendered a beautiful program of nuptial music while guests were being seated by the groomsmen, Mr. Harry Busch, Mr. A. J. Pendola, Mr. Holmes Mouser and Mr. Glenn Wilson. "The Star" was played while the acolytes, Mr. Holmes Mouser and Mr. A. J. Pendola, lighted the myriad cathedral tapers. She accompanied the soloists, Miss Joyce Tisdale of Wisner, who sang "I Love Thee" and "Oh, Promise Me" and Mr. W. R. Bragg of Albany, Ga., who sang "Beloved It Is Morn." "Love Dream" by Liszt formed an interesting background for the impressive ceremony. The traditionel wedding marches marked the beginning and end of the ceremony.

Preceding the bride were her bridesmaids, Miss Dorothy Seegers, Miss Jo Ann James, her junior bridesmaids, Miss Billy Jo Hanchey and Miss Dee Ann Busch, and her matron of honor, Mrs. James T. Tigner of Baton Rouge. Their dresses, identically styled, were of bouffant net over taffeta with fitted bodices and pleated shoulder drapes of net. Plaited net halos with baby mums of contrasting color and short mitts of net enhanced the beauty of the ensemble. The bridesmaids and junior bridesmaids wore royal blue and carried a single large yellow mum on a long stem tied with a yellow satin bow with streamers reaching to the hemline. The matron of honor wore yellow and carried a large blue mum on a long stem with a blue satin bow and streamers reaching to the hemline. Sherman Lewis, young son of Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Carroll, acted as ringbearer, carrying the ring on a diminutive white satin pillow.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, where she was met by her bridegroom and his best man, Mr. William R. Bragg, wore lace and net over white satin, scalloped at the neck and hemline. The bouffant redingote of lace and net panels ending in a chapel length train was attached to a fitted bodice of lace with wide lace collar and fastened with satin covered buttons. Her shoulder length mitts were of lace with satin covered buttons below the elbow. The fingertip veil of illusion flowed mistily from a coronet of seed pearls. A mammoth white orchid, stephanotis and soft tufts of illusion formed a cascading bouquet. For something old she carried the handkerchief of handmade lace used by the groom's grandmother at her wedding fifty years ago.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Lee wore a beautifully styled cynara crepe dress with accessories of black velvet and a corsage of white asters. The groom's mother chose a becoming blue and brown printed silk with which she wore brown accessories and a corsage of bronze mums.

Green and white was used as the color motif for the reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Lee, where white asters were combined with fern in tall floor baskets. Welcoming guests at the door and receiving with the bridal couple were their parents and members of the wedding party. Miss Vernell McIllwain presided over the bride's book. The many lovely gifts were displayed in the sun parlor.

The bride's table was overlaid with a white linen cutwork cloth and centered with a tiered white embossed wedding confection on a large blue reflector and topped with a tilted wedding bell in front of which stood a miniature bride and groom. White mints embossed in green were served from the silver trays. After the cutting of the cake by the bride and groom, it was served by Miss Kathryn Seegers. Miss Mary Ann Burke ladled punch from a large crystal punch bowl. Over all was the soft candelight from tall white tapers tied with satin bows and fern and held by silver candleholders.

When later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Seegers left on their honeymoon trip she was wearing a rose printed silk with brown faille redingote and a matching rose felt hat. The white orchid from her wedding bouquet formed her corsage. After the wedding trip they will be at home in Montevallo, Alabama, where Mr. Seegers is instructor of mathematics at Alabama State Teachers College for Women.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Lee of Columbia and the grandaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Davis of Columbia and the late Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Lee of Gilbert. She graduated from Columbia High school, attended Belhaven College, Jackson, Miss., received her B. S. degree in Home Economics from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, where she was president of Beta Sigma Omnicron sorority.

The groom is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. S. A. Seegers of Logansport, the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Seegers of Haynesville, and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Flanders of New Orleans. He graduated from Columbia High school, received his B. S. degree from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, his M. A. degree from Peabody Teachers College, Nashville, Tenn., and is affiliated with Kappa Alpha, social fraternity, Phi Kappa Phi, national education fraternity, and a scouting fraternity. This summer he served as president of Wesley Foundation for the colleges of Nashville, Tenn.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Gragg, Corpus Christi, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Johnson, Pollock; Mrs. T. J. Fear, Welsh; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Davis, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Lee, the Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Giles, all of Monroe; Mrs. Thomas Burke and Miss Mary Ann Burke, Liberty, Miss.; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lee and Mr. Kirby Lee, Winnsboro; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Meredith, Coushatta; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Patton, Newellton; Mr. and Mrs. W. They were seated at a long banquet table overlaid with white damask and radiating with centerpieces of gold and yellow marigolds with maidenhair fern, and yellow lilies. The bridal theme was carried out in the white napkins embossed in silver with bride and groom motifs. At this time the bride and groom presented gifts to members of the bridal party.

IN MOVIELAND

The actress is back at her west-end manor after a six-months' absence, during which she played the aging Victoria in "The Mudlark." While she was in England, she had a lengthy chat with the king and queen.

"They were very interested in the picture," she related. "They were both very charming."

Miss Dunne had chances to observe the queen on public occasions, too, and she enthused about her.

"She is the picture of serenity," the actress declared. "At all times she seems greatly interested in whom she is meeting and what she is being shown. You can tell that she feels deeply the responsibility to her subjects.

"And she is dressed every inch the queen. She wears a lot of blue, which looks wonderful on her. Everything she wears matches and her shoes look as though they had never been walked in before.

"She is an inspiration to anyone in public life. An actress is called on to do a lot of things, but her duties seem minor when you consider those of the queen."

Miss Dunne found her own reign as Victoria somewhat gruelling. The reason was the now-famous jowls, which had to be applied every day. The rubbery neckpiece was glued on in a process that required almost two hours each morning.

"When I walked in to see (producer-writer) Nunnally Johnson for the first time," she recalled, "I was wearing high heels and a tailored suit. He exclaimed: 'Nobody could look less like Queen Victoria.' I agreed.

"But then the technical men went to work. They made three plaster casts of my face and manufactured the jowls. I must say they did an amazing job."

The chore of putting the jowls on and taking them off was fairly painful, and Miss Dunne isn't sure she would be willing to endure the grind again.

"There were times when part of my skin came off," she said, "and I expected my neck to be never the same again. Amazingly enough my skin is better than ever. Maybe I've discovered something."

CANTOR BIG HIT ON TELEVISION

Famous Comedian To Present Show Here On Oct. 16 For Charity

Eddie Cantor came to television last Sunday night as the first star of the new 'Comedy Theatre' and he got the series off to a flying start. Eddie was the exuberant trouper of tradition, singing, wise-cracking, dancing and thoroughly enjoying himself. He is TV's undisputed new hit.

In making his debut before the cameras, Eddie acted as if he had been brought up in video. Relaxed and self-assured he imbued the whole sixty-minute proceedings with a pep and zest characteristic of the best that can be seen on Broadway. Apparently there's nothing wrong with television that Eddie can't cure.

Eddie's offering was largely a sort of "Cavalcade" similar to his big show now on tour, but as was to be expected, the climax to Eddie's offering found the comedian in the familiar blackface. Bobbing and skipping across the stage and rolling his eyes, he ran through "Now's the Time to Fall in Love," "Ain't She Sweet?" and "Waiting for the Robert E. Lee."

NEWS FROM THE PARISH LIBRARY

One day this past week a girl came into the Monroe branch of the Ouachita parish public library and asked to buy a book. She had lived in Monroe for years and had never been in the library and did not understand that the library did not sell books. She was amazed when she found that she could borrow the book she wanted without any charge at all. The services of the parish library are free to every permanent resident of the parish. The only charges are made when a book is kept over time, or when it is damaged or lost. Every person who lives in the parish is in reach of some type of service. The people who live in Monroe use the main library located at 418 Jackson street. In this collection are found 18,794 books. There is something here for almost every type of readers. The people of West Monroe use the library at 106 Cypress street, just behind the new city hall. In this collection are found 4,768 books. The Bookmobile serves the rural people of the parish. The Bookmobile travels five days each week and has ten different routes. The people are served every two weeks. The library serves every white school in the parish outside the city limits of Monroe and West Monroe. The Bookmobile collection consists of 1,713 books. The Negroe people of the parish have their own branch located at 116 North 10th street. It is a most attractive and unusual building. In this branch there is a book collection of 1,713 books. Both the West Monroe branch and the Carver branch are administered by graduate librarians. According to the 1950 census figures there are 74,276 people living in Ouachita parish. Only 16,641 of those are registered borrowers of the library. Not even one fourth of the people use the library. If you are not a user of the library investigate its resources. You will find that there is something at the library which will help you.

As an example of the different types of information available at the library let us look at some of the books which have been added to the collection during the past week. "How to Have a Better House" by Paul T. Hagen contains much valuable information for the aid of anyone considering building a house. This is only one of many which have been purchased on this subject in the past few months. "Truman, Stalin and Peace" by Albert Z. Carr is the latest work explaining the present day international situation. "The O. Henry Awards Prize Stories of 1950" will be of interest to all who like to read short stories and particularly is it of interest this year because Monroe's Hillyer Speed Lamkin has a story in the collection. It is his story which was published in Mademoiselle last September. The title is "Comes A Day." If you are in the insurance business you should want to see the "1950 Life Insurance Fact Book." Oil men should read with interest "Our Oil Resources" by Leonard V. Fanning. A new government publication containing much valuable material is "The Immigration and Naturalization Systems of the United States. Students of history and government will want to read "The Democratic Monarchies of Scandanavia" written by Ben Albert Arneson. "Advances in Agronomy, Volume I" prepared under the supervision of the American society of agronomy will be of great interest to farmers, who take their profession seriously. "The Story of the Trapp Family Singers" by Maria Augusta Trapp is an adventurous story of one of the most distinguished musical families of the age. "The Trapp Family Singers". It is told by the one who knows the story best, the head of the family, Baroness Maria Augusta Von Trapp, now plain Mrs. Trapp, for she and her family have become American citizens. "Assignment to Austerity" by Herbert Lionel Matthews is the experiences of an American family in Great Britain in the post war years. If you would like to read one of the books, call your branch and ask to have your name put on the reserve list.

If you are one of the many who read for pure enjoyment you will love "Virginia Reel" by Virginia Gilbert. This is another of the true family stories which have been so popular in the last few years. This is the story of a mother who raised three daughters in a small Virginia town. She did not have much money, but she had plenty of spirit and provided a delightful girlhood. The author is now a successful actress and has written a delightful story about her family. A new mystery for the large number of people who read them is "Do Evil in Return" by Margaret Millar. Two fascinating new novels are "The Preacher and the Slave" by Wallace Stegner and "The Witch of Spring" by William Shore. Come to the library and examine our resources.

Joy Neiter Kramer Becomes Bride Of Thomas R. Hays

The wedding of Miss Joy Neiter Kramer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Kramer, 24 Northcote, Bretwood, Evanston, Illinois, and Thomas R. Hays of this city took place Sunday afternoon, September the third in the living room of the Kramer home. Only the families of the bride and groom were present. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. W. Davidson McDowell of Ladue Chapel before a two story peaked window draped in green, with an altar created by pairs of candelabra wound with smilax and small chrysanthemums. After the wedding service, the two families dined at the Sheraton Hotel.

Mr. Hays, son of Mrs. Maude M. Hays and Mr. L. Jack Hays of this city, chose for his best man his brother, Jack Hays, Jr., of Oklahoma City, Okla. Mr. Thomas Flournoy of Monroe lighted the candles and served as usher.

Other out of town guests included the groom's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. David Carter of Monroe and the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Price Munson of Little Rock, Arkansas.

The bride and groom will make their home in Baton Rouge following their wedding trip to the Smoky Mountains.

Mrs. M. J. Carbone Hostess At Monroe Garden Club Meeting

Mrs. George Snellings, Jr., President, Outlines Program For Coming Year

Mrs. George Snellings, Jr., president, presided at this meeting and gave a resume of the program planned for the coming year. This organization will present such outstanding lecturers as Mrs. Archibald Wilson Walker, hortiulture and flower show specialist, of Spartanburg, N. C. and Mr. William Lanier Hunt, F. R. H. S., a specialist in southern gardening from Chapel Hill, N. C.

The annual Christmas Tour which has claimed so much attention in the past will again be featured, and in April the members will make a pilgrimage to some of Monroe's loveliest gardens.

A most attractive Year Book prepared by the committee, Mrs. L. F. Dalton, Miss Emma Lou Biedenharn, Mrs. L. T. Hall, Mrs. A. G. McHenry, Mrs. King Stubbs, and Mrs. Mildred Swift, was presented to each member.

The ladies present were privileged to hear Mr. Jack Bagwell of West Monroe lecture on hibiscus. Mr. Bagwell has established himself as quite an authority on the horticulture of this beautiful flower which he says is native to Louisiana. By extensive experimenting he has produced a wide variety of both double and single blossoms. Mr. Bagwell has recently come from the State Horticulture Show in Baton Rouge where he had been asked to present the information that he has gleaned from his research.

Hibiscus are related to our common cotton blossoms. Because of this, our climate is perfect for raising this flower which has in the past few years made such a splash upon the horizon of the southern gardens, and is the envy of gardeners in cooler climates where it does not thrive.

Mr. Bagwell says a Hibiscus needs a great deal of sun and water, but must be well drained. He said that feedings should be given every two or three weeks with some good fertilizer such as 5 - 10 - 5 or 8 - 8 - 8. Potash is a great aide to the blooms. Also, he stressed the importance of pinching the tops out of the plant in order to increase the number of buds. With very little care the gardener can have an abundance of blooms throughout the hot weather.

These plants should be selected during the blooming season which is right now. If not, the buyer is often disappointed in his purchase when he buys out of season. He brought out the fact that even though the double variety has to be dug up in order to carry through the winter that they are so inexpensive and bloom for such a long period that the gardener will probably feel that he has reaped the beneifts of his investment with one seasons blooming.

Mr. Bagwell named the Crown of Bohemia as probably the prettiest and most satisfactory of the yellow flowers. Peach Blow is a very profuse bloomer and a lovely shade of peach. The Jigora is another lovely peach color hibiscus. A small red is Weddinger, and Psyche. Mrs. Hassenger is the watermelon pink. Suvlacie is a beautiful rose shade.

The hostess committee on this occasion was made up of the following ladies: Mrs. Carbone, Mrs. C. E. Wilds, Jr., Mrs. C. C. Whittlesey, Mrs. E. D. Whitecotton Mrs. Bunn Beasley, Mrs. G. F. Becker, Mrs. Corbin Turpin, Mrs. R. W. Biedenharn, Mrs. H. K. Touchstone, Mrs. G. A. Boyd, Mrs. Richard Bradley, and Mrs. J. A. Noe.

Joy Neiter Kramer Becomes Bride Of Thomas R. Hays

The wedding of Miss Joy Neiter Kramer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Kramer, 24 Northcote, Bretwood, Evanston, Illinois, and Thomas R. Hays of this city took place Sunday afternoon, September the third in the living room of the Kramer home. Only the families of the bride and groom were present. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. After the wedding service, the two families dined at the Sheraton Hotel.

Mr. Hays, son of Mrs. Maude M. Hays and Mr. L. Jack Hays of this city, chose for his best man his brother, Jack Hays, Jr., of Oklahoma City, Okla. Mr. Thomas Flournoy of Monroe lighted the candles and served as usher.

Other out of town guests included the groom's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. David Carter of Monroe and the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Price Munson of Little Rock, Arkansas.

Miss Ruby Hines Is Bride Of Robert Lee Fowler, Jr.

Couple United In Marriage At Trinity Baptist Church Of West Monroe

The wedding of Miss Ruby Hines, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Talmadge L. Hines and Mr. Robert Lee Fowler, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fowler, Sr. was beautifully solemnized in the Trinity Baptist Church of West Monroe at 7:30 o'clock in the evening Thursday, August 10.

The double ring ceremony was read by the Rev. Fler J. Seal, pastor of the church before an altar decorated with white gladioli, white asters and ferns with a background of cathedral candelabra with tall white tapers.

The music was rendered at the piano by Miss Gloria Charles. Preceding the ceremony and while the candles were lighted by T. L. Hines, brother of the bride, and Jimmy Fletcher, nephew of the groom, Miss Charls played several pre-nuptial selections and accompanied Miss Beth Monroe who sang "Because" and "Always."

The bride entered on the arm of her uncle, Mr. J. A. Wilkes, who gave her in marriage. She was wearing a lovely fall suit of pink jersey with navy accessories and carried a white Bible topped with white carnations tied with pink and white ribbon.

Miss Margie Hines and Miss Faye Hines, sisters of the bride, served as bridesmaids. They were dressed in navy with pink and white accessories.

Serving the groom as best man was his cousin, Mr. Buddy Forman.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the home of Mrs. A. D. Forman, aunt of the groom.

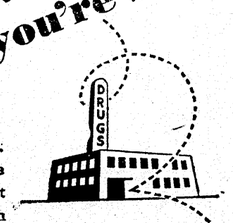
Don't wait until you're sick



● You're not really sick, you say. Just a little under the weather. Be all right in a few days. But don't forget that any departure from normal health deserves prompt and careful attention. There's no such thing as an unimportant illness. Better let a doctor look you over. And when you have his prescription, bring it in for our expert compounding.

Any farm land with more than three per cent slope should be planted on the contour, according to soil experts.

DeWitt Mackenzie

MACKENZIE'S COLUMN

(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)

So a big offensive by United Nations forces in Korea finally is under way, with General MacArthur himself in the field directing operations.

Coordinated landings by American marines and infantry on the west coast, and by south Korean marines on the east coast, got away to a good start. How good is indicated by the fact that the commander-in-chief wore a broad grin.

From the theater of war comes word that this may be the decisive action of the conflict. The landings are far to the north, behind the invaders' fighting front. This means that the north Korean forces are in a mighty vise whose jaws are closing to crush them.

That's the way things stand at this writing. Whether the enemy will be smashed, and whether this is indeed the climactic action of the Korean conflict still remains to be answered.

I think we distant watchers should be pleased at the initial successes—but should keep our fingers crossed. If this proves to be the decisive campaign it will mean that the north Korean fighting machine has been smashed, but there may be some "ifs" to be dealt with before that is accomplished.

If it were certain that the north Koreans would be left to their own devices by their Russian and Chinese Communist friends, then one could breathe easier. I think that is the meat of the nut.

Should Chinese and Manchurian fighting forces start pouring down into south Korea to the aid of the northern invaders, it would create an entirely different picture. And that could happen, because the Chinese have hundreds of thousands of troops available. Should Moscow give the word, it might set them into action.

However, there are arguments against such developments. While both Russia and China may be expected to continue aid to the north Koreans, there is no indication that either of them care to get directly involved in the war.

Direct intervention by the Soviet Union would produce another world war, and she isn't fishing for anything of the sort. Direct action by China might also produce a global upheaval, and certainly would start a widespread Asiatic conflict whose end no man can see. China would not care for that.

It's important to note that the question of prestige is heavily involved in this situation, and that all the small countries of Asia are watching to see what happens. Therefore the matter of "face saving"—so important in the far east—enters into the picture.

That makes us check again on the aim of the United Nations action in south Korea. It is to smash the aggressors, and free south Korea of them back to the northern frontier, which is the 38th parellel. That border is as far as the U. N. forces have been instructed to go, pending determination of the military situation at that time.

Should the thing work out that way, there would be no occasion for either Russia or China to make any further "face saving" move. Punitive action by U. N. forces in the nature of an invasion of north Korea, however, might impel China or Russia to intervene by force.

However, that's a matter of speculation. The problem is likely to be clearer when this new offensive has been compelted.

SUGAR PRICES

New York—(AP)—Some sugar industry men would not be surprised to see the price of sugar decline.

They point out: (1) a record harvest of sugar beets is under way in the U. S., (2) the European sugar beet harvest is the largest on record, (3) around Jan. 1 Cuba's bumper crop of cane sugar will start coming on the market.

Prices will be under pressure, nevertheless, even with all that supply and even with demand at the current level.

THREE HOUSES BURNED

Tutwiler, Miss., Sept. 15.—(AP)—A $50,000 fire destroyed three business houses and damaged a fourth here yesterday. The Clarksdale, Sumner and Webb fire departments helped fight the blaze. Firemen said the fire started in or near the Model Dry Cleaners and spread to adjoining buildings.

Miss Ruby Hines Is Bride Of Robert Lee Fowler, Jr.

Couple United In Marriage At Trinity Baptist Church Of West Monroe

The wedding of Miss Ruby Hines, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Talmadge L. Hines and Mr. Robert Lee Fowler, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fowler, Sr. was beautifully solemnized in the Trinity Baptist Church of West Monroe at 7:30 o'clock in the evening Thursday, August 10.

The double ring ceremony was read by the Rev. Fler J. Seal, pastor of the church before an altar decorated with white gladioli, white asters and ferns with a background of cathedral candelabra with tall white tapers.

The music was rendered at the piano by Miss Gloria Charles. Preceding the ceremony and while the candles were lighted by T. L. Hines, brother of the bride, and Jimmy Fletcher, nephew of the groom, Miss Charls played several pre-nuptial selections and accompanied Miss Beth Monroe who sang "Because" and "Always."

The bride entered on the arm of her uncle, Mr. J. A. Wilkes, who gave her in marriage. She was wearing a lovely fall suit of pink jersey with navy accessories and carried a white Bible topped with white carnations tied with pink and white ribbon.

Miss Margie Hines and Miss Faye Hines, sisters of the bride, served as bridesmaids. They were dressed in navy with pink and white accessories.

Serving the groom as best man was his cousin, Mr. Buddy Forman.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the home of Mrs. A. D. Forman, aunt of the groom.

The bride's table was covered with a lovely lace cloth centered by the tiered wedding confection and surrounded by an arrangement of pink roses. Placed at the end of the table was the punch bowl.

Any farm land with more than three per cent slope should be planted on the contour, according to soil experts.

DeWitt Mackenzie

MACKENZIE'S COLUMN

(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)

So a big offensive by United Nations forces in Korea finally is under way, with General MacArthur himself in the field directing operations.

Coordinated landings by American marines and infantry on the west coast, and by south Korean marines on the east coast, got away to a good start. How good is indicated by the fact that the commander-ir-chief wore a broad grin.

From the theater of war comes word that this may be the decisive action of the conflict. The landings are far to the north, behind the invaders' fighting front. This means that the north Korean forces are in a mighty vise whose jaws are closing to crush them.

That's the way things stand at this writing. Whether the enemy will be smashed, and whether this is indeed the climactic action of the Korean conflict still remains to be answered.

I think we distant watchers should be pleased at the initial successes—but should keep our fingers crossed. If this proves to be the decisive campaign it will mean that the north Korean fighting machine has been smashed, but there may be some 'ifs" to be dealt with before that is accomplished.

If it were certain that the north Koreans would be left to their own devices by their Russian and Chinese Communist friends, then one could breathe easier. I think that is the meat of the nut.

Should Chinese and Manchurian fighting forces start pouring down into south Korea to the aid of the northern invaders, it would create an entirely different picture. And that could happen, because the Chinese have hundreds of thouands of troops available. Should Moscow give the word, it might set them into action.

However, there are arguments against such developments. While both Russia and China may be expected to continue aid to the north Koreans, there is no indication that either of them care to get directly involved in the war.

Direct intervention by the Soviet Union would produce another world war, and she isn't fishing for anything of the sort. Direct action by China might also produce a global upheaval, and certainly would start a widespread Asiatic conflict whose end no man can see. China would not care for that.

It's important to note that the question of prestige is heavily involved in this situation, and that all the small countries of Asia are watching to see what happens. Therefore the matter of "face saving"—so important in the far east—enters into the picture.

That makes us check again on the aim of the United Nations action in south Korea. It is to smash the aggressors, and free south Korea of them back to the northern frontier, which is the 38th parellel. That border is as far as the U. N. forces have been instructed to go, pending determination of the military situation a that time.

Should the thing work out that way, there would be no occasion for either Russia or China to make any further "face saving" move. Punitive action by U. N. forces in the nature of an invasion of north Korea, however, might impel China or Russia to intervene by force.

However, that's a matter of speculation. The problem is likely to be clearer when this new offensive has been compelted.

SUGAR PRICES

New York—(AP)—Some sugar industry men would not be surprised to see the price of sugar decline.

They point out: (1) a record harvest of sugar beets is under way in the U. S., (2) the European sugar beet harvest is the largest on record, (3) around Jan. 1 Cuba's bumper crop of cane sugar will start coming on the market.

Prices will be under pressure, nevertheless, even with all that supply and even with demand at the current level.

THREE HOUSES BURNED

Tutwiler, Miss., Sept. 15.—(AP)—A $50,000 fire destroyed three business houses and damaged a fourth here yesterday. The Clarksdale, Sumner and Webb fire departments helped fight the blaze. Firemen said the fire started in or near the Model Dry Cleaners and spread to adjoining buildings.

FORD, CHEVROLET MAY FACE FIGHT

Battle Won't Come Until Auto Supply Catches Up With Demand

By David J. Wilkie

Detroit, Sept. 16.—(AP)—There may yet be a battle between Ford and Chevrolet for top place in production and sales.

Such a fight has been talked about in automotive circles since before the last war. It hasn't materialized because neither of these giants of the car industry has had any difficulty selling all the cars it could make.

It won't come until the automobile business once again becomes thoroughly competitive. Both Ford and Chevrolet currently have heavy backlogs of unfilled orders. They will not be actually fighting each other until their sales organizations have to go after orders.

Meanwhile each has been expanding its manufacturing capacity. Chevrolet, which has topped the various car makers in production and sales during most of the last two decades, got the biggest share of General Motors' huge postwar building fund.

Since soon after the war Ford has been spending $100,000,000 a year for new manufacturing facilities. At present it has the greatest production capacity in its history but expects to expand that capacity steadily during the next decade.

A battle between Chevrolet and Ford would be something to be seen, but the nation's defense program probably will delay it. Between them these companies produce and sell nearly half the country's total output of cars and trucks.

So far this year Chevrolet has built approximately 1,090,000 passenger cars and 355,000 trucks. Currently it is rolling out about 30,000 cars and 10,000 trucks each week.

Ford's Ford division has built 880,000 cars and 260,000 trucks since last Jan. 1. It has been assembling about 26,000 cars and 8,000 trucks each week.

Probably both companies are using close to all their productive capacity in maintaining these weekly schedules. Both could boost output a little more by additional overtime operations.

Right now both are producing the best vehicles they ever made. Chevrolet made a substantial engineering advance with its powerglide transmission. With the introduction of that device this year it became the first of the lower price car makers to have an automatic transmission.

But Ford, too, has one about ready after many months of development and refinement in cooperation with Borg-Warner. It probably will be offered as optional equipment with Ford's forthcoming 1951 models.

It cannot be said Ford followed Chevrolet's lead in regard to automatic transmissions. Developing these devices takes many months of experimentation. Planning for them began at both Chevrolet and Ford soon after World War II.

But development of automatic transmissions was but one of the engineering advances Chevrolet and Ford have carried out in preparation for the eventual fight for top place.

There have been improved power plants, better steering and more comfortable riding. All are part of the preliminary skirmishing between the two manufacturers. There will be more of it—all to the distinct advantage of the buyer of a Chevrolet or Ford car.

68 Persons Will Face Court Trial

When district court opens Monday, 68 persons will be arraigned for misdemeanors, consisting mostly of traffic violations in wards 3, 5, and 10, reported District Attorney Fred Fudickar.

About 30 individuals will go before the court on charges of burglary, some defendants having committed as many as five or six, and one group of Negroes 14, said the district attorney.

Fudickar asserted that he would present 15 or 20 cases to the grand jury when it meets October 2.

DOROTHY DIX

Holding A Husband

Wife Advised To Remove Source Of Temptation

DEAR MISS DIX: If you had proof positive that a woman with whom your husband works was manifesting more personal interest in the man than professional interest in her job, would you feel justified in using the power you possess in having her transferred from this particular job to one in which she would not come into such close contact with your husband?

And have you any recipe whereby a wife's faith in her husband may be restored?

H. B. S.

DOROTHY DIX

ANSWER: I am afraid there is no nostrum that will ever bring a wife's faith in her husband back to normal after it has once suffered an attack of the jitters. It will always thereafter be a little subject to agues and sinking spells. But I can recommend to you a good heart tonic that will pull you through if you use it as needed.

Use your sense of humor. Tease him about his crush and about how easily he has fallen for the near-siren. Don't make scenes about it. When a wife does that it sends her husband back to the "other woman" to be sympathized with and comforted, and that is fatal.

YOU ARE RIGHT

I think you are exactly right in having the woman whom you suspect of having designs upon your husband transferred before she gets in any more of her work. Lots of men can stand anything but temptation. So the wise thing is to remove it out of their way.

Of course, wherever a man goes he is bound to be thrown in contact with attractive women, and a philanderer is going to philander no matter how much he is watched, but all the same there is no use in throwing temptation in a husband's way, or hiring Miss America for a parlor maid.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Is it true that 75 per cent of married men are unfaithful to their wives? If so, why do the wives stand for it? Is it true that most wives are suspicious of their husbands? Is it true that 85 per cent of the wives are unfaithful to their husbands? Does a man lose his respect for his wife if she comes to his aid financially and if she waits on him a great deal?

WONDERING

ANSWER: I am afraid you will have to keep on wondering as to the number of husbands and wives who are philanderers, since there are no statistics on this subject. I can hardly believe, however, that the majority of married people are unfaithful to their mates. For most of the husbands and wives that we know give no evidence that they are treading the primrose path and conducting illicit love affairs.

The reason that so many wives put up with their husbands' sidestepping is obvious. Many of them have to. Husband is the meal ticket. Without him they and their children would be homeless and foodless, and they shut their eyes to their husband's flirtations for the sake of safety. Many other wives put up with their husbands' unfaithfulness because they love well enough to forgive. They have no lives outside of their husbands and they would rather eat the crumbs of affection that they carelessly bestow upon them than starve for love away from them.

No man loses his respect for his wife if she helps him financially, or if she waits on him a great deal. On the contrary, he likes it. And occasionally he is grateful to her for it.

DEAR MISS DIX: I know two sisters who are well educated, quite pretty and attractive, but they are extremely tall and it makes them self-conscious. They won't go with men who are not as tall as they are, because they think it makes them look "funny." Do you think their chances of being happily married is lessened by their height?

MRS. L. D. J.

ANSWER: I think there is something worse than being tall the matter with the girls. It is a lack of common sense. For if they used their brains a little bit they would realize that their height doesn't matter a particle to anybody but themselves. Good husband material is not to be estimated by the yardage, and many little men who are short on size are long on intelligence, energy and initiative, and are the most desirable catches.

DOROTHY DIX cannot answer personal mail. Leaflet D-10, "Attentions from Married Man," offers wise counsel to girls confronted with this serious problem. To obtain a copy, send 5 cents and a stamped self-addressed envelope to Miss Dix, c/o this newspaper, P. O. Box 98, Times Square Station, New York 18, N. Y.

SEPTEMBER TRAGEDY

No, it isn't those wrists thrusting so bare below the too-short sleeves. Nor the high-water effect of last year's school shorts. That's a predicament.

The tragedy lies in the days between Septembers . . . those days that flew by with no record of the child who lived them in fun and beauty. Keep those childhood days forever in photographs to cherish always.

Ford's Ford division has built 880,000 cars and 260,000 trucks since last Jan. 1. It has been assembling about 26,000 cars and 8,000 trucks each week.

Probably both companies are using close to all their productive capacity in maintaining these weekly schedules. Both could boost output a little more by additional overtime operations.

Right now both are producing the best vehicles they ever made. Chevrolet made a substantial engineering advance with its powerglide transmission. With the introduction of that device this year it became the first of the lower price car makers to have an automatic transmission.

But Ford, too, has one about ready after many months of development and refinement in cooperation with Borg-Warner. It probably will be offered as optional equipment with Ford's forthcoming 1951 models.

It cannot be said Ford followed Chevrolet's lead in regard to automatic transmissions. Developing these devices takes many months of experimentation. Planning for them began at both Chevrolet and Ford soon after World War II.

But development of automatic transmissions was but one of the engineering advances Chevrolet and Ford have carried out in preparation for the eventual fight for top place.

There have been improved power plants, better steering and more comfortable riding. All are part of the preliminary skirmishing between the two manufacturers. There will be more of it—all to the distinct advantage of the buyer of a Chevrolet or Ford car.

Fudickar asserted that he would present 15 or 20 cases to the grand jury when it meets October 2.

DOROTHY DIX

Holding A Husband

Wife Advised To Remove Source Of Temptation

DEAR MISS DIX: If you had proof positive that a woman with whom your husband works was manifesting more personal interest in the man than professional interest in her job, would you feel justified in using the power you possess in having her transferred from this particular job to one in which she would not come into such close contact with your husband?

And have you any recipe whereby a wife's faith in her husband may be restored?

H. B. S.

DOROTHY DIX

ANSWER: I am afraid there is no nostrum that will ever bring a wife's faith in her husband back to normal after it has once suffered an attack of the jitters. It will always thereafter be a little subject to agues and sinking spells. But I can recommend to you a good heart tonic that will pull you through if you use it as needed.

Use your sense of humor. Tease him about his crush and about how easily he has fallen for the near-siren. Don't make scenes about it. When a wife does that it sends her husband back to the "other woman" to be sympathized with and comforted, and that is fatal.

YOU ARE RIGHT

I think you are exactly right in having the woman whom you suspect of having designs upon your husband transferred before she gets in any more of her work. Lots of men can stand anything but temptation. So the wise thing is to remove it out of their way.

Of course, wherever a man goes he is bound to be thrown in contact with attractive women, and a philanderer is going to philander no matter how much he is watched, but all the same there is no use in throwing temptation in a husband's way, or hiring Miss America for a parlor maid.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Is it true that 5 per cent of married men are unfaithful to their wives? If so, why do the wives stand for it? Is it true that most wives are suspicious of their husbands? Is it true that 85 per cent of the wives are unfaithful to their husbands? Does a man lose his respect for his wife if she comes to his aid financially and if she waits on him a great deal?

WONDERING

ANSWER: I am afraid you will have to keep on wondering as to the number of husbands and wives who are philanderers, since there are no statistics on this subject. I can hardly believe, however, that the majority of married people are unfaithful to their mates. For most of the husbands and wives that we know give no evidence that they are treading the primrose path and conducting illicit love affairs.

The reason that so many wives put up with their husbands' sidestepping is obvious. Many of them have to. Husband is the meal ticket. Without him they and their children would be homeless and foodless, and they shut their eyes to their husband's flirtations for the sake of safety. Many other wives put up with their husbands' unfaithfulness because they love well enough to forgive. They have no lives outside of their husbands and they would rather eat the crumbs of affection that they carelessly bestow upon them than starve for love away from them.

No man loses his respect for his wife if she helps him financially, or if she waits on him a great deal. On the contrary, he likes it. And occasionally he is grateful to her for it.

DEAR MISS DIX: I know two sisters who are well educated, quite pretty and attractive, but they are extremely tall and it makes them self-conscious. They won't go with men who are not as tall as they are, because they think it makes them look "funny." Do you think their chances of being happily married is lessened by their height?

MRS. L. D. J.

ANSWER: I think there is something worse than being tall the matter with the girls. It is a lack of common sense. For if they used their brains a little bit they would realize that their height doesn't matter a particle to anybody but themselves. Good husband material is not to be estimated by the yardage, and many little men who are short on size are long on intelligence, energy and initiative, and are the most desirable catches.

DOROTHY DIX cannot answer personal mail. Leaflet D-10, "Attentions from Married Man," offers wise counsel to girls confronted with this serious problem. No, it isn't those wrists thrusting so bare below the too-short sleeves. Nor the high-water effect of last year's school shorts. That's a predicament. JACOBY ON CANASTA

By Oswald Jacoby

Lou Catches A Few 'Fish'

There is a period of about three weeks every summer when Larceny Lou disappears from his usual haunts and actually spends his time out in the country.

I believe that he puts in most of this time fishing and I really pity the poor fish that have to put their poor talents against him. However, while he is away, his human fish get a well deserved rest.

He dropped in to see me the other morning looking all sunburned and healthy, and much to my surprise had a Canasta hand for me. I say "much to my surprise" because in bygone years, Lou had never played any cards at all while on his vacation.

Here is the story in Lou's own words. "While I don't like to play cards when on vacation, I just couldn't keep away this time. The hotel was a real Canasta center, and there were dozens of games every night. While some of the players were terrible, there was one bunch that played a pretty fair game and I got in the habit of joining them after dinner.

"I find that Canasta players are even more gullible than bridge players or fish, and that even the best will bite on any new form of bait.

"It was one of those unusual hands in which each side had managed to get a couple of discard piles. Both had several melds, many in the same rank, as their opponents. Finally, someone froze the discard pile and it looked as if the hand would go to the end with no one going out or getting the discard pile.

"I knew that I could play safely to the end, but at the same time saw that only a miracle or a really fancy play could get me the pack; the reason being that the only pair I held was jacks. My partner had melded joker-jack-jack early in the hand, and I had gradually acquired four jacks as play developed, without adding any to the meld.

"Of course, I might have tried the old chestnut of adding two of the four to his meld, but even in that hotel my reputation had preceded me, and I doubt if my opponent would have fallen for it. However, something better developed.

"I drew from the stock, counted and found that there were only three cards left. That gave me no more plays, but I would still have a crack at one more discard. I still held two wild cards. So, I added two jacks and two wild cards to the meld, thereby completing the canasta and leaving my self with two more jacks.

"The play might not work, but it cost me little to try and since I am telling the story, you can imagine the result."

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

WAR JOBS

Washington—(AP)—The civil service commission is giving particular attention to the problem of emergency staffing of defense agencies.

It plans to do away with the "war service" type of appointment under which almost all civil service rules and regulations were suspended during World War II.

Hal Boyle:

NOTEBOOK

New York.—Whatever the evil wrought by war, hot or cold, it hasn't dampened the traditional American ardor to travel to far places—yet.

Travel agents, a nervous breed whose business is affected by the temperature of international relations, say they see no reason to get the wind up. Currently they have before them comforting statistics which show that September's outgoing steamship passages are slightly larger in number than they were last year.

International plane traffic is from 10 to 15 per cent higher than last September. A lot of the latter, of course, is business travel, but agents are happy to deduce that this means international trade has mushroomed too.

The U. S. state department's passport division, on the other hand has some cold figures on passport issuance which might indicate that some people are getting a little nervous about straying too far from home. The state department is not making any interpretations. However, from March through July the number of passports issued monthly ran consistently from 2,000 to 4,000 over 1949 monthly totals. In August, the figure dipped to 18,036. It had been 19,847 in August last year.

It is evident, nevertheless, that the American tourist's reputation as a devout rubbernecker is an honest one. One of the major steamship lines said its outgoing bookings for the first two months after the Korean outbreak were greater than they had been during a comparable period the year before. It is to be suspected that the ship line—and others—was holding itself ready for a storm of cancellations.

Of course, an important 1950 factor in trans-Atlantic travel has been the steady stream of Holy Year pilgrims to Rome. The major exodus took place this summer, but American express reports that thousands of pilgrims are still going to Italy during the few remaining months of this special year. This has boosted travel to Italy 20 per cent over it's normal fall quota.

The cruise craze continues too. Western hemisphere trips, short and long, are more popular than usual, the industry says. So are Mediterranean cruises which last 50 days or more and are priced from $1,500 up. Some of the de luxe pleasure ships plan stops at ports which are potential hotspots, but from the size of the bookings few persons have been deterred by that. The steamship lines assure that in the event of "emergencies," itineraries can be speedily revised.

There are few 'round-the-world cruises, but those scheduled have suffered no lack of passengers. None, of course, includes Japan or nearby troubled waters.

"We are advising travel agents to stick to their knitting and sell travel," said a spokesman for the big American Society of Travel Agents, "and we think that the American people believe there will be no international trouble on a large scale in the immediate future."

INDONESIA IN U. N.?

Lake Success—(AP)—The Indonesian Republic looks like a sure thing to become 60th member of the United Nations.

Diplomatic informants say Indonesia may apply for membership early in the coming general as-previously by Soviet veto or lack of majority support, may try again but without much prospect of success.

Indonesia has kept up good relations with both Russia and the Western Powers and has been approaching the question cautiously to make sure of favorable conditions.

By 1960, one person of every 11 then living will have passed the age of 65, according to estimates.

James Marlow:

THE NATION TODAY

Washington, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Americans have a good chance to prove the Communists are right. It will be ironic if they do.

The Russian Communist leaders take a pretty dim view of the instincts in mankind. For instance, selfishness.

They don't trust people to curb their own selfishness and, by reasonable and fair conduct with one another, keep the economy intact.

So the Communist leadership imposes iron controls on all phases of living, including prices, wages, ownership of property, and so on.

By their control of prices and wages, for example, they can limit the ability of the people to buy or hoard goods or food.

The theory behind the American government is that people by themselves can act reasonably and fairly, curbing their greed without government interference and, in this reasonable way, keep the economy intact.

Since this government represents all the people—and is really all the people—when it does interfere, it's supposed to do so for the general welfare and to protect the majority against some minority unfairness.

This American hatred for government interference is the basis of the people's freedom. And this country now is involved in a struggle with communism to keep it from winning and swallowing up the freedom.

The struggle grows more intense and may wind up in a world war in which communism or freedom will win, but not both. To be ready for the showdown if it comes, this country if rearming. Which means, as President Truman said, things will be different.

As more materials go into armament, there'll be less left for the luxuries and gadgets which people could buy so freely until now. Meanwhile, getting ready for the worst in human nature, the government has created a new OPA, called the economic stabilization agency.

This agency will have the job of controlling prices and wages and rationing, too—if such controls become necessary.

And the president has made W. Stuart Symington the nation's mobilization chief. His job is to coordinate all defense activities of civilian agencies. One of those activities is to see that plants doing defense work get the materials they need, even if other businesses have to do without.

It is too soon to say—unless there is a great emergency—whether any goods will become scarce enough to pinch anyone. They may. And therein lies the challenge to the people of this country:

Will they let greed and selfishness get the better of them? Will they start hoarding and buying more than they need? Will businessmen take advantages of shortages to hike prices unnecessarily or try to hoard scarce materials?

If they do, the government will slap on controls, and the greater the greed, the wider the controls, getting tougher. It will mean wide controls to prevent the people from wrecking their own economy.

(Already some of this has happened. Only yesterday Symington said most recent price increases were due to a few "unpatriotic chiselers." He said "serious damage" is being done by "people new in the market, organized to make an illegal or black market profit, The government is going to issue an anti-hoarding order to industry next week.)

If the American economy was wrecked, the Communists would have it that much easier to take over. It would prove what they've long proclaimed:

That a Capitalist society carries within it the seeds of its own destruction and, sooner or later, must wreck itself.

It certainly would be ironic if Americans, prizing freedom and struggling to preserve it, meanwhile let their greed produce a victory for the thing they're fighting.

It also would be ironic if, hating government controls, they brought those controls on themselves by failing to act reasonably.

The struggle grows more intense and may wind up in a world war in which communism or freedom will win, but not both. To be ready for the showdown if it comes, this country if rearming. Which means, as President Truman said, things will be different.

As more materials go into armament, there'll be less left for the luxuries and gadgets which people could buy so freely until now. Meanwhile, getting ready for the worst in human nature, the government has created a new OPA, called the economic stabilization agency.

This agency will have the job of controlling prices and wages and rationing, too—if such controls become necessary.

And the president has made W. Stuart Symington the nation's mobilization chief. His job is to coordinate all defense activities of civilian agencies. One of those activities is to see that plants doing defense work get the materials they need, even if other businesses have to do without.

It is too soon to say—unless there is a great emergency—whether any goods will become scarce enough to pinch anyone. They may. And therein lies the challenge to the people of this country:

Will they let greed and selfishness get the better of them? Will they start hoarding and buying more than they need? Will businessmen take advantages of shortages to hike prices unnecessarily or try to hoard scarce materials?

If they do, the government will slap on controls, and the greater the greed, the wider the controls, getting tougher. It will mean wide controls to prevent the people from wrecking their own economy.

(Already some of this has happened. Only yesterday Symington said most recent price increases were due to a few "unpatriotic chiselers." He said "serious damage" is being done by "people new in the market, organized to make an illegal or black market profit, The government is going to issue an anti-hoarding order to industry next week.)

If the American economy was wrecked, the Communists would have it that much easier to take over. It would prove what they've long proclaimed:

That a Capitalist society carries within it the seeds of its own destruction and, sooner or later, must wreck itself.

It certainly would be ironic if Americans, prizing freedom and struggling to preserve it, meanwhile let their greed produce a victory for the thing they're fighting.

It also would be ironic if, hating government controls, they brought those controls on themselves by failing to act reasonably.

Bidding Is O. K But Play Isn't

"Please settle an argument," requests a Hartford correspondent. "North claims he had a perfectly sound free raise to two diamonds. South claimed that the hand was not strong enough and that North should have passed.

heart, East played the jack, and South won with the queen. South laid down the ace of diamonds and then led another diamond, discovering the bad news. East was bound to get in with the queen of diamonds, at which time a heart return defeated the contract.

"Was the contract quite reasonable, even though defeated? Also, was North justified in raising to two diamonds?"

North's free raise was very skimpy. Most experts would pass over one heart. However, some fine players do not take the free raise quite so seriously, and players of that school would probably consider the North hand worth a raise to two diamonds. The point is a very close one, and depends more on "style" than on anything else.

As for the contract, it was not only very reasonable, but actually should have been made. South threw the contract away when he took the first diamond trick with the ace.

A careful study of the hand shows that South needs only four diamond tricks to make his contract. He can be sure of winning four clubs and the opening heart trick. In going after four diamond tricks, South's only consideration is to keep East out of the lead. As the actual declarer found out, it was fatal to give East the chance to lead hearts.

Since South needs four diamond tricks and needs to keep East out of the lead, the correct play of the suit is well marked. After winning the first trick with the queen of hearts, declarer should lead a diamond to dummy's king. He should then return a low diamond from dummy and finesse the nine from his own hand.

As it happens, this finesse would succeed, and declarer would make his contract with an overtrick. Even if it lost to a doubleton queen, however, South would still make four diamond tricks and would therefore fulfill his contract.

It is true that South would fail if East happened to hold three diamonds headed by the Q-10. However, in that case no play would work.

AIRLINE PROFITS

Washington —(AP)— Judging from activity thus far, the nation's airlines are headed for a record year in volume of business and size of profits.

Operating income for the first six months was slightly over seven per cent higher than in the first half of 1949, which was a record year. The increase over last year became even greater in July, as a result of the Korean fighting.

Predictions now are that new operating income (profits before taxes) may run as high as $50,000,000, about double 1949.

CIVIC MUSIC'S WEEK ARRANGED

Twin City Mayors Set Aside Oct. 9-14 For Benefit Of This Group

In proclamations just issued, the mayors of Monroe and West Monroe have declared the week of October 9th to 14th Civic Music Week.

In recognition of the splendid services of the Civic Music Association in bringing to Monroe outstanding and renowned musical programs, the week of October 9th to 14th has been set aside for the annual membership drive. The Civic Music Association is a non-profit, cooperative organization, and the size of its membership governs the quantity and quality of the programs to be presented during the season. No single admissions are available for any of the concerts after the close of the membership drive on October 14th.

Music-lovers in the Twin Cities and surrounding vicinity are urged to obtain their memberships as soon as possible, since membership will be closed when auditorium capacity is reached.

In the past the Civic Music Associatiton has brought to Monroe such outstanding artists as Patrice Munsel, Gladys Swartout, The Salzedo Ensemble, Robert Merrill, The Four Piano Ensemble, and the Dallas Symphony Orchestra. For the current season the association has already signed the Longines Symphonette, Michel Piastro directing, which is recognized by musical America as being the best semi-classical program on radio. Other programs will be announced after completion of the membership drive.

"Whereas, the Monroe Civic Music Association is a non-profit cooperative organization of national and international reputation, making available to Monroe the best possible musical programs, and being an active cultural fore in the community having made possible the bringing of an outstanding series of concerts and artists to the Twin Cities.

"Whereas, an enlarged membership for the 1950-51 campaign will enable the Monroe Civic Music Association to bring artists that do honor to the Twin Cities.

"Whereas, the privileges of admission to these concerts is by membership only, Therefore we Mayor John Coon and Mayor C. C. Bell, mayors of Monroe and West Monroe, Louisiana do hereby urge all citizens to join zealously during the period of October 9th through October 14th, which we do hereby designate as Monroe Civic Music Week in making the 1950 civic music campaign the most successful in local history."

"LIGHTS ON"

for Cancer Memorial Sunday

You are invited to attend church today–to join with your friends and neighbors in observing Cancer Memorial Sunday.

This day has been set aside as more than a special time to remember those who have fallen victim to cancer; it has been proclaimed a period set apart as a time to seek the spiritual guidance and support so necessary to those engaged in the humanitarian effort to save lives and eliminate unnecessary human suffering caused by cancer.

Your Contribution Spells Hope

LIGHTS ON: The hour between nine and ten o'clock tonight, after church services, has been designated as "Lights On" Hour. Its beginning will be signaled by church bells and sirens. When you hear them, turn on your porch or other outside lights as a signal that YOU WANT TO GIVE THAT OTHERS MIGHT LIVE. Volunteers of the Ouachita Parish Unit of the American Cancer Society will be standing by, awaiting your light as a signal to call by and pick up your contribution.

When your turn on your light, you will be helping to bring cancer out of the darkness which surrounds it by making it possible to reach more people with life-saving facts about it; you will be helping bring the light of hope to those who may become victims of c a n c e r in the future; you will be helping to turn the brighter light of scientific research on this mystery killer, with faith that one day, with God's help, its cause and cure will be found.

MAKE YOUR PORCH LIGHT A BEACON OF HOPE

"LIGHTS ON"

for Cancer Memorial Sunday

You are invited to attend church today–to join with your friends and neighbors in observing Cancer Memorial Sunday.

This day has been set aside as more than a special time to remember those who have fallen victim to cancer; it has been proclaimed a period set apart as a time to seek the spiritual guidance and support so necessary to those engaged in the humanitarian effort to save lives and eliminate unnecessary human suffering caused by cancer.

Your Contribution Spells Hope

LIGHTS ON: The hour between nine and ten o'clock tonight, after church services, has been designated as "Lights On" Hour. Its beginning will be signaled by church bells and sirens. When you hear them, turn on your porch or other outside lights as a signal that YOU WANT TO GIVE THAT OTHERS MIGHT LIVE. Volunteers of the Ouachita Parish Unit of the American Cancer Society will be standing by, awaiting your light as a signal to call by and pick up your contribution.

When your turn on your light, you will be helping to bring cancer out of the darkness which surrounds it by making it possible to reach more people with life-saving facts about it; you will be helping bring the light of hope to those who may become victims of cancer in the future; you will be helping to turn the brighter light of scientific research on this mystery killer, with faith that one day, with God's help, its cause and cure will be found.

Give that others might live . . . .

The Sabbath School attendance is gratifying. The adults are attending in greater and greater numbers. Are you regular in your attendance, Brethren of the Faith? Do you attend at all? If you do not, you are wanted and needed. You can assure a record attendance for Rally Day, September 24.

"Promotion Assured" is the theme of the morning message. Sunday is promotion day in the Church School, and because our minds are centered on promotion is it not wise for us to consider the plan of Jesus, which pertains to promotion?

"The Miracle of Changed Men" is the subject of the evening sermon. What will change men? This is the issue and according to the teachings of the Holy Scriptures there is one way to change people. What is that way?

A hearty welcome awaits you at all hours of worship.

Bible Comments
By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

When Jesus said, "A man's foes shall be they of his own household" (Matthew 10:36), he was speaking out of what must have been His own sorrowful experience.

In John 7:5 we read that "neither did His brethren believe in Him." Apparently, without having any of the cruel and vengeful spirit that Joseph's brothers displayed, there was in a milder way much the same attitude. They thought of Him as a dreamer, and they taunted Him with His claims of such a great mission. A great feast, the feast of tabernacles, was about to be held in Jerusalem. So, without faith in Him, his brothers urged Him to go. "If thou do these things, show thyself to the world."

Jesus had evidently been saying in the home in Nazareth, as He had said to His parents at the age of twelve, in the temple, that He must be about His Father's business. But Jesus kept His own counsel, and awaited His own time. Constantly there was the consciousness that "His hour had not yet come." So, when His brothers had gone. He went up to Jerusalem, to the feast, in His own way.

What happened there is recorded in John 7, but what we are concerned with here is this background, and in noting the welcome fact that at least two of the brothers of Jesus became earnest Christian disciples. These two, James and Jude, are authors of two New Testament books.

Of Jude we do not know much. His book consists of a single chapter, but it is a vivid appeal and warning to early Christians, and it closes with a notable and beautiful benediction, often repeated.

Of James, on the other hand, we know a great deal, partly because of his own longer Epistle, and partly because of references to him in other parts of the New Testament. This James, who is to be distinguished from the Apostle of that name, was the one of the two, James and John, whom Jesus called "Boanerges," the "Sons of Thunder," was the leader in the Christian Church at Jerusalem.

This was a position of considerable authority and influence. Various New Testament references indicate how Christians and leaders in other Christian communities looked to Jerusalem for guidance, and for counsel in matters of controversy that sometimes arose.

But the notable thing is that the authority of James seems to have been spiritual, rather than official. His influence seems to have been commanding because of his deep integrity, and the purity of his heart and mind.

In our day I think James would have been called a good, democratic Christian, a man of good practical judgement and common sense. The "man with the gold ring," and the goodly apparel (See James 2:1-9), meant no more to him than the poorest saint.

James is the apostle of good works, but of good works springing from Christian faith and character. Luther, in his emphasis upon faith, called the Epistle of James an "epistle of straw," and would have left it out of his Bible.

But even great men are not infallible. I have just read how an eminent scientist scoffed at Edison's incandescent light, saying it would never be of value. The general verdict is that Luther was as wrong about the Epistle of James. It is the Epistle of a genuine Christian, a man of great faith, saying that great faith must be manifest in good works.

In Hollywood With

Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood, Sept. 16—Bob Hope wants young Gary Crosby to appear on his (Hope's) next produced-in-New York TV show, but Bing probably will kibosh the plan since he frowns on anything that might interfere with his springoffs' schooling . . . Rita LaRoy, one-time screen star who now operates a Hollywood model agency, is on the mend after a major operation . . . It's a term ticket at MGM for Herbert Coleman, the 11-year-old Negro moppet whose singing in "Lost In The Stars" scored such a hit . . . Looks like changed her mind about altar-trekking with L. A. Chamber of Commerce executive, Bill Schuyler; she's dating Frank Tripucka, former All-American at Notre Dame . . . Time out for Eugene O'Brien, matinee idol of the '20's, now seriously ill following a heart attack.

If that Louis Hayward - Julie Blanchard romance isn't serious, how come he made her the beneficiary of a $25,000 insurance policy he purchased recently? . . . Fanny Brice fans should be glad to hear that she's recorded a new "Baby Snooks" album for Capitol . . . Producer Stanley Kramer would like to know who's responsible for the wide-spread rumor that "The Men" has been withdrawn from release because it's interfering with army and navy enlistments; the picture may have suffered slightly because of war conditions, but it's still doing big business . . . The Sarah Marshall who's signed for a featured role with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontaine in "I Know My Love" is Herbert's daughter . . . Kirk Douglas, with eight months off from screen work next year, is shopping for a New York play.

Preview Nights: Pic of a lacklustre week: Warner Brothers' "The Breaking Point" (John Garfield-Patricia Neal - Phyllis Thaxter). Melodramaniacs will find in this one a sampling of all the tried and tested tricks, plus some better than average acting . . . Good: Eagle-Lion's "Timber Fury" (David Bruce-Laura Lee). A James Oliver Curwood yarn that's lost little of its zip in screen translation . . . Fair: Universal-International's "The Sleeping City" (Richard Conte-Coleen Gray). Another cops-androbbers melodrama with the usual glimpses of underworld characters, police methods, assorted sluggings and gun play . . . Republic's "Frisco Tornado" (Alan "Rocky" Lane-Eddy Waller). Employing the customary chiches and chases, one of Hollywood's better cowboy heroes give the heavies their come-uppance . . . Columbia's "Indian Territory" (Gene Autry-Pat Buttram). More grim than the standard Autry western, this one suffers somewhat from its heavy-handed plot . . . Best Performance: John Garfield in "The Breaking Point."

About ten years ago, an RKO press agent was glowing to me about the studio's newest director—a young man named Edward Dmytryk. The theme of the press-agentry was Dmytryk's "sense of timing." The publicity man contended that no other director could match it.

Well, as I said before, that was about ten years ago. Just the other day, the same Eddie Dmytryk, now notorious as one of Hollywood's "Unfriendly Ten," and a prisoner in a federal work camp, belatedly stated through his attorney that he is not now a membef of the Communist party, and that he was not a member at the time of the congressional investigation which landed him in his present position. In short he finally answered the $64 Question."

I don't think so much of his sense of timing now. Had he made that same statement when called to the witness stand by the House un - American Activities committee instead of refusing, at that time, to answer, he wouldn't have lost a fortune, or his career . . . or his liberty. How silly can a man be?

While we're on the subject of silliness, how silly can Hollywood publicity become? I'm thinking just now of the many stories put out recently about Ava Gardner's efforts to give Frank Sinatra the brush. There was one in my mail this morning, an effusion which announces that Ava has even gone into "hiding" on several occasions to escape Frankie-boy's attentions but that he always manages to find her.

What bosh! Frankie may be a bit thick-skinned, but I refuse to believe that Ava can't get rid of him if she really wants to, by simply telling him so in one-syllable words. I'd have more respect for the lady if she'd order her press agents to quit trying to saddle Sinatra for all the blame for their distasteful romance.

I like the story Frank Fontaine tells about a beauty parlor ad he saw in Boston. It read: "Don't whistle at the girl you see leaving here—she may be your grandmother!"

SIX NEW STAMPS

Argentina honors the International Philatelic Exhibition held in Buenos Aires by issuing six new stamps, reports the New York Stamp Co. The 1 pesoplus 1 magenta depicts a man looking at a sheet of stamps. The 2.50 pesos plus 2.50 olive shows a woman opening a letter. The 5 pesos plus 5 green is a portrait of General San Martin. The 10 centavos plus 10 violet pictures an artist designing the previously mentioned stamp. The 45 c plus 45 blue shows a plihatelist working on his collection. The 70 c plus 70 brown depicts a worker examining a stamp as it comes off the presses.

Pesky radio tubes of the home receiver now may be removed with ease and without danger of breakage. A simple tool makes removal easy regardless of how hot the tube or how limited the working space.

Bible Comments
By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

When Jesus said, "A man's foes shall be they of his own household" (Matthew 10:36), he was speaking out of what must have been His own sorrowful experience.

In John 7:5 we read that "neither did His brethren believe in Him." Apparently, without having any of the cruel and vengeful spirit that Joseph's brothers displayed, there was in a milder way much the same attitude. They thought of Him as a dreamer, and they taunted Him with His claims of such a great mission. A great feast, the feast of tabernacles, was about to be held in Jerusalem. So, without faith in Him, his brothers urged Him to go. "If thou do these things, show thyself to the world."

Jesus had evidently been saying in the home in Nazareth, as He had said to His parents at the age of twelve, in the temple, that He must be about His Father's business. But Jesus kept His own counsel, and awaited His own time. Constantly there was the consciousness that "His hour had not yet come." So, when His brothers had gone. He went up to Jerusalem, to the feast, in His own way.

What happened there is recorded in John 7, but what we are concerned with here is this background, and in noting the welcome fact that at least two of the brothers of Jesus became earnest Christian disciples. These two, James and Jude, are authors of two New Testament books.

Of Jude we do not know much. His book consists of a single chapter, but it is a vivid appeal and warning to early Christians, and it closes with a notable and beautiful benediction, often repeated.

Of James, on the other hand, we know a great deal, partly because of his own longer Epistle, and partly because of references to him in other parts of the New Testament. This James, who is to be distinguished from the Apostle of that name, was the one of the two, James and John, whom Jesus called "Boanerges," the "Sons of Thunder," was the leader in the Christian Church at Jerusalem.

This was a position of consideerable authority and influence. Various New Testament references indicate how Christians and leaders in other Christian communities looked to Jerusalem for guidance, and for counsel in matters of controversy that sometimes arose.

But the notable thing is that the authority of James seems to have been spiritual, rather than official. His influence seems to have been commanding because of his deep integrity, and the purity of his heart and mind.

In our day I think James would have been called a good, democratic Christian, a man of good practical judgement and common sense. The "man with the gold ring," and the goodly apparel (See James 2:1-9), meant no more to him than the poorest saint.

James is the apostle of good works, but of good works springing from Christian faith and character. Luther, in his emphasis upon faith, called the Epistle of James an "epistle of straw," and would have left it out of his Bible.

But even great men are not infallible. I have just read how an eminent scientist scoffed at Edison's incandescent light, saying it would never be of value. The general verdict is that Luther was as wrong about the Epistle of James. It is the Epistle of a genuine Christian, a man of great faith, saying that great faith must be manifest in good works.

About ten years ago, an RKO press agent was glowing to me about the studio's newest director—a young man named Edward Dmytryk. The theme of the press-agentry was Dmytryk's "sense of timing." The publicity man contended that no other director could match it.

Well, as I said before, that was about ten years ago. Just the other day, the same Eddie Dmytryk, now notorious as one of Hollywood's "Unfriendly Ten," and a prisoner in a federal work camp, belatedly stated through his attorney that he is not now a membef of the Communist party, and that he was not a member at the time of the congressional investigation which landed him in his present position. In short he finally answered the $64 Question."

I don't think so much of his sense of timing now. Had he made that same statement when called to the witness stand by the House un - American Activities committee instead of refusing, at that time, to answer, he wouldn't have lost a fortune, or his career . . . or his liberty. How silly can a man be?

While we're on the subject of silliness, how silly can Hollywood publicity become? I'm thinking just now of the many stories put out recently about Ava Gardner's efforts to give Frank Sinatra the brush. There was one in my mail this morning, an effusion which announces that Ava has even gone into "hiding" on several occasions to escape Frankie-boy's attentions but that he always manages to find her.

What bosh! Frankie may be a bit thick-skinned, but I refuse to believe that Ava can't get rid of him if she really wants to, by simply telling him so in one-syllable words. I'd have more respect for the lady if she'd order her press agents to quit trying to saddle Sinatra for all the blame for their distasteful romance.

I like the story Frank Fontaine tells about a beauty parlor ad he saw in Boston. It read: "Don't whistle at the girl you see leaving here—she may be your grandmother!"

SIX NEW STAMPS

Argentina honors the International Philatelic Exhibition held in Buenos Aires by issuing six new stamps, reports the New York Stamp Co. The 1 pesoplus 1 magenta depicts a man looking at a sheet of stamps. The 2.50 pesos plus 2.50 olive shows a woman opening a letter. The 5 pesos plus 5 green is a portrait of General San Martin. The 10 centavos plus 10 violet pictures an artist designing the previously mentioned stamp. The 45 c plus 45 blue shows a plihatelist working on his collection. The 70 c plus 70 brown depicts a worker examining a stamp as it comes off the presses.

Pesky radio tubes of the home receiver now may be removed with ease and without danger of breakage. A simple tool makes removal easy regardless of how hot the tube or how limited the working space.

WASHINGTON FAMILY TOURS NEWPORT

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ellis and their twin sons of Washington, D. C., stroll down the steps of "The Breakers" fabulous Vanderbilt mansion in Newport, R. I. Once you could see it only as you drove down millionaire's row; now it's open as a tourist attraction.

Tourists Roam Newport's Palaces

Average American Families Have Captured The City Of Newport; Modest Family Sedans Eclipse The Stately Limousines

Newport, R. I.—(NEA)—The average American family has captured the city of Newport, once the exclusive resort of high society's millionaires.

The blue-blooded rich still come here — but not as many of them now. The modest family sedans with license plates that mark tourists from 48 states eclipse the stately limousines.

The fact that the wealthy are feeling the pinch of the high cost of living, which makes it difficult for some of them to maintain their elaborate palaces and the huge servant staffs it takes to run them, has become one of the drawing cards for the tourists.

Until recently, these mansions were something the non-millionaire could only stare at as he drove by Bellevue Avenue, street of the Astors and Vanderbilts. Or he could look at them from the Cliff Walk that runs between the mansions and the sea, a pathway the rich could never block off from the poor.

Today, however, anybody can walk right in some of the palaces. "The Breakers," for instance, fabulous 70-room mansion built by Cornelius Vanderbilt in 1895, is now open to the public.

In its heyday, it took 40 servants to keep house in "The Breakers." Now it requires a staff of 11 to keep it open for the thousands of tourists who visit it every year.

Ellis, a caterer, was particularly interested in the huge kitchen with a 25-foot stove and row-on-row of shiny copper kettles. The twins were awe-struck by the playhouse —big enough to house an average family.

His wife, however, was more impressed by old houses and buildings, such as Trinity Church, and the Wanton-Layman-Hazard house, built a century before the Revolution.

Like many other of Newport's new visitors, the Ellis family comes for their whole vacation, just the way the millionaires do. They stay in one of the dozen or so new motor courts instead of on Bellevue avenue, however.

The tourists haven't yet broken down the barriers of Bailey's Beach, which is by no means the best place to go swimming in Newport, but is still the most exclusive.

LAUNDRY FRETS CZECH REDS

Prague.—(AP)—The housewife whose linen was lost in the laundry and the man whose suit was damaged at the cleaner's have found friends in high places. The Prague Communist newspaper "Rude Pravo" and the Prague district organization of the Czechoslovak Communist party have come to their rescue with a cleanup campaign, and they have been assured that everything will come out in the wash. The paper reported their troubles and announced corrective measures in a recent column devoted to letters to the editor. The executive board of the Prague district committee of the Communist party agreed the situation was bad. It decided that a new laundry must be started to handle 42 per cent more work; inefficient workers replaced, and "the political and technological level of employes" raised generally.

WORLD YOUTH UNION

To Honor the second meeting of the World Youth Union, Turkey has issued a set of two new stamps. Both have the same design. The 15 kurus is violet. The 20 kurus is blue. The central design depicts the silhouette of a boy and girl standing atop the world globe. In the background can be seen an outline of Istanbul and part of the Citadel of Ankara.

Snyder Lives Upside Down For Science

(Associated Press Newsfeatures)

Wichita, Kas.—Blame Fred Snyder's pet rats for his 30 days of "topsy turvy" vision. They were slated to do an experiment for him—in visual perception. He was going to write his master's thesis about them.

"But," says the 25-year-old GI graduate student, "I fed 'em, and took good care of 'em. But I couldn't get a big enough colony."

His thesis deadline near, he put on binocular-type inversion glasses and his adventure in upside-down, reversed vision began.

"It was difficult, with the lenses off, to recognize people I'd first met during the test," he remembers. "And it had been quite difficult to recognize people when I put the glasses on—even though I knew them really well.

"At first I was quite struck by the fact that everything was upside down. But as the experiment progressed, I became less and less aware of it.

"Toward the end everything seemed normal—until somebody'd say, 'do you really see things upside down?"

Then, he grinned, he'd start thinking "how queer everything looked."

Even fully adjusted, he admits, his upside-down world "never really seemed right-side-up again. It's funny—but people walking upside down seem to bounce."

With Dr. N. H. Pronko, psychology head at the University of Wichita, Snyder feels he's helped prove that vision is a learning process.

In 30 days of seeing things in reverse, Snyder found he could perform certain tests quicker than before he donned the glasses. In others, he quickly reached or neared pre-test speeds.

His card sorting speeded up from 114 seconds to 85.8 seconds, for example.

He hit a pre-test time of 54 seconds on the Purdue peg-board—a cribbage scoreboard-like gadget common in college psychology labs. His best time, with these glasses on, was 56.6 seconds.

His best pre-test time was 12 seconds. He hit 7.8 seconds on his 29th day of reversed vision. Best time since the glasses came off—10.4 seconds.

WARNS OF BEGGARS WITH DOGS

New Advice For Cowboys 'Go East'

By Robert E. Geiger
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Washington — That white hot interest in cowboys that eastern young fry have whipped up may not be wasted. The cow punching business may have a great future in the east. That's the judgement of the United States department of agriculture.

Here's how a report by the bureau of agricultural economics (B. A. E.) reasons:

The west once was the great beef and mutton source for the rest of the nation. Western sheep and cattle were shipped in great numbers to eastern fattening centers or markets.

Some went back to the west, of course, in the form of corn fed steaks and chops. But population has gone up about two-thirds in 25 years in the west while eastern population has increased about one-fifth.

The number of slaughter houses in the west increased along with the rise in population. The number of animals these slaughter houses require about equals the animals in the 11 western states, plus Texas, market.

That doesn't mean cattle no longer are shipped from west to east. But the B. A. E. report says each year fewer cattle are shipped east; more are consumed in the west. It adds that this trend probably will continue, and the east will have to find other sources for meat.

The report points to these figures:

Slaughter by western packing plants about doubled in the past 23 years, if measured in weight of slaughtered animals. But production of meat animals increased only one-third. So surplus animals available for shipping eastward decreased.

The B. A. E. has produced some maps to illustrate what is happening. They show a line dividing the country. On the western side is the area that markets enough cattle and sheep to fill requirements of packing plants in 11 western states and Texas. This line is gradually moving eastward. It now runs almost through the middle of Texas and is nearing the eastern boundaries of the other states.

For sheep and lambs, the line ran through the middle of Oregon and Washington and along the eastern boundary of California about 23 years ago. Now it's several hundred miles east, adding several states to the total of those required to produce sufficient animals to meet the needs of western packers.

Western states never have produced enough pork for their own needs. As population has increased westerners have drawn more heavily on states to the east, or the midwestern corn belt. These states also produce pork for the eastern states. So western competition for this meat has increased.

In the future, the department says, the West probably will gain population faster than the east and expansion of its cattle business will merely take care of the increased population.

So if the east is to be supported in the beef and mutton eating manner to which it has been accustomed, easterners probably will have to raise more cattle and sheep.

COMMEMORATES

TO COMMEMORATE Holy Year, Fiji will issue a special set of three stamps, reports Gimbel's stamp department.

The central design illustrates a reproduction of the bronze statue of St. Peter's basilica in Rome. This famous statue was placed by St. Leo in the original Basilica of St. Peter in 445 A. D. It is customary for visiting pilgrims to kiss the right foot of the statue. Down through the centuries this has resulted in the wearing away of the foot.

Ted Dunham Continues To Expand His Holdings

Dunham-Pugh President Opens New Enterprises And Management In Other Hands; Establishes More Than Dozen Firms Since 1937

Ted Dunham, president of Dunham-Pugh in Monroe and several state-wide enterprises in Louisiana and other states throughout the nation, is the subject of a feature published in "Big," the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, Inc.'s periodical, which is dedicated to America's big jobs, the men behind them and the mighty equipment that makes them possible.

The article, in addition to describing him as a businessman with more than a dozen strings to his bow, numerates his various holdings along with their origin.

The publication pointed out that as an ex-Oklahoma truck driver, Dunham went hunting for big business in the rapidly developing economy of the Gulf States 13 years ago. After surveying the scene for many months, he leveled his bow on Baton Rouge in 1937. From this time, on his interests have grown as described by "Big" in the following article.

"Ever since then the six-foot, 190 pound, dark haired huntsman has been adding new strings to his bow and shooting straight, hard and fast.

"Dunham, only 43 years old, has rolled up a phenomenal marksmanship record. He has plucked off one success after another. He's always aiming for the bull's-eye and his achievements bear out a natural knack for ending up on the target.

"Ted, as everybody knows him, is an individual who likes to create and build new businesses. His technique has been to develop new businesses, (he now has more than a dozen), and then turn over the active management to a partner or an associate. From that point, Dunham only counsels and participates on the top policy-making level.

"The words of a partner best describe the Dunham prowess: "Ted has a more intimate knowledge of more different businesses than any person I've ever known."

"The remarkable story of Dunham's vision and efforts began in the Oklahoma oil fields. After starting as a truck driver at the age of 16, Dunham went into his own lumber business when he was 20 years old. He moved his yards from one place to another as new oil fields were opened or closed. Here he made many friends and developed a keen business acumen.

"Then in 1936 he sensed the glorious economic possibilities of the Gulf Coast States. His first idea was to get into the ready-mixed concrete business. He began a personal survey of several areas and their market possibilities. Ultimately, Baton Rouge was his choice.

"By 1937 Anderson-Dunham Concrete company, Inc., was doing business on the outskirts of Louisiana's Capital city. The Anderson name in the firm stemmed from Jim Anderson, a prominent Texas and Oklahoma oil man, who was one of Dunham's original partners. The concrete plant is now wholly-owned by Dunham, but retains its original name.

"The Anderson - Dunham concrete plant is one of the largest and most modern in the world. It involves an investment of more than $1,500,000. All materials are scientifically - processed to meet the most stringent specifications. With a fleet of 50 trucks, the Baton Rouge plant has a capacity to produce and deliver 1,000 cubic yards of concrete every eight hours. It also is one of the largest producers of concrete pipe in the state, and manufacturers a large volume of ready-mixed asphalt for the road-building program that is continuing within the city of Baton Rouge.

finery at Baton Rouge.

Before this giant plant began its tremendous expansion program, all concrete for construction was hand-mixed. Shortly after getting his plant into operation, Dunham sold the oil company executives on the virtues of ready - mixed concrete. And ever since then—

Ted Dunham

This is one of Dunham's more recent additions.

"The key to Dumham's success in the ready-mixed concrete venture is the $200,000,000 Standard Oil Company of New Jersey refor the last 12 years—Dunham has furnished all the bulk concrete for their plant.

"Dunham also cashed in on all the other industry expansion projects which have hit Baton Rouge during the last decade. Other sizeable consumers were the Ethyl Corporation, Solvay Process Corporation, Permanente Metals Corporation, five synthetic rubber plants and the Gulf States Utilities Company.

"After the first successful venture, Ted decided to branch out. He brought Rowland Price, now deceased, down from Oklahoma. Together they formed the Dunham-Price Company, Inc., at Lake Charles. Several years before in Oklahoma they had operated jointly a chain of lumber yards known as the Dunham - Price Lumber Company. So they were old friends.

"This Dunham-Price organization today is comparable to Anderson-Dunham's Baton Rouge operation except that it does not produce ready - mixed asphalt. It serves the many large oil and chemical companies in the Lake Charles area. Half of this company is still owned by Mrs. Rowland Price and her two sons, Bob and Ted.

"From the time of his early youth, Ted always has been interested in aviation. He has been a licensed pilot for 16 years. Early in 1942 Ted went into the army air transport command as a first lieutenant, but before he left, it might be said that Dunham "put things on ice." He opened the Dunham Ice Company, a 50-ton artificial ice plant that still operates in Baton Rouge, with other side activities, such as the manufacture of ice cream.

"Dunham drafted a friend, E. D. (Woody) Wilson, an executive of the Kansas City Southern Railroad to come down from Kanasas City to handle his business affairs.

"It was Bill Pugh and Wilson who carried out Dunham's instructions and organized the Dunham-Pugh Company, Inc., in 1943. Bill Pugh was an old personal friend from Guthrie, Okla. He opened the doors of this industrial equipment distributorship at Baton Rouge in 90 days. The Dunham-Pugh Company, which now has branches in New Orleans and Monroe is exclusive statewide distributor for International Harvester machinery, J. A. Adams road graders, Bucyrus - Erie bulldozers and scrapers, and P & H draglines and truck cranes, plus numerous other lines of equipment manufacturers.

"During Durham's tour in the army he met F. M. (Dud) Coates, a Little Rock, Ark., insurance man. They became great friends, and Dunham prevailed upon Coates to come to Baton Rouge when his army service was terminated. Today, Coates is vice-president and general manager of the Dunham-Pugh Company.

"In 1945, about the time Dunham was discharged from military service, he and Wilson founded the Dunham - Wilson Company, Inc., to engage in the manufacture fabrication and distribution of steel and iron products. Wilson is now president of this firm.

"With all of his supply organization operating smoothly, Ted began to spread out — and down. He drilled several oil wells in Oklahoma and Texas. Then with Pugh and J. Van Lindley, he formed the Lindley Drilling Company of Canada. For the past two years they have been busy bringing oil to the surface in the great western Canadian oil fields. As drilling contractors, they maintain officers, in Edmonton, Alberta.

"In addition to these far-flung ventures during the last two years, Dunham has become part owner of the United Sash and Door Company of Baton Rouge, organized the Gulf Sash and Door Company in Lake Charles, and is operating the Dunham Sash and Door Company of Shreveport.

"Last year Dunham bought the only rock quarry in Louisiana, located at Winnfield, with the primary purpose of producing crushed limestone for his ready-mixed asphalt operations throughout the state. This quarry had been abandoned for several years until Dunham put in new equipment and began operation. Soon after, a soft greyish rock was found underneath the limestone. After having it analyzed and core drilled, it was determined to be a tremendous deposit of palmost pure gypsum. There is not other known deposit within the states of Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Florida. And gypsum is a "must" in the manufacture of plaster and sheet rock, in addition to cement. So it is likely that Dunham soon may have a sheet rock, in addition to cement. So it is likely that Durham soon may have a sheet rock plaster mill.

DEADLY COLLECTION

Arkansas Town Is Willed Collection Of Famed Guns

(Associated Press Newsfeatures)

Berryville Ark.,—Six shooters once packed by such noted outlaws as Billy the Kid, Jesse James, Henry Starr and Pretty Boy Floyd are included in a privately-owned gun collection that has been willed to this county seat town in the Ozarks.

The display, reputed to be one of the world's largest, belongs to a keen-eyed, 87-year-old man with a white goatee—Col. Charles Burton Saunders. The Texas-born, internationally - known pistol shot spent many years and a considerable amount of money collecting the firearms.

Other items in the collection of 2,000 guns are dueling pistols that belonged to European royalty, sidearms carried by famous scouts, frontier marshals of a by-gone era and other widely known personalties. In addition, the exhibit includes the knife with which "Buffalo Bill" is said to have killed Chief Yellow Hand in a hand-to-hand encounter, curios and relics from many parts of the world and his pistol championship trophies.

Saunders says he has documented evidence to support the history of each item in the collection.

"I've paid as high as 1,500 for a gun that had no historical background, yet was a rare model. However, I wouldn't give $1.50 for one with a historical background that couldn't be proved to my satisfaction," he said.

He pointed out a wooden gun in the display as an example and said: "I paid $50 for this gun, which was carved from a toilet seat and used by two convicts in their escape from the death house at the Arkansas penitentiary, but it wouldn't be anything but a child's toy if I couldn't prove the story."

Estimates of the value of the collection range upward from $250,000.

New Conflict Breads Retread

By NEA Service

An Advance U. S. Air Base In Korea —(NEA)— There's a new breed of "retread" in this new war being fought by American forces.

The retread—an officer recalled to duty—of the recent World War II usually arrived with soft midriff, bald head and a business past. Korea's retreads are mostly young men who have barely had time to accumulate any past except the last war.

One of these is a 24-year-old flier 1st Lt. Phil Conserva, of Patchogue, N. Y., who came out of World War II with 30 ground support missions to his credit and went to Columbia University to study for two years.

He took up again with the Air Force in 1948 and was sent to Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines. It was from Clark that he volunteered into the Korean vanguard.

"I made a bad mistake educationally for this," he declared ruefully. "I went out for the wrestling team at Columbia in the 136-145 pound class, and for a war like this, I should have taken up high hurdles."

Operations in Korea for Conserva and his companions are complicated by sharp mountains which loom suddenly among low clouds. These obstructions have all but accounted for him and his mates many times.

"To get under the cloud banks and to maneuver the passes which the North Koreans use to make their advances is like working one of those oldtime maze puzzles," he said.

"We have to get under the overcast, charge down these defiles, and then hope to turn up another break in the mountains which will lead into the target. It takes sometimes 20 to 50 extra miles like this to swing open the gate."

Conserva has had experiences which should have made Korea's mountains seem tame.

Military Men Eye Andy Higgins' Quickie Concrete

(Associated Press Newsfeatures)

New Orleans, La.—Andrew J. Higgins, Sr., New Orleans industrialist whose landing craft played an important role in World War II, has developed a new product which may revolutionize construction of roads, airstrips, supply lines, and military housing.

The new product is Thermo-Con, a quick drying, foaming concrete which is sprayed from a power hose. The material is a combination of cement, water, and a secret chemical which are mixed at high agitation. Unlike other forms of concrete, sand and gravel are not needed in this product.

Developed over a period of 29 years, Thermo-Con received its first real test when Higgins built several houses in 1943. Since then it has been used in quite a few building projects including a 21 building apartment development in Atlanta, Ga.

Because it is quick drying, withstands cold and heat and is practically water proof, Higgins decided the product might be suitable for roads and air strips—vitally important to the armed forces.

Recently Higgins invited high ranking officers of all branches of the armed services to witness a demonstration of the product. Selecting a site in the marshes near his Michaud plant, Higgins personally put his product through the paces. A landing craft with the cement mixer on board was driven into the marshy bank. Laborers laid a steel mesh roadbed on the bog and slime and then staked planks along the sides. Water from the canal was pumped into the mixer and the foaming concrete was sprayed in place.

In several hours the eight inch thick concrete strip was dry enough to support a truck loaded with plywood weighing over 22,000 pounds.

Although the military men were non-committal, they seemed impressed with the possibilities of the product and members of the air forces went into a huddle with Higgins to discuss the possibilities of using the material on runways for jet planes. Higgins is sure Thermo-Con is capable of doing the job because he says it isn't affected by the spillage of fuel, needs no expansion joints and can withstand temperatures up to 2300 degrees Fahrenheit. He added that a workable airstrip could be laid with the material within 12 hours over any terrain anywhere.

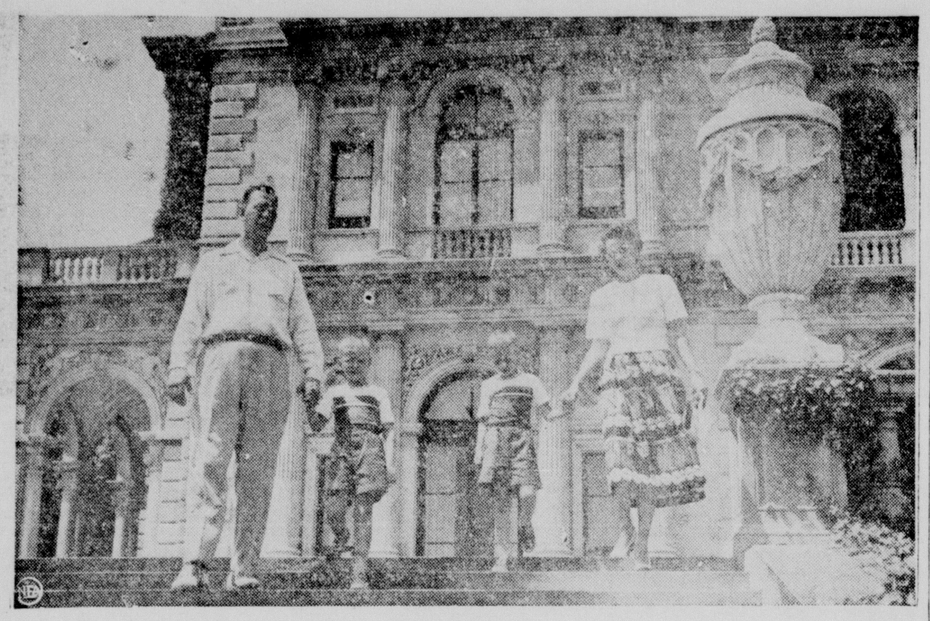
WASHINGTON FAMILY TOURS NEWPORT



Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ellis and their twin sons of Washington, D. C., stroll down the steps of "The Breakers" fabulous Vanderbilt mansion in Newport, R. I. Once you could see it only as you drove down millionaire's row; now it's open as a tourist attraction.

Tourists Roam Newport's Palaces

Average American Families Have Captured The City Of Newport; Modest Family Sedans Eclipse The Stately Limousines

Newport, R. I.—(NEA)—The average American family has captured the city of Newport, once the exclusive resort of high society's millionaires.

The blue-blooded rich still come here — but not as many of them now. The modest family sedans with license plates that mark tourists from 48 states eclipse the stately limousines.

The fact that the wealthy are feeling the pinch of the high cost of living, which makes it difficult for some of them to maintain their elaborate palaces and the huge servant staffs it takes to run them, has become one of the drawing cards for the tourists.

Until recently, these mansions were something the non-millionaire could only stare at as he drove by Bellevue Avenue, street of the Astors and Vanderbilts. Or he could look at them from the Cliff Walk that runs between the mansions and the sea, a pathway the rich could never block off from the poor.

Today, however, anybody can walk right in some of the palaces. "The Breakers," for instance, fabulous 70-room mansion built by Cornelius Vanderbilt in 1895, is now open to the public.

In its heyday, it took 40 servants to keep house in "The Breakers." Now it requires a staff of 11 to keep it open for the thousands of tourists who visit it every year.

Ellis, a caterer, was particularly interested in the huge kitchen with a 25-foot stove and row-on-row of shiny copper kettles. The twins were awe-struck by the playhouse —big enough to house an average family.

His wife, however, was more impressed by old houses and buildings, such as Trinity Church, and the Wanton-Layman-Hazard house, built a century before the Revolution.

Like many other of Newport's new visitors, the Ellis family comes for their whole vacation, just the way the millionaires do. They stay in one of the dozen or so new motor courts instead of on Bellevue avenue, however.

The tourists haven't yet broken down the barriers of Bailey's Beach, which is by no means the best place to go swimming in Newport, but is still the most exclusive.

LAUNDRY FRETS CZECH REDS

Prague.—(AP)—The housewife whose linen was lost in the laundry and the man whose suit was damaged at the cleaner's have found friends in high places. The Prague Communist newspaper "Rude Pravo" and the Prague district organization of the Czechoslovak Communist party have come to their rescue with a cleanup campaign, and they have been assured that everything will come out in the wash. The paper reported their troubles and announced corrective measures in a recent column devoted to letters to the editor. The executive board of the Prague district committee of the Communist party agreed the situation was bad. It decided that a new laundry must be started to handle 42 per cent more work; inefficient workers replaced, and "the political and technological level of employes" raised generally.

WORLD YOUTH UNION

To Honor the second meeting of the World Youth Union, Turkey has issued a set of two new stamps. Both have the same design. The 15 kurus is violet. The 20 kurus is blue. The central design depicts the silhouette of a boy and girl standing atop the world globe. In the background can be seen an outline of Istanbul and part of the Citadel of Ankara.

Snyder Lives Upside Down For Science

(Associated Press Newsfeatures)

Wichita, Kas.—Blame Fred Snyder's pet rats for his 30 days of "topsy turvy" vision. They were slated to do an experiment for him—in visual perception. He was going to write his master's thesis about them.

"But," says the 25-year-old GI graduate student, "I fed 'em, and took good care of 'em. But I couldn't get a big enough colony."

His thesis deadline near, he put on binocular-type inversion glasses and his adventure in upside-down, reversed vision began.

"It was difficult, with the lenses off, to recognize people I'd first met during the test," he remembers. "And it had been quite difficult to recognize people when I put the glasses on—even though I knew them really well.

"At first I was quite struck by the fact that everything was upside down. But as the experiment progressed, I became less and less aware of it.

"Toward the end everything seemed normal—until somebody'd say, 'do you really see things upside down?"

Then, he grinned, he'd start thinking "how queer everything looked."

Even fully adjusted, he admits, his upside-down world "never really seemed right-side-up again. It's funny—but people walking upside down seem to bounce."

With Dr. N. H. Pronko, psychology head at the University of Wichita, Snyder feel's he's helped prove that vision is a learning process.

In 30 days of seeing things in reverse, Snyder found he could perform certain tests quicker than before he donned the glasses. In others, he quickly reached or neared pre-test speeds.

His card sorting speeded up from 114 seconds to 85.8 seconds, for example.

He hit a pre-test time of 54 seconds on the Purdue peg-board—a cribbage scoreboard-like gadget common in college psychology labs. His best time, with these glasses on, was 56.6 seconds.

Chief improvement was in mirror tracing. Seated before a mirror, Snyder traced the outline of a star with an electrical stylus that recorded his blunders to either side of the star's grooved outline. The mirror didn't turn things upside down, but it stuck his hand out toward him instead of away. His inversion glasses turned this all upside down, and gave it a left-right reverse.

His best pre-test time was 12 seconds. He hit 7.8 seconds on his 29th day of reversed vision. Best time since the glasses came off—10.4 seconds.

WARNS OF BEGGARS WITH DOGS

New Advice For Cowboys 'Go East'

By Robert E. Geiger
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Washington — That white hot interest in cowboys that eastern young fry have whipped up may not be wasted. The cow punching business may have a great future in the east. That's the judgement of the United States department of agriculture.

Here's how a report by the bureau of agricultural economics (B. A. E.) reasons:

The west once was the great beef and mutton source for the rest of the nation. Western sheep and cattle were shipped in great numbers to eastern fattening centers or markets.

Some went back to the west, of course, in the form of corn fed steaks and chops. But population has gone up about two-thirds in 25 years in the west while eastern population has increased about one-fifth.

The number of slaughter houses in the west increased along with the rise in population. The number of animals these slaughter houses require about equals the animals in the 11 western states, plus Texas, market.

That doesn't mean cattle no longer are shipped from west to east. But the B. A. E. report says each year fewer cattle are shipped east; more are consumed in the west. It adds that this trend probably will continue, and the east will have to find other sources for meat.

The report points to these figures:

Slaughter by western packing plants about doubled in the past 23 years, if measured in weight of slaughtered animals. But production of meat animals increased only one-third. So surplus animals available for shipping eastward decreased.

The B. A. E. has produced some maps to illustrate what is happening. They show a line dividing the country. On the western side is the area that markets enough cattle and sheep to fill requirements of packing plants in 11 western states and Texas. This line is gradually moving eastward. It now runs almost through the middle of Texas and is nearing the eastern boundaries of the other states.

For sheep and lambs, the line ran through the middle of Oregon and Washington and along the eastern boundary of California about 23 years ago. Now it's several hundred miles east, adding several states to the total of those required to produce sufficient animals to meet the needs of western packers.

Western states never have produced enough pork for their own needs. As population has increased westerners have drawn more heavily on states to the east, or the midwestern corn belt. These states also produce pork for the eastern states. So western competition for this meat has increased.

In the future, the department says, the West probably will gain population faster than the east and expansion of its cattle business will merely take care of the increased population.

So if the east is to be supported in the beef and mutton eating manner to which it has been accustomed, easterners probably will have to raise more cattle and sheep.

COMMEMORATES

TO COMMEMORATE Holy Year, Fiji will issue a special set of three stamps, reports Gimbel's stamp department.

The central design illustrates a reproduction of the bronze statue of St. Peter's basilica in Rome. This famous statue was placed by St. Leo in the original Basilica of St. Peter in 445 A. D. It is customary for visiting pilgrims to kiss the right foot of the statue. Down through the centuries this has resulted in the wearing away of the foot.

Ted Dunham Continues To Expand His Holdings

Dunham-Pugh President Opens New Enterprises And Management In Other Hands; Establishes More Than Dozen Firms Since 1937

Ted Dunham, president of Dunham-Pugh in Monroe and several state-wide enterprises in Louisiana and other states throughout the nation, is the subject of a feature published in "Big," the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, Inc.'s periodical, which is dedicated to America's big jobs, the men behind them and the mighty equipment that makes them possible.

The article, in addition to describing him as a businessman with more than a dozen strings to his bow, numerates his various holdings along with their origin.

The publication pointed out that as an ex-Oklahoma truck driver, Dunham went hunting for big business in the rapidly developing economy of the Gulf States 13 years ago. After surveying the scene for many months, he leveled his bow on Baton Rouge in 1937. From this time, on his interests have grown as described by "Big" in the following article.

"Ever since then the six-foot, 190 pound, dark haired huntsman has been adding new strings to his bow and shooting straight, hard and fast.

"Dunham, only 43 years old, has rolled up a phenomenal marksmanship record. He has plucked off one success after another. He's always aiming for the bull's-eye and his achievements bear out a natural knack for ending up on the target.

"Ted, as everybody knows him, is an individual who likes to create and build new businesses. His technique has been to develop new businesses, (he now has more than a dozen), and then turn over the active management to a partner or an associate. From that point, Dunham only counsels and participates on the top policy-making level.

"The words of a partner best describe the Dunham prowess: "Ted has a more intimate knowledge of more different businesses than any person I've ever known."

"The remarkable story of Dunham's vision and efforts began in the Oklahoma oil fields. After starting as a truck driver at the age of 16, Dunham went into his own lumber business when he was 20 years old. He moved his yards from one place to another as new oil fields were opened or closed. Here he made many friends and developed a keen business acumen.

"Then in 1936 he sensed the glorious economic possibilities of the Gulf Coast States. His first idea was to get into the ready-mixed concrete business. He began a personal survey of several areas and their market possibilities. Ultimately, Baton Rouge was his choice.

"By 1937 Anderson-Dunham Concrete company, Inc., was doing business on the outskirts of Louisiana's Capital city. The Anderson name in the firm stemmed from Jim Anderson, a prominent Texas and Oklahoma oil man, who was one of Dunham's original partners. The concrete plant is now wholly-owned by Dunham, but retains its original name.

"The Anderson - Dunham concrete plant is one of the largest and most modern in the world. It involves an investment of more than $1,500,000. All materials are scientifically - processed to meet the most stringent specifications. With a fleet of 50 trucks, the Baton Rouge plant has a capacity to produce and deliver 1,000 cubic yards of concrete every eight hours. It also is one of the largest producers of concrete pipe in the state, and manufacturers a large volume of ready-mixed asphalt for the road-building program that is continuing within the city of Baton Rouge.

"The Anderson-Dunham Concrete Company also operates a modern and efficient ready-mix plant in the city of Shreveport.

finery at Baton Rouge.

Before this giant plant began its tremendous expansion program, all concrete for construction was hand-mixed. Shortly after getting his plant into operation, Dunham sold the oil company executives on the virtues of ready - mixed concrete. And ever since then—

Ted Dunham

This is one of Dunham's more recent additions.

"The key to Dumham's success in the ready-mixed concrete venture is the $200,000,000 Standard Oil Company of New Jersey refor the last 12 years—Dunham has furnished all the bulk concrete for their plant.

"Dunham also cashed in on all the other industry expansion projects which have hit Baton Rouge during the last decade. Other sizeable consumers were the Ethyl Corporation, Solvay Process Corporation, Permanente Metals Corporation, five synthetic rubber plants and the Gulf States Utilities Company.

"After the first successful venture, Ted decided to branch out. He brought Rowland Price, now deceased, down from Oklahoma. Together they formed the Dunham-Price Company, Inc., at Lake Charles. Several years before in Oklahoma they had operated jointly a chain of lumber yards known as the Dunham - Price Lumber Company. So they were old friends.

"This Dunham-Price organization today is comparable to Anderson-Dunham's Baton Rouge operation except that it does not produce ready - mixed asphalt. It serves the many large oil and chemical companies in the Lake Charles area. Half of this company is still owned by Mrs. Rowland Price and her two sons, Bob and Ted.

"From the time of his early youth, Ted always has been interested in aviation. He has been a licensed pilot for 16 years. Early in 1942 Ted went into the army air transport command as a first lieutenant, but before he left, it might be said that Dunham "put things on ice." He opened the Dunham Ice Company, a 50-ton artificial ice plant that still operates in Baton Rouge, with other side activities, such as the manufacture of ice cream.

"Dunham drafted a friend, E. D. (Woody) Wilson, an executive of the Kansas City Southern Railroad to come down from Kanasas City to handle his business affairs.

"It was Bill Pugh and Wilson who carried out Dunham's instructions and organized the Dunham-Pugh Company, Inc., in 1943. Bill Pugh was an old and personal friend from Guthrie, Okla. He opened the doors of this industrial equipment distributorship at Baton Rouge in 90 days. The Dunham-Pugh Company, which now has branches in New Orleans and Monroe is exclusive statewide distributor for International Harvester machinery, J. A. Adams road graders, Bucyrus - Erie bulldozers and scrapers, and P & H draglines and truck cranes, plus numerous other lines of equipment manufacturers.

"During Durham's tour in the army he met F. M. (Dud) Coates, a Little Rock, Ark., insurance man. They became great friends, and Dunham prevailed upon Coates to come to Baton Rouge when his army service was terminated. Today, Coates is vice-president and general manager of the Dunham-Pugh Company.

"In 1945, about the time Dunham was discharged from military service, he and Wilson founded the Dunham - Wilson Company, Inc., to engage in the manufacture fabrication and distribution of steel and iron products. Wilson is now president of this firm.

"With all of his supply organization operating smoothly, Ted began to spread out — and down. He drilled several oil wells in Oklahoma and Texas. Then with Pugh and J. Van Lindley, he formed the Lindley Drilling Company of Canada. For the past two years they have been busy bringing oil to the surface in the great western Canadian oil fields. As drilling contractors, they maintain officers, in Edmonton, Alberta.

"In addition to these far-flung ventures during the last two years, Dunham has become part owner of the United Sash and Door Company of Baton Rouge, organized the Gulf Sash and Door Company in Lake Charles, and is operating the Dunham Sash and Door Company of Shreveport.

"Last year Dunham bought the only rock quarry in Louisiana, located at Winnfield, with the primary purpose of producing crushed limestone for his ready-mixed asphalt operations throughout the state. This quarry had been abandoned for several years until Dunham put in new equipment and began operation. Soon after, a soft greyish rock was found underneath the limestone. After having it analyzed and core drilled, it was determined to be a tremendous deposit of palmost pure gypsum. There is not other known deposit within the states of Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Florida. And gypsum is a "must" in the manufacture of plaster and sheet rock, in addition to cement. So it is likely that Dunham soon may have a sheet rock, in addition to cement. So it is likely that Durham soon may have a sheet rock plaster mill.

Arkansas Town Is Willed Collection Of Famed Guns

(Associated Press Newsfeatures)

Berryville Ark.,—Six shooters once packed by such noted outlaws as Billy the Kid, Jesse James, Henry Starr and Pretty Boy Floyd are included in a privately-owned gun collection that has been willed to this county seat town in the Ozarks.

The display, reputed to be one of the world's largest, belongs to a keen-eyed, 87-year-old man with a white goatee—Col. Charles Burton Saunders. The Texas-born, internationally - known pistol shot spent many years and a considerable amount of money collecting the firearms.

Other items in the collection of 2,000 guns are dueling pistols that belonged to European royalty, sidearms carried by famous scouts, frontier marshals of a by-gone era and other widely known personalties. In addition, the exhibit includes the knife with which "Buffalo Bill" is said to have killed Chief Yellow Hand in a hand-to-hand encounter, curios and relics from many parts of the world and his pistol championship trophies.

Saunders says he has documented evidence to support the history of each item in the collection.

"I've paid as high as 1,500 for a gun that had no historical background, yet was a rare model. However, I wouldn't give $1.50 for one with a historical background that couldn't be proved to my satisfaction," he said.

He pointed out a wooden gun in the display as an example and said: "I paid $50 for this gun, which was carved from a toilet seat and used by two convicts in their escape from the death house at the Arkansas penitentiary, but it wouldn't be anything but a child's toy if I couldn't prove the story."

Estimates of the value of the collection range upward from $250,000.

Some of the items are virtually priceless. One is one of the first pistols ever manufactured, Hickock Judge Roy Bean, Three Fingered Jack, Bill Doolin, Saunders said. It was made in China, an awkward, all-metal weapon fired by a lever with a bit of mercury placed in an opening at the top of the barrel.

The collection will be inherited by the city of Berryville after Saunders' death. He also had deeded a plot of ground for a museum and made provisions for its maintenance.

At present, the collection is housed in Saunders' home.

Disney's 'Treasure Island' Is Coming To Paramount

Moving from his cartoon magic to realistic melodrama to depict the world's most famous adventure tale, Walt Disney proves his story-telling power in his all-live action feature, "Treasure Island," starting a four day run Thursday at the Paramount Theatre. His screen version of Robert Louis Stevenson's melodramatic story is in many ways, Disney's boldest innovation and among his best.

Splendid in Technicolor, performed by a cast of internationally noted actors and filmed against authentic backgrounds in England, it is magnificently presented, with appeal for every member of the family. It is made with fidelity to the author's drama of perilous suspense, excitement, color and furious contest for recovery of a fabulous pirate hoard.

Surrounded by some of the screen's finest character actors, Bobby Driscoll, Disney's 13-year-old star, gives a splendid performance as Jim Hawkins, the courageous cabin boy who finally outwits that wily rogue, Long John Silver, and his mutinous cohorts who sailed with him on the Hispaniola. Robert Newton is superb in the character of Long John, the one-legged sea cook whose name, together with the chant, "Yo-ho-ho!" has been on the lips of myriads of boys, young and old, for several generations. Basil Sydney, in the role of the ship's captain, Smollett, is equally impressive. Contributing to a group performance which must be rated flawless, too, are Walter Fitzgerald as Trelawney, Denis O'Dea as Doctor Livesey, Ralph Truman in the guise of the deadly George Merry, Geoffrey Keen as Israel Hands and Geoffrey Wilkinson as the half-mad Ben Gunn.

Perce Pearce functioned as Walt Disney's producer. Lawrence E. Watkin, author of "On Borrowed Time", and other popular novels did the screenplay, which was directed by Byron Haskin. The picture was two years in the actual making, we are told, and has been a pet project of Disney's since first he began making movie features.

New Baseball Comedy Stars 'Umpire Bendix'

"Kill the Umpire," Columbia pictures' behind-the-plate comedy of a constantly-behind-the-eight-ball diamond arbiter opens today at the Paramount theater, William Bendix is starred in this cinematic eulogization of what probably is America's most-maligned individual. At that, according to Hollywood report, there's nothing wrong with Bendix as an umpire that a good seeing-eye dog couldn't cure! It's a far cry from his starrng role in "The Babe Ruth Story!"

Una Merkel, Ray Collins and Gloria Henry top the featured supporting cast of the film, in which Bendix is seen as an ardent baseball fan, whose strident booing of decisions has gotten him tossed at ball games has gotten him with his wife planning to leave him. Bendix decides to compro-out of ball park after ball park, mise: He becomes an umpire, thus receiving a steady salary and, simultaneously, getting a chance to see baseball games.

"Kill the Umpire" carries him through the training regimen at the school for umpires in Florida, and then into minor league ball. At the former establishment, Bendix finds hilarious difficulty in adlife to the rigid disciplines and justing his umpire-baiting way of does all right—until one of his decisions leads to a near riot during techniques which help to make an umpire what he is.

Tyrone Power Starred In 'Black Rose,' Now At Joy

Orson Welles Also In Cast Of Picture Filmed In Morocco, England

Traveling more than 75,000 miles in 47 lands in the last three years, Tyrone Power has earned the title of the Marco Polo of Hollywood. When he wasn't making pictures in Italy, England and Africa, he did a bit of globe-trotting on his own.

A glance at Power's log book shows that he journeyed over 20,000 miles in two continents while making his last two pictures for Twentieth Century-Fox. Making "Prince of the Foxes" in Italy, he then starred in "The Black Rose," which was filmed in Tecnicolor in England and Morocco, and is now showing on the Joy screen.

Returning to Hollywood after an 18 months absence, Power was soon off again—this time to the Philippines and another adventure movie for Twentieth Century-Fox.

Travel, however, has always appealed to the handsome actor, who actually began his fabulous journeys at an earlier date. Enlisting without fanfare in the Marines, he ended his service as a pilot, having been based on Kwajalein, Saipan, and Kyushu. The year after his discharge, the wandering actor flew 23,000 miles around South America, and the next year travelled 32,000 miles around Africa and Europe.

The prospect of making motion pictures all over the world is especially appealing to Tyrone Power now that he is married to beautiful Linda Christian, for his bride goes wherever he goes, and, he says, makes wherever he goes, feel like home.

"When we were making "The Black Rose" in the Moroccan desert, Linda did all the cooking," Power declared. "All you have to do is give her a can of spaghetti and some spices and she never fails to come up with a tasty dish."

The Powers, however, make every attempt to live like natives of the lands they visit in order to get the real flavor of life in the different countries. In Morocco they lived in native huts, haggled for bargains in the markets and otherwise fitted themselves into the Arab world. Impressed with the colorful desert life, they returned to Hollywood with sufficient souvenirs for a Morrocan room which they are planning to add to their home.

But in fair exchange for transporting a bit of Moroccan culture to the United States, Ty and Linda left a bit of United States culture in Morocco. Playing Canasta for recreation between scenes of "The Black Rose," the couple always collected a crowd of Arab kibitzers, who became intrigued by the game. Canasta is now a popular form of recreation in the Moroccan desert.

As adventurous in real life as he is in his swashbuckling roles on the screen, Tyrone Power has yet a rarely expressed longing deep in his heart. That is to live in the Hollywood home he bought three years ago and to date, has spent few nights in.

U. N. POLITICS

Sir Mohammed Zafrullah Kahn of Pakistan and Nasrollah Entezam of Iran are reported running neck and neck, with Mexico's Luis Padilla Nervo a close third.

Some Asian diplomats are trying to get Zafrullah Kahn and Entezam to pool their support behind the one who nears the wire with the most backing. This would eliminate the risk of a deadlock that might throw the presidency to Padilla Nervo as a compromise.

Disney's 'Treasure Island' Is Coming To Paramount

Moving from his cartoon magic to realistic melodrama to depict the world's most famous adventure tale, Walt Disney proves his story-telling power in his all-live action feature, "Treasure Island," starting a four day run Thursday at the Paramount Theatre. His screen version of Robert Louis Stevenson's melodramatic story is in many ways, Disney's boldest innovation and among his best.

Splendid in Technicolor, performed by a cast of internationally noted actors and filmed against authentic backgrounds in England, it is magnificently presented, with appeal for every member of the family. It is made with fidelity to the author's drama of perilous suspense, excitement, color and furious contest for recovery of a fabulous pirate hoard.

Surrounded by some of the screen's finest character actors, Bobby Driscoll, Disney's 13-year-old star, gives a splendid performance as Jim Hawkins, the courageous cabin boy who finally outwits that wily rogue, Long John Silver, and his mutinous cohorts who sailed with him on the Hispaniola. Robert Newton is superb in the character of Long John, the one-legged sea cook whose name, together with the chant, "Yo-ho-ho!" has been on the lips of myriads of boys, young and old, for several generations. Basil Sydney, in the role of the ship's captain, Smollett, is equally impressive. Contributing to a group performance which must be rated flawless, too, are Walter Fitzgerald as Trelawney, Denis O'Dea as Doctor Livesey, Ralph Truman in the guise of the deadly George Merry, Geoffrey Keen as Israel Hands and Geoffrey Wilkinson as the half-mad Ben Gunn.

Perce Pearce functioned as Walt Disney's producer. Lawrence E. Watkin, author of "On Borrowed Time" and other popular novels did the screenplay, which was directed by Byron Haskin. The picture was two years in the actual making, we are told, and has been a pet project of Disney's since first he began making movie features.

A GREAT ACTION PICTURE!

Walker Likely To Command Drive Northward In Korea

By the World Staff of the Associated Press

Washington —When the United Nations general offensive in Korea gets going, prospects are that Lt. Gen. Walton Walker of the U. S. army will command the combined ground forces in their drive northward.

Despite the hammering his U. N. forces have taken so far from the North Koreans, military authorities say Walker has the full confidence of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and the U. S. joint chiefs of staff.

Walker was a World War II commander under Gen. George C. Patton and is credited with some of Patton's dash.

The informed word also is that the other U. N. top commanders are slated to stay. They are Adm. Charles Joy of the navy and air forces Lt. Gen. George C. Stratemeyer.

Don't worry too much, incidentally, about MacArthur's seeming freedom in identifying in communiques the enemy divisions known to be in action.

It's true that a first principle of military security is not to let the enemy know what you know about him, but generals have come to figure that identity of units—even their size, origin and mission—gets to be pretty common knowledge along a battle line.

Questioning of prisoners is the best source of this information. A Pentagon general recalls a German prisoner in World War II once told his captors a certain German division was down to 507 men. It turned out to have 500.

What the military does try to keep secret are such things as information that it has cracked an enemy code, data on new weapons which have not as yet been committed to general use, any important developments far behind the front.

GOOD MUGG.

WHAT ABOUT T.V. WIGGLES?

WHILE T.V. WIGGLES, WHO HAS TAKEN REFUGE BEHIND ROLLS OF NEWSPRINT, CONTEMPLATES HIS NEXT MOVE.

COME OUT WITH THE HANDS UP—

AS HE SHOOTS TO THE NEXT LEVEL OF THE PRESS ROOM—SHOTS FOLLOW.

ZING!

BANG!

HE'S ON THE FLOOR BELOW US, TRACY.

THE HECK HE IS! HE'S RIGHT THERE!

BULLETS FIRED FROM BELOW PIERCE THE TUBING CONVEYING INK FROM THE STORAGE RESERVOIR TO THE PRESSES.

SWISH

IT'S T.V. WIGGLES' ONLY SPEEDY ESCAPE, BUT THE INK MAKES THE POLE SLIPPERY. HE DROPS LIKE A PLUMMET!

BUMP

BACK ON THE FURNACE FLOOR, HE DASHES FOR THE ELECTRIC TRAIN THAT HAULS ASHES FROM THE FURNACE ROOM TO THE RIVER.

Captain EASY

ARCHEOLOGIST BOVE AND RANCHERS PIDBERRY AND MALLARD SUDDENLY APPEAR IN THE VILLAGE MARSHAL'S OFFICE--

WE JUST HEARD YOU FOUND THE FERODEZ TREASURE, CAPTAIN EASY! IS IT TRUE?

I HAVE A BOX, DR. BONE, BUT I HAVEN'T LOOKED OVER THE CONTENTS YET. I'M GOING TO GUARD IT VERY CAREFULLY!

KEEP YOUR PAWS OFF, PIDBERRY! IT WAS ON MY RANCH AND IT'S MINE!

YOUR RANCH? YOU WAS STRINGIN' THAT FENCE 10 FEET OVER THE LINE ON MY RANCH, MALLARD!

I'M NOT FORGETTING ANY-THING, WISE HORSE! TOMORROW WE'LL TAKE UP THE MATTER IN COURT!

T. M. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

I AM AFRAID, SENOR EASY! ONE MAN WAS KILLED FOR THE TREASURE MAP! SURELY THE TREASURE WOULD BE MOTIVE FOR MURDER, TOO!

I THINK I KNOW WHICH ONE TO WATCH!

BOTH MALLARD AND PIDBERRY WERE WRONG ABOUT WHERE WE WERE DIGGING! IT WAS ON GOVERNMENT LAND-- NOT RANCH PROPERTY!

THEN WISE HORSE MUST BE--

WE'LL SEE WHO IT IS VERY SOON. NOW YOU RUN ALONG!

LATE THAT NIGHT, WHILE THE VILLAGE SLEEPS--

CITY MARSHAL

YEAH, I'VE GOT ALL MY HOMEWORK BUT THIS ONE, UNCLE AMOS -- I BET YOU CAN'T DO IT!

PSHAW! WHEN I WAS YOUR AGE, MY TEACHER USED TO GIVE ME ALL THE MATH PAPERS TO CORRECT, ALVIN!

THEN THIS ONE OUGHT TO BE PIE FOR YOU!

UM! LET'S SEE -- THE FARMER HAS 27 RED COWS -- ONE BLACK -- 27 OVER 5, TIMES 8 -- HAK-KAFF! -- APPEARS SIMPLE ENOUGH!

IT'S TOO TOUGH FOR ME!

TWO HOURS LATER:

EGAD, ALVIN! I'VE ALMOST GOT IT -- ONE MORE STEP, I THINK!

YOU DON'T DO IT THE WAY TEACHER SHOWED US!

T. M. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

THANKS FOR THE LIFT, UNCLE AMOS!

NEXT DAY:

MY TEACHER SAID THAT PROBLEM YOU WORKED WAS WRONG, UNCLE AMOS!

WRONG? INDEED! HOW, PRAY, TELL!

IT WASN'T GALLONS, IT WAS QUARTS -- AND THE COW DIDN'T GIVE NINE, IT GAVE SIX!

FAP!

BAH! HOW EMBARRAS-SING!

DON'T TAKE IT TOO HARD -- YOU COULDN'T BE EXPECTED TO KNOW MUCH ABOUT MILK!

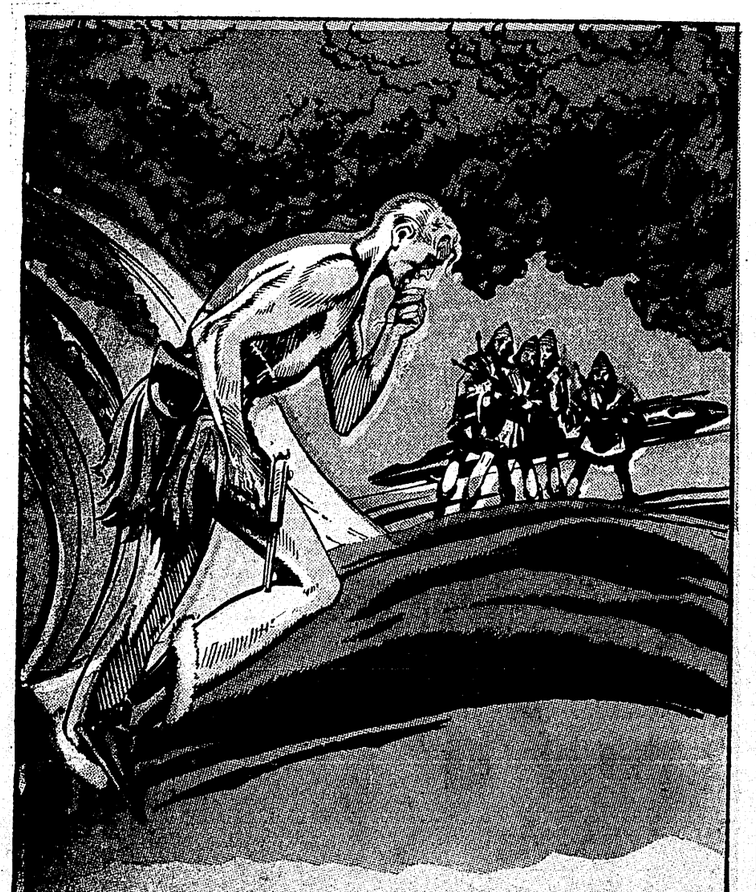
ZIN RAGES AS HIS LIQUIGEN BOMB-FUEL BURNS, ALONG WITH HIS DREAMS OF CONQUEST. "BY TAO!" HE SNARLS, "AT LEAST FLASH DIED IN THE FIRE HE LIT." RUBIA WEEPS. "I'LL NEVER BELIEVE IT," SHE CRIES. "I'M GOING TO HUNT FOR HIM."

FLASH STILL LIVES...FOR THE MOMENT. LEAPING INTO A DITCH, HE ESCAPED THE FIRST UPRUSH OF FLAME. BUT THE BLAZING TORRENTS ARE ALL ABOUT HIM.

FLASH ATTACKS THE THINNEST POINT IN THE CIRCLE OF FIRE. HIS RAY-BLASTS OPEN A NARROW HOLE, AND AT TOP SPEED HE RUNS THE GANTLET OF DOOM.



CHOKING AND SCORCHED FLASH STAGGERS OUT OF THE FIERY WALL... STRAIGHT INTO A SQUAD OF ZIN'S SOLDIERS HUNTING FOR SURVIVORS.

NO MACHINE-MAN CAN BE A MATCH FOR FLASH. HE SCATTERS HIS FOES AND SEIZES THEIR JET-CAR FOR A GETAWAY. BUT IT HAS A PASSENGER HIDDEN IN A PILE OF FLAME-PROOF CLOTHING. "FLASH!" RUBIA GLOATS.

NEXT WEEK: DEADLIER THAN FIRE.
